Corn, Beef, Oats, Reach New Record High Prices

September Corn At $2.50 Bushel; Wheat Goes Up 3 to 5 Cents

Farmer Income 'Way Up

U. S. FAMER'S INCOME setting new all-time high record. Page 9.

Grain Trading Booms

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Corn, cattle and oats hit new high record prices yesterday.

September corn reached $2.50 on the Chicago Board of Trade—more than half a dollar a bushel above the all-time high previous to this year.

September oats went up to $1.16⅜, almost 7 cents above the World War I high—the all-time record until 1947.

Wheat went up from 3 to 5 cents a bushel.

Choice to prime Iowa-fed steers sold at $35 a hundred pounds at Chicago's Union Stockyards, just slightly above the previous all-time high reached last November 18.

(One hundred pounds of live steer will trim down to 60 pounds of carcass meat before leaving the packing plant. It is further trimmed down to 47.4 pounds by the retail butcher.)

Grain Trading Heavy

Speculation in grain apparently is running at fever heat. Daily reports to the Commodity Exchange Authority show that yesterday there were open contracts for practically an even 100 million bushels of wheat in the Chicago Board of Trade alone.

A month ago, on August 2, wheat open contracts totalled only 82 million bushels.

This is the greatest amount of wheat on open contracts in more than seven years. On May 15, 1946, when world buying due to the war was sending prices up, open contracts in wheat in Chicago reached 105 million bushels.

Open contracts in corn reached 58 million bushels at Chicago, contrasted with 49 million bushels a month ago.

The jump in cattle prices was against the seasonal trend. Although livestock receipts are increasing due to seasonal selling and the desire of farmers to unload rather than feed high-priced grains, the market for livestock has gone up.

Economists Set Back

This development is confounding to some Government economists. Although for several weeks Agriculture Department experts have predicted a seasonal increase in meat supplies, they have at the same time avoided any prediction of other than a "moderate" price decline this fall.

On the other hand a Bureau of Labor Statistics economist stuck his neck out last week, and predicted a price decline. Yesterday's prices were his answer.

While grain and livestock prices were making their daily jumps to new highs, a Republican Senator, Ralph E. Flanders of Vermont, agreed with Democrats that high prices and the housing shortage will be important issues in next year's elections.

11 Held on Guam In $2,000,000 Navy Smuggling Plot

Pearl Harbor, Sept. 3 (INS).—The Navy revealed today that 11 men have been arrested on Guam for questioning in an alleged two million-dollar smuggling ring, using Naval Air Transport Service planes on the China run.

Three are NATS officers, seven enlisted men, and one is a civilian. Their names were withheld. The men were seized on Guam.

The alleged smuggling operations involved goods worth two million dollars, naval sources estimated. These sources said the contraband consisted of silks, nylons, jewelry and cigarettes—destined for China.

Ellipse Road Affected Soon

Parking Places Near Shrines To Be Limited to Two Hours

District workers who have been parking all day near national shrines will soon have to find new parking spaces.

National Capital Parks Superintendent Irving C. Root yesterday said the agency is planning to abolish all-day parking on Ellipse rd. as soon as the present resurfacing job is completed.

A two-hour limit will be imposed in that area, so that Washington's five million yearly visitors will have a place to park near the shrines, he said. Other parking spaces near shrines will gradually be changed to the two-hour limit, he added, depending on the need of tourists.

"We don't feel obligated to provide parking space for those who park all day," Root declared, "the parks are paid for by the Federal Government, and our obligation is to the transients."

He pointed out there was no all-day parking in the areas before the war, and the Parks planned to return to the prewar systems of two-hour limits.

Chairman P. Y. K. Howat of the District Motor Vehicle Parking Agency yesterday said he was "very much in accord with the plan." The change to all-day parking was an emergency measure, he stated, and was enforced when fewer tourists were coming to the District and more parking space was needed by Federal workers.

Howat said he had been informed by Root, also a member of MVPA, that all parking areas will not be changed until MVPA finds a place for cars now using the space. "We are not finding places as fast as we would like to," he said, and added that they are negotiating for about 28 places, lots or spaces.

National Capital Parks and MVPA are working together on the problem, Howat said. They are trying to find places for people to park without working a hardship on anyone, he said.

About 300 people park on the Ellipse rd. space, he said. MVPA has not found places for all of them to park. However, Howat sug-

Rental Board Named for 2 Md. Counties

Riverdale Mayor Elected Chairman of 6-Man Commission

Frank R. Creedon, Federal housing expediter, yesterday appointed the Montgomery-Prince Georges Defense Rental Area Advisory Board, key rent control group, on the recommendations of Gov. William P. Lane.

Of the six appointees, five reached by phone last night said they owned their own homes. One of the five added that he also owned homes and apartments which he rented.

Two members of the newly organized board said they favored some type of general rent increase.

The board met yesterday in Silver Spring and elected Mayor Harry A. L. Barker of Riverdale as chairman.

Members of the board are:

Kent R. Mullikin of 209 Patuxent rd., Laurel, a mortgage company executive.

Frank L. Hewitt, jr., of 9810 Grayson ave., Silver Spring, a builder. Hewitt is a member of the Montgomery County Real Estate Board and the Metropolitan Home Builders Association. He owns 24 rental homes and apartments and his own home.

Man, Woman Perish in Air Crash

Pilot of Second Plane Badly Hurt At Falls Church

Owner of a Washington welding company and his woman air companion were killed at 7 p. m. yesterday in a mid-air collision with a second plane, over Falls Church Airpark, south of Falls Church, Va.

The student pilot of the other plane was seriously hurt.

Dead are F. H. Kirchman, 48, of Vienna, Va., owner of the Hawk Welding Co., Wisconsin ave. and M st. nw., and his passenger, Miss Agnes Louise Brady, 47, of 1801 Key blvd., Arlington, Va.

The injured GI student pilot was identified as William Gleason Sauerwein, 38, of RFD 1, Falls Church. At the scene, he was believed to have suffered a broken leg and head injuries. He was taken to Arlington County Hospital, Arlington.

Witnesses said the accident occurred when Sauerwein, who made his first solo flight on Tuesday, took off in an Aeronca Champion about the same time Kirchman was bringing down his own plane, a Stinson 105. The Stinson cut into the tail of the rising Aeronca about 75 feet off ground, it was reported.

U. S. Plans To Share Its Atom Goods

Score of Isotopes To Be Released For Foreign Use, Truman Announces

President Truman announced yesterday that the United States plans to share some of its atomic energy benefits with the rest of the world.

Twenty of the most important of the 90-odd radiosotopes developed for medical and biological research will be made available at once to reliable foreign scientists.

The announcement was made in a telegram to Dr. E. V. Cowdry, president of the Fourth Annual International Cancer Research Congress, that opened its four-day meeting at St. Louis yesterday.

No Secrets Involved

Coincident with the release of the President's telegram, the Atomic Energy Commission here announced that no atomic secrets will be endangered by the action.

None of the tracers offered for sale abroad are "applicable to the development of atomic energy for military or industrial purposes," AEC added.

"Progress in the production of radioistopes by the AEC," Mr. Truman wired Cowdry, "now permits limited distribution to qualified research workers in other countries of radioisotopes for medical and biological research.

"I know that the representatives of the United States attending the Cancer Research Congress share my hope that the open, impartial and truly international character of medical research will carry over into the realm of other problems of world concern.

"The sharing by and among all nations of both the means and the results of cancer research will reduce the loss of life and human suffering from disease throughout the world."

Greeted With Enthusiasm

The announcement was greeted enthusiastically by the foreign delegates at St. Louis, the Associated Press reported.

The isotopes to be made available include those of antimony, argon, arsenic, bromine, calcium, carbon, chlorine, cobalt, copper, gold, iodine, iron, mercury, phosphorus, potassium, silver, strontium, sulphur, sodium, and zinc.

These are isotopes valuable for studies of venereal and general parisitical diseases; respiratory functions; the action of insecticides, arsenic drugs and fumes; the action of bromide drugs, including sedatives; bone and teeth formation; cancer, photosynthesis; biological processes; chlorine utilization by the human body; cobalt utilization by animals; therapy requiring gamma radiation; botany; blood diseases, especially leukemia; thyroid disorders, including therapy for thyroid cancer; blood; the action of mercuric drugs; polycythemia vera; chronic leukemia; fatband protein metabolism; diseases of the nervous system; radiation therapy and drugs containing silver; bone metabolism; amino acids and proteins; action of penicillin and sulphur-

Associate Judge Brice Clagett of the Municipal Court of Appeals yesterday was named to preside at the trial of Municipal Court Judge Ellen K. Raedy next Thursday.

Judge Raedy has pleaded not guilty to a charge of leaving after colliding, placed after her car struck a parked automobile at 1st and K sts. nw. August 19.

A special order issued by Chief Judge Nathan Cayton of the Appeals Court yesterday removed the lower court's only other woman jurist, Judge Nadine Gallagher, as presiding judge of the Raedy case. The order was issued in response to a letter from Chief Judge George D. Barse, of Municipal Court.

Judge Barse's request said "there are obvious reasons why the trial of an accused judge should be held

Its Fate to Be Known Soon

Maine Delegation Due Today For WAA Parley on Quoddy

By Marshall Andrews

A delegation from Maine and the City of Eastport is expected here today to confer with War Assets Administration officials on disposition of Quoddy Village near Eastport.

A formal report from Robert L. Whittet, director of the WAA non-industrial real property division, recommended that the bid of Eastport to buy Quoddy at 100 per cent discount be turned down. Whittet, who went to Eastport last week to investigate the project, told reporters the WAA would not be justified in awarding the city a "public benefit" discount, since its plan for using Quoddy was "industrial" rather than "educational."

WAA Administrator Robert M. Littlejohn is expected to rule on the question within a few days. It was predicted by some of his associates that he would accept Whittet's recommendation.

The City of Eastport had asked to buy the 250-dwelling project at 100 per cent discount from its appraised value of $390,000 so a training school for displaced persons from Europe could be established there. The school was projected by Frank Cohen, New York industrialist, who had enlisted the active support of Senator Brewster (R., Me.) in placing it before Government agencies concerned.

Under Cohen's plan, 500 DPs would be brought into Quoddy with their families at a time and trained in various skills before being transferred to South America. There it was said they would be employed on farms or in factories, some of which Cohen said he would establish if necessary. Cohen estimated 25,000 families, or a total of 100,000 DPs, would be resettled in South America under the program.

Built at a cost of some $1,500,000 in 1935, Quoddy Village was designed to house employes on the ambitious Passamaquoddy project to harness the 28-foot Bay of Fundy tides in a water power development. Two of seven projected

Congress Call Hinted To Ease Europe Crisis; Recoil Here Feared

Decline in Exports May Bring Some Prices Down, End Certain Scarcities

By Sam Dawson

New York, Sept. 3 (AP).—Do sharp declines in the volume of American exports to a dollar-short world mean an end to that bonanza which in recent months helped fatten the pocketbooks of workers, manufacturers, farmers and businessmen?

Economists and foreign trade analysts differed somewhat today in their answers, but their views added up to something like this:

1. Some exporters and manufacturers are "bound to be hurt."

2. Some products now in short supply, due partly to high export demand, may be readily available to the American consumer by the end of the year.

3. Some items, with exports cut off, will become surplus and prices may drop by the first of the year.

4. Domestic demand for others is so high that if all exports stopped there would be no noticeable effect here.

5. In the long run, the world will have to get the goods it still wants badly from the United States, as no other country can supply them.

6. So many plans of help are under way or under discussion—loans, Marshall Plan, World Bank financing, economic conferences—that the means to buy may be restored before export volume drops low enough to threaten business and agricultural prosperity here and cause loss of jobs on a large scale.

Falling Since May

What has the world been buying from the United States?

Food, textiles, machinery from tools to locomotives, steel and steel products, electrical gadgets, radios, cotton, tobacco, automobiles both old and new, chemicals, rubber products, parts for machinery, cars and appliances.

United States exports hit their all-time peak in May, but have been falling steadily since as more and more items were added to the fast-swelling list of restrictions which foreign countries clamped on importation of United States goods.

This reached a climax when England and France all but ceased buying American products and Australia and Canada indicated they soon would cut purchases drastically.

Figures Show Dollar Drain

Foreign trade analysts expect the downtrend in exports to be accelerated, with orders dropping off sharply, although deliveries of goods already ordered may continue through the fall.

The United States Department of Commerce reported commercial exports at a peak of $1,361,900,000 in May, but down to $1,201,600,000 in June, the last month for which figures were available. Imports were $473,600,000 in May and 466 million dollars in June.

Economists pointed out that first six months exports were $7,558,000,000, while imports were less than $2,863,000,000, leaving an export surplus of nearly $4,696,000,000, which explained the drain on the world's dollar supply.

The effect on specific American industries of curtailed foreign buying was summed up in this manner:

TEXTILES — Exports declined sharply at the start of the summer as more countries took American textiles off preferred lists and turned their dwindling dollar supplies to buying "essentials." The industry expects further drops in exports, just at a time when do-

Fuel, Power

First Needs Listed to Aid Marshall Plan

By Sidney Keller

Paris, Sept. 3 (NYHT).—The 16-nation Economic Conference released its first inventory figures today for Marshall Plan aid. The official estimates indicate that by 1951 the participating nations expect to be independent of American coal and to have their fuel and energy producing industries re-equipped for greater than prewar production.

C. B. Serreulles, secretary-general of the conference, said that the figures he gave today on coal, electricity and gasoline production are still subject to modification, but close enough to indicate the scale on which these nations are planning their recovery.

He emphasized that his figures were based on minimum industrial estimates, not on extravagant hopes.

He said the technical experts at the conference anticipated that British coal production would go from its present figure of 200 million tons to 250 million tons by 1951. The Saar's coal output during the same years is expected to go from 13 million tons to 17 mil-

U. S. Says Gold Is 'For Sale,' $35 an Ounce

Consensus of Replies To Bevin's Division Plan: 'Nothing Doing'

By the United Press

If British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin wants all or any part of the United States gold buried at Fort Knox, Ky., he can have it—at 35 American dollars an ounce.

That was the Treasury's informal reply last night to Bevin's suggestion that the United States could best promote world recovery by redistributing its multi-billion dollar gold reserves.

Officially, the Treasury had nothing to say, because Bevin advanced his suggestion before a meeting of the British Trades Union Congress and not to the United States Government.

But unofficially, the Treasury let it be known that Bevin had better think up a new recovery plan.

"For Sale" Sign Is Out

"If they want gold they can get it the same way as we did—by paying $35 an ounce for it," a high Treasury official said.

"We'll be glad to sell them all they want. The 'For Sale' sign is still on top of our gold pile and any time they want to make a deal all they have to do is say the word and lay the cash on the line."

Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett's first reaction was to remark mirthfully that maybe Bevin had something there. But he added quickly that officially the State Department had no comment.

In New York, Secretary of Treasury John Snyder said that it was for the United States to

U. S. Help Needed Soon, Says Lovett, Citing Worsening Beyond Expectation

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Secretary Marshall returned from Rio yesterday to find a dangerous economic crisis in Europe—an emergency so great that a special session of Congress probably would be needed to cope with it.

The Secretary went straight to his office after his long flight from Brazil, and heard a quick report from Undersecretary Robert A. Lovett on the increasingly serious situation across the Atlantic.

As Lovett pictured the crisis to a press conference earlier in the day, the deterioration in Europe has been swift and the results will be very severe.

Action Needed Soon

We are going to have to take a hard look at this thing before the end of the year; certainly it is later than people think, he told the press. Action will have to come within months rather than some time next year, he said—a clear indication that emergency action was needed before the long-term Marshall Plan could possibly become effective.

Lovett cited two main reasons why the crisis has come faster than expected:

1. The run on Britain's dollars, and the end of converting foreigners' sterling into dollars, are having highly contagious effects in western Europe and beyond.

2. Crop failures and other "acts of God" have forced many European countries to spend their remaining dollars on food and fuel, instead of spending on productive equipment that would reduce their need of dollars.

Only One Course Seen

The undersecretary declined to say directly whether he thought a special session necessary, but he hinted clearly that there was no other course. He conceded that the World Bank or the Export Import Bank might take care of some European needs for capital goods, but some other means must be found of meeting the overriding need for food and fuel.

He said he honestly didn't know what those other means might be—except that there had to be money. Since congressional appropriations are the only source of such relief money, his hearers did not doubt his meaning.

It made no difference, Lovett said in answering a question, whether the money went as grants to the European countries or as payment to American farmers for the goods which Europe needs.

Decision With Truman

The decision to call a special session rests with President Truman, who said before he went to Brazil that he did not now see the necessity of such a call. A special session could be recommended to the President, however, by Secretary Marshall and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, president pro tem of the Senate.

Vandenberg said on his arrival from Rio yesterday that he would not comment on the special session problem until he had

Mrs. Roosevelt Being Considered For Nobel Prize

Oslo, Sept. 3 (INS).—A spokesman for the Nobel Peace Prize committee said tonight that Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt is among candidates mentioned for the 1947 award.

The statement was made in answer to a question about whether King Gustav V of Sweden had recommended Pope Pius XII as a candidate, as reported in Vatican City dispatches.

The spokesman said no recommendation has been received from the monarch but that the pontiff, as well as other leaders in the movement for peace, would receive full consideration.

Truman to Repeat Orchid Hunt Today

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Sept. 3 (AP).—President Truman eluded his guards for a while today and hunted orchids on Corcovado mountain, but he brought no blooms back for Mrs. Truman or daughter, Margaret.

Mr. Truman and Brig. Gen Wallace Graham, the President's physician, did return with some plants as the result of a walk after breakfast up the mountain just back of the United States Embassy.

They climbed more than 1000 feet to the base of the cliff on which the famed statue of Christ overlooks the Brazilian capital.

Two Secret Service men trailed the pair on the walk, and the guards had some uneasy minutes when Mr. Truman and General Graham got out of sight in a wooded area.

General Graham proved himself something of a botanist by being able to identify most of the blooms. He and the President

3 Chains to Carry Speeches at 10:30

Accomplishments of the Inter-American Defense Conference at Rio de Janeiro will be reported on in a broadcast tonight by Secretary of State Marshall and Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.), the State Department announced last night. Their addresses will be carried from 10:30 to 11 p. m., by the Mutual, (Columbia and National chains.

The two, with United States Delegate Warren R. Austin, returned from Rio yesterday aboard the presidential plane Independence, hailing the signing of the hemisphere defense treaty on Tuesday by delegates of 19 American nations. The party included Mrs. Marshall and Mrs. Vandenberg.

They were met at the airport by Undersecretary of State Lovett, Attorney General Clark and Postmaster General Hannegan.

Marshall told newsmen he thought the conference "highly

U.S., Britain Renew Petkov Protests

Plan Rejected

U. S., Soviet At Impasse On Korea

Seoul, Sept. 3 (AP).—Any possibility of the United States and Russia reaching quick agreement on unification of jointly-occupied Korea appeared blasted tonight after the Americans rejected the Russians' latest proposal.

Maj. Gen. Albert E. Brown said the Russians' recommendation for an all-Korean people's assembly barring all rightists included "the same objectionable features which have characterized" previous Soviet proposals. Brown is chief of the American delegation on the United States-Soviet commission to set up a Korean government.

He said the Russian plan would bar 15 million rightists and would result in "an overwhelming and unrealistic leftist majority."

The commission has failed in 18 months of intermittent conversations to reach a basis for giving Korea provisional self-government.

Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, President Truman's special investigator in the Orient, told reporters he found "strongly divergent views" in Korea, but there appeared to be "almost complete accord" on the desires for a peaceful, prosperous Korea.

The general went to Tokyo today and plans to leave in two days for Hawaii, where he and his fact-finding mission plan to spend a week preparing their report of conditions in China, Korea and Japan.

Notes Dispatched In Week After Russian Rebuff

Despite two Russian rebuffs, the United States and Britain have strenuously renewed their fight to save Nikola Petkov, opposition leader condemned to death in Communist-dominated Bulgaria.

Within a week of a second Soviet refusal to join in a review of the case, the two western nations dispatched new protests to the Kremlin over the Petkov conviction, and Bulgarian suppression of his Agrarian Party. Petkov was accused of plotting against the regime.

Sending of the notes last weekend was disclosed yesterday by the State Department and the British Foreign Office. The two nations, together with Russia, form an Allied Control Commission which still manages Bulgaria. However, the Commission must act unanimously if the Petkov case is to be reviewed.

This Russia's representative refused to do, and Moscow backed him by expressing confidence in Bulgarian courts, and saying that there should be no "unwarranted interference" with Bulgaria's internal affairs.

The United States note, delivered Saturday after Russia's turndown, termed Petkov's trial "scandalous," and charged abolition of the Agrarian Party by Bulgaria's Parliament was part of a "repressive campaign" against the principal opposition group.

It accused the Soviet Union of violating its agreement with the United States and Britain under the Yalta Pact for the development of democracy in the Balkans.

In London, the Foreign Office said Britain has charged, in a new note to Russia, that political freedom is being destroyed in Bulgaria, and has repeated its demand for consultation on the death sentence imposed on Petkov.

New Bread Ration Sets Off Wave Of French Strikes

Paris, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—A three-day-old wave of "bread strikes" rolled through the provinces today and threatened to engulf Paris in a general strike by Friday—the day that Socialist Premier Paul Ramadier stakes his government on a vote of confidence.

The strikes, called to protest the government's 20 per cent cut in the bread ration to 200 grams daily and the steadily mounting cost of living, ranged from brief protest walkouts to full-scale work stoppages.

Ramadier early today asked for a vote of confidence on his coal subsidies program.

[With the pledged support of his own Socialist Party and that of Foreign Minister Georges Bidault's Popular Republican Movement (MRP), it seemed likely, on paper at least, that Ramadier would in a 30-vote confidence majority.]

Dutch Casualties 400 Since 'Truce'; 26 Clashes in Day

Batavia, Java, Aug. 3 (AP).—The Dutch in a communique today reported 26 clashes with Indonesian forces and said increasingly large Republican units were being committed to action in organized attacks that were becoming bolder daily.

The Dutch said their casualties since the August 5 cease-fire order now totaled more than 400, including 106 killed.

Consuls General Etienne Raux of France and Charles Eaton of Australia, flew to Jogjakarta, capital of the Indonesian republic, on a United Nations-sponsored mission of supervising the cease-fire order from the Republican side.

French, Dutch and American reporters were refused permission by the Netherlands Indies government to accompany the mission.

U. S., Italy Sign Accord on Troops

Rome, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—The United States and Italy today signed an accord providing for the evacuation of 15,000 American troops from Italy during the 90-day period following ratification of the Italian peace treaty.

Ratification will become effective on the day the Big Four instruments of ratification are deposited in Paris.

Five thousand American troops will remain behind to join with 5000 British and 5000 Yugoslavs in forming the military force of the international zone of Trieste.

Hungarian Social Democrats Vote to Remain in Coalition

By Kingsbury Smith

Budapest, Sept. 3 (INS).—The leadership of Hungary's Social Democratic Party revealed tonight that it is willing to remain in a coalition government with the Communists if the Social Democrats receive increased power.

The decision to bargain with the Communists, victors in Sunday's national election, was reached at a special meeting of the Social Democratic Party chiefs.

The meeting elected William Boehm, Hungarian envoy to Sweden who at present is in Budapest, as acting head of the party in place of Arpad Szakasits.

Offered Ministries

Boehm told a later meeting of Social Democratic representatives that negotiations will be conducted with the Communists with a view to assuring the Social Democrats an effective voice in a new government.

The Communists already have offered the Social Democrats the ministries of foreign affairs, education and justice.

But the Social Democrats want the Interior Ministry post which would enable them to curb Communist action and control the police.

(Reuters said it was learned that several opposition groups, including Zoltan Pfeiffer's Independence Party, will petition for an annulment of Sunday's election, which the Communists have been accused of "stealing." The petition will allege large-scale violations of the electoral law.)

Confer With Sviridov

The policy committee of the Social Democrats was understood to be giving special attention to the "advice" offered by Lieut. Gen. V. P. Sviridov, acting chief of the Allied Control Council and commander of Russian troops in Hungary.

General Sviridov, apparently acting on his own, has had three separate meetings with leaders of the Social Democratic Party. These leaders threaten to withdraw from the coalition government because of the elections.

General Sviridov's latest move was to summon Anatole Ban, second ranking leader of the Social Democratic Party to a conference.

Reports are current in political circles that the general told Ban that the Social Democrats must not bolt the coalition.

'Mistakes' Admitted

Members of the Social Democrat Party told the Associated Press General Sviridov had asked dissident party leaders not to break their alliance with the Communists, "because it would produce an anarchy the same as at the end of the last war."

[The party leaders were represented as "not satisfied."

[Sviridov reportedly told the Social Democratic leaders yesterday he was "aware there has been slight mistakes" in the election and that he would speak to Laszlo Rajk, a leading Communist and Minister of Interior, about correcting the mistakes.]

Party Leader Arrested

London, Sept. 3 (INS).—The arrest of Istvan Szolmoky, leader of the moderate wing of the Smallholder's Party, by Hungarian political police was reported tonight by Reuters from Budapest.

The group headed by Szolmoky had called for a strong party declaration against election abuses by the Communists.

The arrest was the first action taken by Communist Minister of Interior Rajk gainst elements of the Smallholders seeking to break away from Communist control.

The dispatch said Szolmoky was seized in the Lake Balaton area while visiting his wife, who is expecting a baby.

Pope, Taylor Confer

Rome, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Pope Pius XII and Myron C. Taylor, President Truman's special diplomatic envoy, conferred for 35 minutes today at the Pope's summer home at Castelgandolfo.

Wide Reforms Are Promised Soon in China

Nanking, Sept. 3 (AP).—Economic and political reforms will be the No. 1 news story in China the next few months, the government's director of information told reporters today.

"There is continuous planning on high levels with a view to improveing the administration of the country," said Hollington Tong, but he cautioned: "We must not expect overnight results. Suspend judgment while these tasks are still in progress."

Tong said the government, fearing widespread famine because of summer floods, drought and hailstorms, had appropriated 84,000,000,000 yen for relief and rehabilitation.

The Central Bank of China lowered the open market rate 500 points today to 37,500 yen to $1, selling, and 38,500 to $1, buying.

Of the military situation, Tong declared that government forces were tightening a cordon around 20,000 Communist troops in the Honan-Hopeh-Anhwei border region. The troops, under wily Gen. Lieu Po-cheng, had driven to within 50 miles of Hankow after rampaging through the border area.

Navy Sets Trial in Rape Of Petty Officer's Wife

Pearl Harbor, Sept. 3 (AP).—A Navy courtmartial is scheduled to convene on Johnston Island, September 10, to try a Negro enlisted man accused of the July 17 rape of a chief petty officere's wife.

Navy sources said the chief and his wife, both white, participated in a drinking bout with the defendant prior to the alleged attack. Their identity was not disclosed.

Calcutta Riots Subsiding as Gandhi Fasts

New Delhi, Sept. 3 (AP).—Moslems and Hindus persisted in killing each other today in scattered sections of Pakistan and India, but some improvement was noted in Calcutta, where Mohandas K. Gandhi ended his third day of fast in protest against the bloodletting.

Gandhi's personal physican, D. K. Mehta, reported that Gandhi's general condition was "definitely lower than yesterday." An earlier bulletin described him as "cheerful though weak."

A communique said there was "sustained improvement" in Calcutta, although the police and military killed 12 persons in attempts to halt rioting and looting, and eight others were slain in stray assaults. The injured totaled more than 100.

At Karachi, capital of Pakistan, it was announced 15 persons had been killed at various places in the northwest frontier province.

Only one stabbing incident was reported in Bombay and police believed the situation there was under control.

In Lahore high officials estimated the number of refugees from the riot-torn Punjab at two million.

[The United Press said the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan agreed today that the only way to end the Hindu-Sikh-Moslem war in the Punjab which already has cost tens of thousands of lives, is to embark on a mass migration.

[Jawaharlal Nehru, Prime Minister of India, and Nawabzada Liaquat ali Khan, Prime Minister of Pakistan, agreed to urge their governments to start the migration of more than two million persons next week. Moslems would be moved to Pakistan from the eastern Punjab and Hindus and Sikhs would be moved to India from the western area.]

South Africa Accused

Lake Success, Sept. 3 (AP).—India charged today that efforts of the United Nations Assembly to stop anti-Asiatic acts in South Africa have only intensified racial prejudices and discriminatory practices there.

India's report will be placed before the General Assembly September 16.

The 1946 Assembly, recognizing that friendly relations between India and South Africa were impaired as the result of conditions affecting nationals of Indian origin in the Union, called upon the two governments to negotiate and rectify the situation. Both were asked to report to the 1947 Assembly.

South Africa's report was expected shortly.

India accused South Africa of refusing to comply with the U. N. recommendations.

Near Famine Seen In Russians' Zone

Letter Discloses Lack of Necessities Available to Germans

Frankfurt, Sept. 3.—There is reportedly a serious food crisis within the Russian zone of occupation. The following is from a letter from a German doctor to his family in the American zone written from an industrial town in the neighborhood of Dresden.

"My food used to be very little. Now, owing to the last catastrophic drought we have a real famine. Last week we got our whole bread ration in brown bread, 50 grams of 'coffee,' a half a liter of vinegar, and half a pound of onions instead of potatoes. Try to cook with these ingredients for one week. The people have become terribly thin or swollen with hunger.

"We have neither vegetables nor fruit, and people eat nettles and all sorts of awful herbs that they can find. There won't be any coal for the winter and electricity usually does not come on before 10 o'clock in the evening.

"There are no materials for clothing on sale and of course no shoes. I have nothing but my ragged suit.

"During my annual holiday I made a paste of coal dust and water, poured it into molds and left these cakes to dry in the sun in order to have some fuel this winter. These coal cakes are of no great value but I managed to make 500 of them and that is better than nothing. But what a muddle!".

Official American military government reports issued in Berlin, say the influx of Germans who cross from the Russian to the American zone illegally continues at a high rate. The majority say they fled because they were hungry.

Million Rakeoff

Major Says He Shared in Italy Graft

Trieste, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—American Army Maj. E. H. Richardson admitted in a statement introduced at the trial of five Trieste civilians today that he had shared indirectly in an estimated one million dollar rake-off from the parceling out of public works contracts here.

Richardson said he had never received Italian lire, in which civilian defendants allegedly were paid. Instead, he said, his share was converted by a subordinate into Swiss francs or dollars.

Former chief of the military government public works section, Richardson will be tried later.

The major said he had heard that graft was going on in his section but his assistants always gave him satisfactory explanations when he queried them.

Richardson said an American engineering firm opened an account for him in a Knoxville, Iowa, bank under the name of Edward Harvey—his first names, as a "token of gratitude for advice offered by him and in view of his personal friendship with the company president."

Defendant Angelo Ricci, a subordinate of Richardson, admitted taking brides and said Richardson had first reprimanded him but later reluctantly accepted a cut himself.

Miroslava Staukelj, an attractive Yugoslav girl, who said she was Richardson's secretary, declared she had received several gold watches, jewelry and money from contractors and from Ricci. One firm opened a $1200 account for her in the United States, she added.

GRANDDAUGHTER'S WELCOME—State Secretary George C. Marshall, who, only Tuesday, was 4710 air miles away in Rio de Janeiro, gets a hug from granddaughter, Katherine Winn, 4, at Washington National Airport. Marshall arrived yesterday aboard the presidential plane, "Independence," referred to in Rio dispatches as the "Flying White House" moved along briskly inspecting the various orchids that dot the mountainside.

General Speaks to Guards

Mr. Truman was amused when he and General Graham encountered Brazilian sentries upon their return to the embassy residence, and the general—a veteran of the Battle of the Bulge—spoke to them sharply in German.

Something in Graham's tone or recognition of the President persuaded the sentries to let them through, much to the relief of the Secret Service men.

After his return to the embassy the President resumed work on the speech he will deliver to the Brazilian Congress Friday afternoon, and studied the reaction in the South American press to his speech yesterday before the Inter-American Conference.

Reds See United States Threat

In Paris the Communist newspaper L'Humanite said the only statement "worth remembering" in Mr. Truman's speech was the "one that emphasizes American strength to assure stability in the world."

The newspaper added that "one might ask him (Mr. Truman) what he thinks of a stability maintained by the permanent intervention of American finance in numerous Latin-American states, characterized by countless coups, palace revolutions and civil wars. We prefer the stability of the true democracy, national independence and peace with mutual respect."

Genevieve Tabouis, a commentator in France Libre, Paris newspaper, saw in the speech "the first act in an American plan to demand that the United Nations send" symbolic contingents to guard Greek frontiers.

"Washington is convinced that the USSR would not dare recommend to Marshal Tito and the Bulgarian Premier Georgi Dimitrov to attack an international contingent, which would naturaly lead to a severe reply, if not war," the commentator added.

successful" and likely to have results of "great importance not only to the Western Hemisphere but to the world at large," he said:

"We had not only a great organization but we had a splendid team. The results were better than I had hoped."

Marshall's satisfaction over the treaty was echoed by Vandenberg, who told newsmen:

"We have effectively succeeded in re-establishing an enthusiastic Pan-American unity."

Vandenberg declared the conference has "set the world a pattern" on how great and small nations may live together in peaceful harmony."

Austin said the treaty represented many achievements but added that he wanted to note three important points. These were, he said:

1. An overall mutual assistance pact of "one for all and all for one" containing an absolute obligation.

2. The formal treaty of assistance covers all powers with the exception that no power can be compelled to use force.

3. In all kinds of aggression there shall be consultation to determine which means are to be used to preserve the peace of the Americas.

Austin also said he wished to pay tribute to the "great leadership we had in General Marshall."

First Tucker Autos Expected Next Month

Chicago, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Preston Tucker, president of the Tucker Automobile Co., said today that the firm's first cars would be off the assembly lines next month.

Maximum production of 1000 automobiles a day will be reached by March, 1948, he said.

European Crisis Is Growing Past All U. S. Expectations

"oriented" himself. But several other members of the Senate and House said they would be willing to have a special session if necessary.

Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) said he would be ready for a special session when the State Department was ready to submit a complete Marshall Plan for the reconstruction of Europe.

Senator Hatch (D., N. Mex.), said "Congress should be in session to meet any crisis whenever and wherever it arises. If we were in special session now, we might be of some help in heading it off."

Asks Program First

Senator Flanders (R., Vt.), said he would be "happy to come back," but that no special session should be called "until the State Department has a clear program in mind."

Only Senator Revercomb (R., W. Va.), of those who commented, said he saw no reason at this time for calling a special session, since "I do not know what new crisis exists in Europe that has not been existing for a year or more."

It was by no means clear yesterday whether a special session, even if called as early as November 1, could act in time to avert desperate hardship from cold and hunger in Europe this winter.

The last relief grant to needy countries (the 350 million dollar program finally approved this summer) took more than five months to pass through Budget Bureau hearings, congressional committee hearings, floor debates and Senate-House conferences.

The emergency grants needed now will be much larger, according to all accounts, quite apart from the long-term reconstruction grants or loans forseen under the Marshall Plan.

Lovett's picture of the situation yesterday was dark and grim. He said American missions abroad had been reporting an increasing rate of urgency in Europe's need. He described it as a critical situation which would have to be faced sooner rather than later—sooner than many independent observers had thought necessary.

Although he declined to comment on the British sterling-dollar crisis and its effects, he talked freely about the natural disasters that had afflicted Britain and the rest of Europe this year.

It has been estimated, he said, that Britain's hard winter cost her more than 800 million dollars.

U. S. Weighing Trade Effects

mestic "pipe lines" are becoming filled. If a surplus piles up and domestic demand drops off, lower prices may be in prospect. Exports of cotton totaled $80,500,000 in May but only $67,500,000 in June; wool textiles $5,900,000 in May, $4,900,000 in June, and rayon textiles $28,300,000 in May against $21,900,000 in June.

FOOD—England announced it would stop buying American foodstuffs and buy only from "sterling countries." Washington immediately said that grain allocated to England would be kept in the general export pool for use in any emergency, thus leaving the supply available to the American consumer just where it was. Exports of unprocessed foods dropped from $80,000,000 in May to $56,800,000 in June and of processed foods from $144,500,000 in May to $137,400,000 in June.

COTTON—Britain has been buying for its large textile industry the cotton of Brazil, India and Egypt whenever possible and is expected to buy even less American cotton next year than this.

AUTOMOBILES — Industry spokesmen said exports have been around 5 per cent of production. Even if all exports ceased, the industry's backlog of orders for passenger cars is so big that it would not be felt for many months. Prices, they added, would not be affected. In May new cars valued at $35,400,000 were exported and in June the value dropped to $27,400,000.

USED CARS—There was a sharper drop in the exportation of used cars—from $2,754,000 in May to $1,061,000 in June. In this field, too, automobile spokesmen insisted that the domestic demand was strong enough to keep prices up for months no matter what happened to the export business.

MACHINERY—In spite of a huge world-wide need for machinery replacements, U. S. exports dropped from $145,300,000 in May to $109,500,000 in June. Shortage of dollars abroad was blamed by the industry, since machinery remained on the "essential" lists of most countries.

STEEL—Also remained on the "essential" lists, and will be put back on a licensing basis by the Government October 1 to allocate it to the countries most needing it. Steel mill products exported in May were valued at $36,400,000 and in June at $32,700,000. Iron and steel "advanced manufactures" were put at $24,500,000 in May and $23,800,000 in June.

lion tons and the Ruhr from 86 million tons to 121 million tons.

The United States will be expected to supply western Europe with 40 million tons of coal next year, Serreulles said, he added that during 1951 the most that might be imported from the United States would be about 1 per cent of total needs, or about six million tons, assuming that other imports could not make up this deficit.

The secretary general cautioned also that all of the coal estimates in question are based on industrial needs and not household uses.

He listed the diminishing coal deficit for western Europe as an estimated 59 million tons in 1948; 50 million tons in 1949; 42 million tons in 1950, and 37 million tons in 1951. He said that starting around 1949 these deficits could probably be made up largely without American coal imports.

decide what is done with the American gold cache.

Snyder, aboard the Queen Elizabeth, on which he sailed for London, dropped his jovial attitude when asked for comment on the Bevin statement. After considerable reflection, his observation was, "That's a United States matter."

Snyder said that "under no circumstance" would the proposal be placed on the agenda of the International Bank and Monetary Fund Conference which he will attend in London.

[Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) of the Senate Banking Committee conceded that Bevin "has a good case if he can suggest some fair and equitable way of distributing the gold." Flanders added:

["It is true that the gold is doing no good. I can't see, however, how it can be distributed without just giving it away."]

[Representative Hays (D. Ark.), House Banking Committee member, agreed with Flanders in part. He said: "If, after a careful economic study, we find that we can be making better use of the gold than storing it underground and if it would contribute to the recovery of the free nations of the world, it might be advisable to work out a plan for its redistribution."]

Under the law, the United States Treasury must buy all the gold offered to it at $35 an ounce. It can sell it at the same price.

Treasury records put the Nation's gold reserves at $21,766,000,000, of which about $12,500,000,000 is stored in underground vaults at Fort Knox. The rest is held in mints, assay offices and Federal Reserve banks.

Sullivan Scored for Injecting Politics Into Foreign Policy

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Congressional Republicans last night hit back at Democratic charges of GOP "stumbling and bumbling" on domestic issues and "obstructionism" on foreign policy.

Representative Clarence Brown (Ohio), chairman of the executive committee of the Republican National Committee, singled out Gael Sullivan, executive director of the Democratic National Committee, in rebuttal.

He said Sullivan, who conducted a Tuesday night coast-to-coast Democratic rally, "rendered a definite and serious disservice to the Nation by trying to inject partisan politics into the subject of foreign policy."

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) accused Democrats of getting the 1948 campaign off to a premature start, adding: "The country would be a lot better off if they would quit campaigning for a while."

Another Senate Republican freshman, however, urged members of his party to "stop fighting Democrats" and "start trying to do a better job." Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.) cited public-opinion polls showing a drop in GOP popularity and said he accepted them at face value.

"I'm getting awfully tired of these 'Who done it' investigations," said Flanders. "Instead of trying to find the villain I think we should try to do a better job as a party."

The Vermonter, second Senate Republican this week to criticize his party, said he felt Republican policy was not followed by the House last session and only partly followed in the Senate.

As head of a Joint Congressional Price Investigating Subcommittee, he is about to launch hearings in the East.

The other party critic was Senator Raymond E. Baldwin (R., Conn.), author of the price investigation resolution. In a magazine interview Tuesday, Baldwin said he felt Old Guard "inner circle" leadership threatened Republican prospects in 1948.

GOP Gets Half Hour to Reply

A Republican National Committee spokesman told reporters the American Broadcasting Co. had offered the GOP a half hour to reply to the Democrats. He said the offer was accepted but no time had been set for the GOP broadcast.

In other political developments:

1. Lieut. Gov. Joe R. Hanley of New York, back in Albany after a two-week Midwestern trip, said Gov. Thomas E. Dewey is "very much in the lead at the present time" for the 1948 Republican presidential nomination.

2. Representative Noah M. Mason (R., Ill.) said Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, about to launch a Far-Western speaking tour, was the "outstanding" GOP candidate. He said the issue would be "our American enterprise system" versus "Truman and New Deal Socialism."

3. Senator McCarthy said he found sentiment "everywhere" for Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, adding: "Of course I find Dewey and Taft sentiment, too."

Ike's Brother Denies Report

4. Milton Eisenhower, president of Kansas State College at Manhattan, Kans., denied published reports that he had been offered the post of Secretary of Agriculture if Clinton P. Anderson resigned. Anderson has been mentioned as a possible successor to Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan.

Representative Brown, who is expected to direct Senator Taft's campaign for the presidential nomination, issued his blast at Sullivan through the Republican National Committee.

Brown termed the executive director of the Democrats "our leading exponent of the hoof-in-mouth technique of politics."

He accused Sullivan's office of preparing the script used by Senator Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.) in Tuesday's Democratic broadcast.

GOP Cooperated, Brown Says

Myers said the President was up against "pipsqueak partisan congressional obstructionism in his handling of foreign policy and of the fateful problem of atomic energy control."

Said Brown: "The voice was the voice of Myers but the words were unmistakably the words of Sullivan."

Recalling that Sullivan received a White House spanking when early this session he proposed a joint statement by the major parties foreswearing partisanship on foreign policy, Brown accused him of "bull-in-a-china-shop" tactics.

"President Truman well knows and has publicly admitted that during the session of Congress recently adjourned he received wholehearted cooperation on foreign policy from the Republican majorities in the Senate and House. He got everything he asked for in that field and the same applies to the field of atomic energy control."

Tells How GOP Met Pledges

Senator McCarthy accused Democrats of "conducting their 1948 campaign throughout the last session of Congress, making the Republican task that much more difficult."

"Against odds, we did a good job of fulfilling our pledges," said McCarthy. "Despite Democratic opposition, we reduced the costs of government. We enacted sensible labor legislation. A Democratic campaign immediately impaired its effectiveness. We showed taxes could be cut and twice passed bills to do it. Two presidential vetoes prevented either from becoming law."

On-Farm Training for GI's Starts as Law Takes Effect

A program of combined "on-farm" and classroom training of future farmers under the GI bill as ordered by Congress last session, was put into effect yesterday by the Veterans' Administration.

Last summer Gen. Omar Bradley, Veterans' administrator, ruled that on-the-job farm trainees who were spending most of their time away from schools could not be considered full-time trainees, and were not qualified for subsistence allowances.

Protests against the ruling resulted in enactment of Public Law 377, setting up "institutional on-farm training" which provides for at least 200 hours of classroom instruction a year for each trainee at an accredited educational or training institution.

The veteran also must receive at least 100 hours a year of individual instruction—half of it on the farm.

Veterans in a full-time institutional on-farm training course may receive subsistence allowances not exceeding $175 a month if they have no dependents, or $200 for those with dependents.

A veteran who wants to enter such training will apply directly to an approved institution, which will determine the course and type of training the veteran needs for the size and character of his farm.

The Veterans' Administration will pay the same scale of tuition and instruction fees charged all other students in a similar course, and will pay for books and incidental supplies, but not for farm equipment of farm operation supplies.

ALL beef sold at Safeway is U. S. Government graded
Um-m-m! Beef Stew made with Safeway's tender, well aged stew meat is a treat to smack your lips over!
ALL our beef is scientifically aged
...but that alone couldn't make possible Safeway's guarantee

1. A big step in our Guaranteed Meats plan is proper aging. Like famous chefs insist on, we hold all our meats the full number of days needed to bring out peak flavor and tenderness. It's done in special aging rooms at our Central Meat Plant

2. But before aging can mean much the meat must be fine quality to start with. For this unique meat service Safeway buys nothing less than the top government grades of beef*... nothing less than the top grades of lamb, pork and veal. We start with meat that's right for good eating

3. Then comes cutting... a scientific trimming of Safeway bulk cuts which removes excess bone, fat and waste. This waste-free trimming—at our central plant and at the Safeway market—is done before your meat is weighed. It saves you money

4. All set to please, Safeway meats are sent to market in refrigerated trucks, packed in sterilized boxes. Temperature controls protect their goodness at every step. In all that makes meat good to eat we guarantee our Safeway meats to please you ... every single time!

Enjoy your Meat eating under this simple guarantee
- Cook and serve any cut or kind of Safeway meat the way you prefer it
- Eat it all up... judge the tenderness, juiciness and flavor
- If you don't like it—for any reason whatsoever—we will give all your money back, without return of the meat!

(Note: This guarantee holds good on ALL meat purchases at Safeway markets.)

SAFEWAY GUARANTEED MEATS

*Lots of folks these days can't have top quality meats as often as they like—so Safeway markets are making available medium grade beef. This meat is separately displayed and priced lower.

Suarez Rules Quito After Revolt Wins

Ibarra, However, Denies He Resigned And Declares He Will Return

Quito, Ecuador, Sept. 3 (AP).—A victorious counter-revolutionary government seated itself firmly in power in Ecuador today after a turbulent 10 days in which two chiefs of state were forcibly ousted from office.

The government of Dr. Mariano Suarez Veintimilla made it plain the door was closed to the return of President Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra, who was forced out 10 days ago by Col. Carlos Mancheno. Suarez led the forces which overthrew Mancheno yesterday in a counter-revolution.

[The United Press said two provisional governments appeared active in Ecuador, the civilian one of Suarez in Quito and a military one of Maj. Sergio Enrigue Giron at Ambato.

[Enrique Giron, commander of the second military zone, refused to recognize the new Quito regime.]

(Velasco Ibarra, en route by plane to Ecuador, arrived late today in Santiago, Chile, from Argentina where he had fled into exile.)

(In a brief radio speech at the Santiago airport, Velasco Ibarra declared "I did not resign and I am returning to the country . . ."

("I did not abandon the post," he told newsmen. "I was obliged to leave under threat. They took me in a tank to Colombia. I did not see Mancheno. It was the soldiers who forced me to go to Colombia.")

County Rental Board Named

gomery County War Bond sales committee and a member of the Rotary Club.

Rhees E. Burket of 9520 Riley rd., Silver Spring, an architect. Burket was recently reelected president of the Montgomery County Civic Federation. He owns his own home.

Emanuel F. Zalesak of 7410 Baltimore blvd., College Park, operator of the Varsity Grill. Zalesak, who is a councilman-at-large in College Park, owns his own home, as well as the restaurant.

The board is empowered to recommend:

1. That rent control be lifted in all or parts of the area.
2. That the "general rent level" be raised or lowered.
3. Specific decisions on landlord-tenant cases.

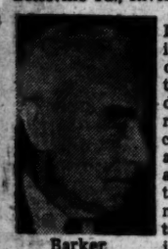
The recommendations are made to the area rent director, Walter R. Heath, who is given 30 days to approve or disapprove them. If disapproved, Creedon has final powers, although he has said he plans to refrain from interceding.

Barker Affirms Impartiality

Mayor Barker, an attorney, is the general counsel of the Independent Trade Association of Prince Georges County, a trustee of the Riverdale schools and on the board of management of the Prince Georges County YMCA.

Barker declared emphatically that he is "on nobody's side." He said that he doesn't "know of any areas ready to be decontrolled" nor of any areas in which a general rent increase is now warranted, although he is "willing to listen to claims" on the matters.

The three-term mayor of Riverdale owns his own home at 4415 Colesville rd., Riverdale, Md.



Barker

Governor Lane, reached in Annapolis, declared that there "was no disposition on my part to exclude representatives of tenants." He said the recommendations for the board "came in from different sources and I put together what I thought would be a fair representation."

The Governor said he knew only one man personally—Mullikin—whom he believed "will represent the interests of the small homeowner."

He declared that he had sought to recommend a "representative group of citizens and fair-minded people. If a mistake has been made—and they are inappropriately named—I will ask the Housing Expediter if he wants a change made.

"I had no thought of trying to stack this thing," the Governor said, emphatically.

Zalesak for Small Hike

Zalesak said that although he knew of no particular areas ready for decontrol, he believed a "small general increase is justified" and would seek "decontrol as soon as possible."

Hewitt, who is now building 12 homes in Silver Spring for sale in addition to operating rentals, said he did not think "it's fair to increase some who signed 15 per cent leases and not the others."

Howat said many of those who come to the District from Virginia could park near the Pentagon and take the bus across the river. "There are plenty of places to park," he concluded.

"Most people respect the situation that the roads near the shrine should be for the tourists," he said, "and we have had no complaints so far."

Dies in Ambulance

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 3 (AP).—W. A. Burkholder, 53, a machinist at the Western Maryland Railroad shops here, died en route to the Montgomery County Hospital in a police ambulance yesterday. Patrolman Harold Kiser said Burkholder collapsed on the sidewalk.

before some judge who is not a member of the same court." He said he had "no doubt that Judge Raedy would receive a fair trial and an impartial and unbiased decision according to the law and evidence by any judge of this court."

He pointed out, however, that "Ellen K. Raedy is an associate judge of this court and each of the judges thereof has had long standing personal and official contacts with her."

Judge Clagett's appointment is to "act temporarily . . . for the purpose of being subject to assignment by the Chief Judge of this court to the trial and disposition of all matters in connection" with the Raedy case.

Judge Raedy has steadfastly denied that she was the driver of her car the night it struck the parked car. She has named a former New York newspaperman, Edward Emerson, as the driver, but he has not been located.

The charge against her climaxed several days' investigation and witness-questioning by Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King.

Conviction of the leaving after colliding charge carries maximum penalty of $100 fine or 30 days in jail, or both.

U. S. Should 'Divide' Gold, Bevin Claims

Southport, England, Aug. 3 (AP).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin tossed out the suggestion in an extemporaneous address to the British Trade Union Congress today that the United States divide up "the Fort Knox gold" to "increase the purchasing power of the devastated areas of the world."

The United States now has $21,765,000,000 worth of gold, about three-fifths of the known world stocks.

In his address to the representatives of 6,000,000 union workers, Bevin also asked:

1. A last-ounce production drive to close Britain's current 372,000,000 pound $488,000,000) gap between yearly exports and imports and to enable him "to change the foreign policy of Europe."

2. Formation of an empire customs union to parallel the government's plan for the socialized development of the colonies.

More Miners Walk Out

Bevin made his appeal for more gold and coal to solve the economic crisis amid a widening wildcat strike of Yorkshire coal causing a critical loss of 60,000 tons of badly needed coal a day. Workers from 15 more pits joined the walkout today.

The strike was conceded to be the most serious in the Labor Government's two years in office. Already 2400 midlands plants—steel works and woolen mills—were down to a week's coal supply.

The strike started three weeks ago with refusal of the workers in one pit to hew a new agreed "stint" of 23 instead of 21 feet of coal face a day.

Bevin's gold distribution proposal caught both Treasury and Foreign Office officials in London by surprise.

British officials would not comment without first conferring with the foreign secretary, and Bevin could not be reached for elaboration.

Criticizes "Hoarding"

Bevin brought up the subject by declaring, "We have got to settle this balance of payments business in the world or it will be in constant chaos."

He then went on:

"There are ways of settling it. I know these Americans will be upset, but I have got to upset somebody. My own conviction is that she has handicapped herself and caused high taxation in her own country by failure to redistribute the Fort Knox gold. . . . It is doing nothing. I am quite sure that is one of the readiest ways to assist in increasing the purchasing power of the devastated areas of the world."

U. S. Must Buy More Or Sell Less, Cripps Says

London, Sept. 3 (AP).—The United States must buy more or it will sell less, Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the board of trade, told the visiting United States congressional committee on foreign aid here last night.

The committee of 18 is led by Representative Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.).

[The London Evening Standard, published by Lord Beaverbrook, charged today that the convertibility clause in the Anglo-American loan agreement had been responsible for "giving away" half the $3,750,000,000 loan to Egypt, Argentina and Brazil.

[Staff Writer Bernard Harris said experts had dug out the facts after Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton refused to divulge where the dollars had gone.

["(Half the loan) drained away to other countries for them to spend on goods they want," the article said.]

Truman Insulted

British Jeer AFL Critic Of Russians

Southport, England, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—A visiting American who attacked Russia and a British Labor leader who blasted President Truman were shouted down by the Trade Union congress conference today.

Richardson

George J. Richardson of Washington, D. C., of the Fire Fighters Association of America, who brought greetings from the American Federation of Labor, was interrupted twice by jeers an finished his address only after the chairman appealed for the right of free speech.

The Briton, I. McGree, representing the Amalgamated Society of Wood Workers, told the conference he would rather have "intelligent and scientific exchange with the Soviet Union for the food and timber that are there for us than to have to go to America, cap in hand, begging for dollars.

"If there is one shred of honesty left in President Truman," McGree said, "he ought to climb the Statue of Liberty to move the torch of liberty and replace it with three brass balls."

Jeer Attack on Kremlin

The conference shouted him down and he was unable to continue.

Richardson was greeted by jeers when he said that "we in the United States will allow no foreign power or state to interfere with our internal affairs or impose upon us any particular type of proletarian paradise.

"American labor and the American people have only the highest regard for the Russian people. But the present difficulties are due entirely to the Kremlin's violation of every agreement it made to guarantee independence."

"No, no. Get off the stage. Throw him out," the crowd shouted.

Chairman George W. Thompson intervened.

"We honor free speech in this country," he said. "He is your guest here. We are bound to give him the courtesy of a hearing. The council disagrees profoundly with what he says, but he has the right to express his views."

Think Negroes Still Slaves

When the uproar died down, Richardson continued, but not for long.

"We believe in the elimination of slave labor," he said.

"What about the Negroes?" the crowd shouted, again forcing Richardson to stop.

Later, another clamor greeted his reference to Russia's "solid refusal to cooperate in world reconstruction and stubborn rejection of every attempt at effective international control of atomic energy."

"Don't come here to insult Russia," the delegates yelled.

Richardson was presented with a Congress gold medal and a gold watch, customary gifts to a visiting delegate.

In making the presentation amid laughter and applause, Thompson said that "we are taking the greetings of Mr. Richardson from the American Federation of Labor, but not necessarily his views on other matters."

Russian Failure To Provide Space Delays Consulate

Opening of an American consulate in Leningrad has been delayed more than two months by what diplomatic officials described yesterday as Russian failure to provide office space and living quarters there.

These officials told a reporter that no progress has been made on the consular project, to which Russian agreement was announced by the State Department in mid-June.

G. Frederick Reinhardt, first secretary and consul in the American Embassy at Moscow has been designated consul general at Leningrad. He told Russian authorities after he visited the city several weeks ago that he would like to have a building combining office and residential space for himself and his assistants. But to date he is still in Moscow waiting for the Soviets to complete arrangements.

In the Russian capital itself, negotiations have been underway for more than a year to obtain additional space for expansion of the embassy staff.

National Ads in Papers Reach Record Volume

New York, Sept. 3 (AP).—National advertisers are spending at the record rate of $350,000,000 annually in daily newspapers despite the continued shortage of newsprint, the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, estimated today.

The Bureau figure was based on an estimated total for the first half this year of $175,000,000, as compared with $270,000,000 in all of 1946. Previous peak was $260,000,000 in 1929.

Reds Favor U. N. Navy of Small Ships

Lake Success, N. Y., Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Russia was disclosed today to favor a United Nations police force without battleships or aircraft carriers, and considerably weaker than that proposed by the United States.

Details of the Russian plan were not disclosed immediately, but informed sources said it called for land and air forces similar in number to those suggested by Britain. A U. N. subcommittee took the Russian proposals under advisement to reconcile differences between them and estimates submitted by the other great powers.

The Soviet Union waited a year to comply with the Security Council request for estimates.

The Russian plan, it was understood, called for about six cruisers, 25 destroyers, 12 submarines and various smaller vessels.

United Nations Days' Work Summarized

Lake Success, N. Y., Sept. 3.—Today's activities of the United Nations:

(1) ATOM—President Truman announced the United States atomic Energy Commission would let foregin scientists have radioactive isotopes for research.

(2) DISCRIMINATION—India charged the Union of South Africa with ignoring last year's general assembly resolution calling for better treatment of Indians in South Africa and asked for U. N. action.

(3) COLONIES—Russia charged that the United States was providing too few physicians to care for two million natives in Puerto Rico.

(4) PALESTINE—At Zurich, Switzerland, the Zionist Action Committee voted 50 to 16 to accept the majority report of the U. N. Special Committee on Palestine.

5. BALKANS—Bulgaria has informed the Security Council that "military preparations, which constitutes a threat to our security, are taking place on the Greek side of the Bulgarian-Greek frontier."

6. TROOPS—Russia's first estimates of the armed forces nations should earmark for the United Nations were still kept secret out. Reports were that the Soviet estimate was low compared with that of Britain and the United States.

7. TRIESTE—A Security Council Subcommittee was hoping to meet informally in New York to take up the long-pending appointment of a governor for Trieste.

8. FOOD—Attempts by European nations to settle the food and agricultural organizations in Geneva failed when FAO conference there turned down proposals to abrogate a rule requiring the headquarters to be located in the same place as U. N. headquarters. Strict interpretation of the rule, which now stands, would require FAO to abandon its Washington offices and move to New York.

Nuernberg Trial Hears Farben Sought Du Pont Ties in 1937

Nuernberg, Germany, Sept. 3 (AP).—American prosecutors produced records today showing the board of the I. G. Farbenindustrie Chemical trust sent its leading salesman, George von Schnitzler, to the United States in 1937 to "strengthen relations" with E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., of Wilmington, Del.

Von Schnitzler is one of 22 officers of the combine on trial for their lives on war crimes charges.

Board meeting minutes said:

"Dr. von Schnitzler gives an account of impressions gleaned from his latest trip to America. Economic conidtions are favorable from all angles. It seems, however, that leading businessmen are not favorably disposed toward the President (Roosevelt)."

(Spokesmen for duPont, like other American businesses mentioned in the trial, have maintained that their contracts with I. G. Farbenindustrie improved the war potential of the United States, and had not lessened it.)

Other testimony was introduced linking Farbenindustrie directly with the rearmament of Germany in 1933, in volation of the Versailles Treaty.

A statement by Dr. Ernest Struss, a director, told of an order from the German air force to build a magnesium plant for manufacturing incendiary bombs.

Five Civilians Added to Faculty Of War College

The National War College, school of soldiers and diplomats, added five prominent civilian educators to its maculty yesterday.

Vice Admiral Harry W. Hill, college commandant, announced appointment of the following professors:

Arnold O. Wolfers of Yale; Rudolph A. Winnacker, University of Nebraska; John A. Morrison, University of Chicago; Thomas A. Bailey, Stanford University; John Sterling, California Institute of Technology.

The college, organized last year, instructs specially selected officers of the armed forces and State Department in the correlation of American foreign and military policies, scientific research and high-level strategy.

Used baby cribs are in heavy demand nowadays—and no one knows it better than Mrs. William Irvin of 2600 S. 16th Street, Arlington, pictured here with her 5-year-old twins, Elizabeth Anne and Jean Catherine. When the twins graduated from their cribs the other day Mrs. Irvin advertised both cribs in The Post. Did she get results? "Both cribs were sold by 9 a.m. the first morning," reports Mrs. Irvin. "People called all day—at least 15 different callers eager to buy. The ad ran on Saturday and I cancelled it immediately, but I didn't get the last reply until the following Wednesday!"
Some of those disappointed callers may still be looking for a good used crib. If YOU have one to sell, reach those people like Mrs. Irvin did, through a low-cost, result-getting ad in The Post. Place that notice now.

U. S. to Release Isotopes For Foreign Scientists' Use containing drugs; exchange of body fluids and blood flow, principally in connection with heart malfunctions; action of insulin.

Hope in Cancer Research

At St. Louis Dr. Cowdry, who, as head of the Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital was one of the earliest experimenters with radio-isotopes, declared the step "will give hope and courage to millions of people throughout the world who live in fear of cancer."

Dr. Robert S. Stone, professor of radiology at the University of California, remarked that Russia might be one of the first nations to ask for the tracer atoms. He added that Russians are doing good work in medical research, and reporting it openly.

"The advantage is likely to be ours if some foreign researchers discover the cause of cancer," Stone added.

No Plutonium or U-235

Plutonium and U-235 used in atom bombs, and other heavy radioactive materials were not included in the offer.

Foreign governments applying for isotopes must state the research purposes for which they will be used. They must further agree to make progress reports every six months for publication in American research publications.

They must also "permit qualified scientists (irrespective of nationality, to visit the institutions where the materials will be used, and to obtain information freely with respect to the purposes, methods and results of such use."

dams were completed, together with the village, at a total cost of seven million dollars before the development was abandoned. Meanwhile, the City of Eastport had invested extensively in new roads and other improvements, which left it in financial straits.

The city has backed the Quoddy training camp project vigorously as presenting a possibility of giving employment to many of its citizens. Recently press dispatches indicated an awakened interest there in the possibility that the entire power project might be resumed.

President Truman has been reported as having expressed a desire that the tide-harnessing plan be resumed and completed.

Masonic Temple Yields 1925 Will Of Senator Bilbo

Hattiesburg, Miss., Sept. 3 (AP).—Luther A. Smith, Sovereign Grand Inspector General of Scottish Rite Masonic bodies, said today that a will of the late Senator Theo G. Bilbo (D., Miss.) had been found in the Scottish Temple here.

It was dated June 10, 1925.

Smith said the document left all of Bilbo's property to his wife, from whom he later was divorced; his son, Lieut. Col. Theo G. Bilbo, jr., and his daughter, Jessie Bilbo.

It was the first disclosure that Bilbo left a will. A later document was voided when the Senator tore his signature from the paper.

The Scottish Rite official said that under the terms of the old will the wife, the son and daughter each would get one-third of Bilbo's estate, estimated to be valued at $100,000.

Storm Warning

Europe is in for another hungry winter. As Ferdinand Kuhn, jr., reported in The Washington Post yesterday, a fuel and food crisis of great severity is now considered inescapable before the Marshall Plan can possibly get under way, and is expected to persist for about six months. This country cannot prevent the crisis and cannot completely relieve it. We can, however, take steps at some small sacrifice to ourselves which will make the suffering abroad less extreme than it might otherwise become.

We can, for one thing, refrain from feeding wheat to hogs and cattle when human beings are starving for want of it. We can, as we did a year ago, refrain from wasting the abundance at our disposal; we can refrain from eating more than we need. We can refrain from using wheat recklessly for alcoholic beverages when it is desperately needed for food. We can raise the extraction rate of wheat from 70 per cent to, say, 80 per cent, darkening our milk-white bread only a little bit and making it rather more tasty and nourishing. We did all these things when famine stalked the earth last winter. There was no doubt of the American people's willingness to help in these ways as soon as the urgency of the situation was made known. The impending crisis is even more serious.

But nothing has yet been done to explain the crisis to the country. It is time, we think, for the Administration to tell the public plainly what needs to be done and to begin setting up the machinery for doing it. If we are going to ship to Europe the wheat necessary to avert outright starvation there, it will be necessary for the President to ask Congress to restore to him certain allocation powers which have now lapsed. The Government will have to have authority to take for export whatever stocks may be needed; and it must be in a position to secure boxcars and ships so that the food may reach its destination without delay. The problem calls for imagination, vigor and organization—and above all for candid dealing with the people of the United States whose participation must be recruited.

There is too much at stake to permit indifference or carelessness on the part of the United States. The pinch of hunger, it happens, is going to be felt mainly on the democratic side of the iron curtain, not on the Communist side. The countries of western Europe, the advanced countries, have highly industrialized economies and are compelled, even in ordinary times, to import food. The countries behind the iron curtain are largely agricultural and will probably have food surpluses which their directing geniuses in Moscow can allocate at will for propaganda purposes. If we are going to win the battle for men's minds, we shall have to play a generous part in helping to relieve their stomachs.

Aid From The Atom

To a world weary over the failure to agree on international control of atomic energy, President Truman's announcement that the United States now will make available radioisotopes to other countries comes as a tonic. This is the first constructive international application of the by-products of atomic energy. The benefits to mankind which may stem from wider medical and biological experimentation with radioisotopes are in themselves of tremendous importance. But of even greater significance, in our opinion, is the example this action sets in opening the door to use of atomic energy for purposes of peace. For in the race between the development of atomic energy for peace and its diversion for war, of necessity so far the military is far ahead. Here is indication that on a limited scale at least the haggling in the United Nations is not to delay further the extension of the benefits of atomic energy to people everywhere.

Essentially a radioisotope is a unit of a chemical element distinguishable from other quantities of the same element by its radioactive properties. These properties make it possible to trace the course of radioisotopes through biological and medical experiments. They enable scientists, for example, to find out exactly what happens to a certain material in the human body. The great boon which such facilities bring to medicine should be apparent. They open whole new vistas for research in such major problems as cancer and heart disease. Indeed, during the brief period that radioisotopes have been in use in private laboratories in this country important advances have been made. The American Medical Association recently awarded a prize to a doctor for his work with radioisotopes in developing a new method of treating congestive heart disease.

In no sense will the Atomic Energy Commission be giving away secrets in making radioisotopes available to other countries. Their connection with the fissionable materials of atomic energy is remote. Radioisotopes are common scientific knowledge. They were produced in minute quantities in cyclotrons before the war. The cost of such production, however, was prohibitive and acted to block their use for research. What is now at hand is basically a new method of producing radioisotopes. By manufacturing them through chain reactors, the Atomic Energy Commission can supply sufficient material for meaningful experimentation at a reasonable price.

The regulations which the Atomic Energy Commission has established for use of radioisotopes seem to us entirely adequate for the purpose. Foreign governments must agree to make progress reports to the commission every six months and to permit publication of the reports; they must insure that the radioisotopes are used for the activities approved; and they must permit scientists of every nationality to observe experiments and obtain information freely. In thus offering to the world the fruits of its science, the United States has enhanced its moral stature. It has taken a real as well as symbolic step toward the free exchange of knowledge so essential to the better life of which atomic energy can be the cornerstone.

Rail Merry-Go-Round

The nonoperating employes of the Nation's Class I railways have just been granted a pay increase of 15½ cents per hour by an arbitration board composed of representatives of the roads, the unions and the public. The Association of American Railroads estimates that this wage boost will add about 438 million dollars to annual railway operating costs. But that is not all: the Big Five operating brotherhoods have already made demands for changes in working rules that would add an estimated billion dollars to outlays and are expected shortly to seek further wage increases.

Last July the railways petitioned the ICC for an increase in freight rates averaging about 17 per cent for the country as a whole, having found that the rate increases which became effective last January provided inadequate relief from the pressure of higher wages and material costs. Recent increases in coal wages and steel prices will make further substantial additions to operating costs, and, to cap the climax, the current wage increases, announced and in prospect, will aggravate the financial plight of the railways. Just as the long delayed rate increases of last January proved to be insufficient, so the new rate demands, assuming they are granted, will be inadequate, since they were intended to offset higher costs incurred prior to June 30, leaving no room for absorption of subsequent increases. Consequently, representatives of the major railroads are considering whether to boost their rate demands, on which hearings will begin next week before the ICC, or possibly to ask for an immediate temporary increase in freight rates as an emergency measure.

In 1946 the railroads earned only 2¾ per cent on their net investment, though traffic was at record peacetime heights. Following the January rate increases, with freight traffic above 1946 levels, the net earnings of Class I roads (before interest and rentals) rose to 368 million dollars for the first six months of the year, compared to 155 million dollars in the same period of 1946. Even with this improvement the net earnings of the roads for the year ending June 30, 1947, averaged only 3.69 per cent, as compared with 2.02 per cent for the preceding year.

The financial impact of the coming wage increases can be best appreciated, however, by considering its effect on a road, such as the Pennsylvania, which reported a deficit in 1946 income after deduction of interest and rentals for the first time in a century. Although during the first six months of the present year the Pennsylvania's net operating income showed a marked improvement over 1946, it still had a deficit of nine million dollars after payment of fixed charges. It is estimated that the wage increase just granted to nonoperating employes will cost the Pennsylvania 49 million dollars yearly. Barring rate increases, therefore, the outlook is a bleak one for this particular railway system. The New York Central, another hard-pressed road that just about broke even during the first half of this year, is also faced by an equally large addition to its wages bill.

The public wants and needs improved rail service, and such improvements must be financed either out of earnings or through private investment. Unless railway earnings are sufficient to yield a fair return to the private investor, funds for the purpose will simply not be forthcoming. And, of course, the roads cannot earn enough if compelled to operate under a system of regulation that prevents them from adjusting their rate charges to allow for changes in operating costs. The really disturbing aspect of the railways' present financial plight is due not to the postwar shrinkage of earnings, which was to be expected, but to the intolerably slow-moving regulatory machinery which delays rate relief until conditions have gone from bad to worse. The result is a ceaseless merry-go-round, with the railroads vainly following but never catching up with mounting wages and material costs.

This type of regulation hamstrings our railroads and strikes at the very roots of the present system of private ownership. During the past quarter century the roads have as a whole averaged only about 3 2/3 per cent on their net investment—a period including good years and bad years. That is far from being a fair rate of return. If regulatory obstructions prevent some of our reputedly strongest roads from earning fair returns, or indeed any returns at the present time, when traffic is at record peacetime levels, something is clearly wrong. And the blame does not lie at the door of the roads. For it is the public authorities who regulate transportation that decide what the railroads will be permitted to earn.

How Red Is Hollywood?

In the Philharmonic Auditorium in Los Angeles last Tuesday night the radio discussion program called America's Town Meeting of the Air conducted what was described as a debate on the question "Is There Really a Communist Threat in Hollywood?" It was not, however, a debate so much as a contest in recrimination and personal abuse, especially between Mr. Albert Dekker, the actor, and State Senator Jack B. Tenney, and an exchange of highly rhetorical irrelevancies by all concerned, including the audience. In short, the debate got nowhere, proved nothing, and changed no one's opinion about anything.

For this it seems to us that the organizers of the debate were quite as much to blame as the participants. The question which the disputants were attempting to answer, affirmatively or negatively, was itself rhetorical. The word "threat" at least should have been specifically defined. Its original sense as a noun seems to have been merely that of a "crowd, or throng." Presently it obtained by logical extension the sense of pressure and ultimately, according to one authority, the sense of "pressure applied to the will by declaration of the harm that will follow noncompliance." Thus on an etymological basis, it seems to us, the question might have been appropriately divided as follows: (1) Are there many Communists in Hollywood? (2) Are they numerous enough or powerful enough to exert any pressure upon the wills of others, and if so upon whose wills? The nearest thing to an answer to the first question was Senator Tenney's assertion that he had in his pocket "the names and party book numbers" of Communist members of the Actors' Guild and the Hollywood Writers Mobilization and of various front organizations; but, since he did not see fit to read the names, there was no way to judge how numerous these Communists are and whether they could be said to constitute a "crowd." Mr. Emmet Lavery, one of those who undertook to argue that communism is no threat at all, admitted that there are some Communists among the Hollywood screen writers, as well as "a lot of Republicans and Democrats"; but "some," of course, is an utterly indeterminate number.

As to the second question, there was even greater confusion. Mrs. Lela Rogers said the Communists had been able to work a good deal of sly and subtle propaganda into "nonpolitical pictures"—"a character here, a line there," all clearly calculated to destroy popular confidence in American institutions, but she gave no specific examples to support this generalized assertion. Mr. Tenney, on the contrary, said that the Hollywood Communists and their sympathizers have been wholly unable to put any of their "Marxist pipe dreams" into the films, because the producers won't allow it. The effect of these statements is to cancel each other, and to leave the question unanswered, which is a great pity, for it is an extremely important one.

Sharpened Issue

The exchange of notes between the United States and Soviet Russia on the level-of-industry issue in Germany brings into sharp focus the conflicting attitudes of the two governments toward the postwar world. The Russian policy is negative and intolerant of any rehabilitation except on Moscow's terms. The American policy is broadly aimed at prompt reconstruction in Europe as a means of bolstering free governments and institutions that could not be expected to survive a prolonged period of suffering and chaos.

Russian officialdom is perturbed because Great Britain and the United States have agreed to raise the level of industrial production in the German areas occupied by their troops without waiting for Russia's acquiescence. Decisions of this sort, they contend, can be taken only by the four occupying powers in Germany. So far as this argument goes, it has the strength of the Potsdam agreement behind it. Unfortunately for the Soviet case, however, the United States has sought for two years to put into effect the provision of the Potsdam agreement which says that Germany shall be treated as a single economic unit. All other agreements as to German economic recovery were arrived at on the basis of that understanding. But Russia has blocked every effort to bring about the economic integration of the various occupation zones. That disregard of her agreement has not only retarded the recovery of Europe but has also, as pointed out in the note sent to Moscow by Acting Secretary of State Lovett, placed a heavy financial burden on the United States in the occupation of Germany.

This message makes it absolutely clear that the United States has no intention of standing by and holding its hands because the Russians refuse to take part in essential recovery measures. To do so would be to encourage the confusion, despair and suffering on which communism feeds. Our policy must be dynamic to achieve its foremost purpose.

This is a point which ought to be widely understood on this side of the Atlantic as well as in Europe. Too many Americans are falling into a sort of anti-Communistic apathy. They talk in a hostile manner toward Russia but see no necessity for the United States to assume a role of strong leadership and helpfulness in the non-Communist world. These people forget that the do-nothing policy in western Europe is Moscow's. The United States cannot possibly assume a similar attitude without playing Stalin's game. If we are going to make our influence felt for the maintenance of freedom and the restoration of economic stability in the postwar world, the course to follow is one of active helpfulness toward our democratic neighbors and not one of pious hope on one side and sterile hostility on the other.

District Welfare

I note with much interest your announcement on August 28 of the arrival of the Iranian Princess Ashraf to begin a study of our District welfare agencies.

I hope you will endeavor to give the Princess Ashraf a truly enlightening picture of our Children's Receiving Home, where we lock children in dreary basements on beautiful, sunny days to take their "recreation" because we do not have enough money allotted us by Congress to pay for overseers to guard them out on a playground. There we lock a young "criminal" into a small room with one small window, with nothing to occupy his mind or hands for hours at a time, so that he may meditate on his sins, as a means of "rehabilitation."

I hope you will see to it that she sees and appreciates the beauty of the ancient buildings with their rat-gnawed timbers and dreary interiors, where our unfortunate young are "cared for."

Do take her to see the homes we maintain for our aged and infirm and out to Gallinger Hospital and down to our jail.

Make every effort to have her spend several days with our District Welfare Department, noting how efficiently we "screen" our applicants for relief, so that we may make a "saving" of a few dollars by cutting off the desperately needed care of aged, infirm adults and helpless little children.

Perhaps you can answer her questions, which doubtless she will ask, regarding the reasons for Congress cutting down on the amount needed for our unfortunates, while not hesitating to up their own salaries so they, the men we have put in office on the Hill, may live in the style they wish to become accustomed to.

Maybe you can explain to her why our Congress has seen fit to send a delegation to Europe to observe the needy over there, via the Queen Mary and a $50,000 expense account, leaving undernourished, homeless little ones here to suffer while they take a cool ocean voyage vacation, at our expense.

"Science Policy"

Your "Science Policy" editorial of August 29 omits the fact that we are about 500 years ahead with kinetic and technical encumbrance but 500 years behind in social progress. This gives us a cultural lag almost to the time of Leif Ericson but without the physical and spiritual stamina that enabled those hardy forebears to subsist on blubber or old bones, as fate occasionally decreed.

The remedy is not more science but to make use of the science we have. Just look at the city of Washington and you have the best explanation of what I mean.

What city has worse disease-breeding, socially corrosive slums? Yet scientific progress has enabled us to build a good dwelling in a few days, as several recent features in The Washington Post told us to our everlasting shame. Within five minutes walk of Washington's magnificent railroad station the visitor is shocked to find lean-to rat-holes in which "man made in the image of God" is forced to live. Put available science to work, using its accumulated gadgetries and tear down these hideous monstrosities.

In the field of health, this surplus scientific material is especially noticeable. On any average winter day there are at least 15 million Americans afflicted with "common colds" which make them sick, unable to work, and which result in a tremendous economic loss. What has science done for the "common cold" even with its vast accumulation of kinetic junk?

When nearly 600,000 Americans die of heart disease every year, isn't it a loss of time to make these elaborate studies for more science? Why not look around our scientific lumber-rooms and see if we have not overlooked something that could remedy the conditions we see mounting with alarming speed all over the Nation?

Let's get our feet on good old USA earth in this matter of pouring out our hard-earned money on will-of-the-wisps we call "science." This science fetish is fast becoming a racket that may exceed the "take" of all the horse parlors and numbers entrepreneurs combined. We want to know what we can do with the unused science we already have before we spend any more.

"Shadow Over Greece"

After reading your editorial of August 31, "Shadow Over Greece," I want to congratulate you for putting your finger to the very root of the Greek crisis.

What you have written is true and represents the facts, only not enough. There should be a series of editorials and articles to enlighten the American public what measures the Greek government has taken, if any, to relieve the Greek people of their misery.

There should be some government control like our OPA and some form of taxation to curb the wild profiteers operating at the expense of the poor Greek people.

Unfortunately Greece today lacks the "Eleutherios Venizelos" type of a leader, Nicholas Plastiras, the "Black Horseman" (Mauros Kavaloris), hero of the Greek people of the 1920's, with Mr. Demetrios Maximos in combination with leaders of the major parties of Greece, can lead Greece out of the present chaos. One-party government in Greece wouldn't last over two weeks.

The Greek people are unpredictable, sometimes cruel, and in times of stress and national emergency, great. To lead Greeks is not an easy task. It requires the art, wisdom, sincerity, tactfulness and vision of a true leader whose primary interest is the welfare and well-being of the common man in Greece who constitutes the majority of the people.

Armenia's Claim to Independence

Foremost among the problems which the United Nations must solve if enduring peace and international justice are to become realities in our time—is the still unsettled "Armenian question."

Today, there are more than one million Armenians who are forced to live in exile because nine tenths of historic Armenia is still in the hands of Turkey. These displaced persons have now turned to the United Nations for a just settlement of their long-standing territorial claims.

The saying that "geography makes history" has never been more dramatically illustrated than in the case of Armenia. Situated between the Black and Caspian Seas, Armenia was the bridge linking the East and West, and, as a result, became the battle ground for countless hordes of predatory empires.

The Armenians were the first people in history to adopt Christianity as a national religion and they were, for centuries, the only defenders of Christian culture and civilization in the East.

Throughout the ages, the Armenians fought to maintain their homeland and preserve their freedom against Persians, Romans, Mongols and Turks. They warred with Seljuks and crossed swords with Julius Caesar and Genghis Khan. Armenia fell, at last, when the Ottoman Turks overran Asia Minor and Europe.

The centuries-long Turkish persecution of its Armenian minority finally brought about the intervention of the great powers of Europe.

The Treaty of Berlin, July 13, 1878, required Turkey to institute reforms in the Armenian provinces and to guarantee the security of the Armenian people. But the provisions of the treaty were never enforced due to international rivalries that split the European powers.

After the Balkan War, the great powers once again took up the "Armenian question." By the treaty of January 26, 1914, Turkey recognized six Armenian provinces and the Province of Trebizond as the homeland of the Armenians in Turkey. This treaty, like the previous one, remained a dead letter. The outbreak of the first World War gave Turkey the opportunity to solve the "Armenian question" by killing off the entire Armenian population.

In the single year of 1915, more than one million Armenian men, women and children were massacred.

With the defeat of Turkey in World War I, the Allied Powers decided to live up to their promise that "the liberation of Armenia is one of the war aims of the Allies." Accordingly, Article 88 of the Treaty of Sevres, 1920, which Turkey signed, reads as follows:

"Turkey recognizes Armenia as already recognized by the Allied Powers as a free independent state."

Further, by Article 89, Turkey agreed to abide by the decision of President Wilson who was authorized to draw up the boundaries between Turkey and the new Armenia. President Wilson published his decision in December, 1920.

Both the Treaty of Sevres and President Wilson's award were fated to remain paper promises only. Hardly had the ink dried on the treaty, when Turkey reoccupied the Armenian homeland, seized in addition the provinces of Kars and Ardahan, and killed some 30,000 Armenians.

Recently, the first World Armenian Congress was convened in New York City. Delegates from 22 countries of the world, representing Armenians from every walk of life, unanimously adopted a resolution appealing "to the righteous judgment of the United Nations for a final and just determination of the Armenian territorial claims, based on historical rights and solemn treaties."

Calling Washington

VIPs In Germany

BERLIN.—Between now and the middle of October, there will be scarcely a single day that a committee or a subcommittee of Congress is not looking over the shoulder of the Americans who are struggling to carry out occupation policy in Germany. Altogether nine separate congressional groups have scheduled visits both for Berlin and Frankfurt.

When it first became known that Congress intended to invade Europe en masse, Gen. Lucius D. Clay hinted to Washington that it would be highly desirable if the congressional visits could be coordinated. The American military governor for Germany believes that Americans who are prepared to learn what is really happening here, without preconception or prejudice, will discover it is essential to raise the level of industry as he has advocated for some time.

Therefore he welcomes visitors with a serious mission. But he also knows from long experience how time-consuming VIPs can be. The designation VIP for "very important persons" is a carry-over from the war to tag visitors who must be treated with deference. Naturally Congressmen come in that classification.

On balance it is probable that the majority honestly want to get the facts. They all want a personal explanation from General Clay on what he is trying to do in Germany.

A minority go for the ride and what diversion they can find along the way. In any event VIPs must be properly entertained or they are likely to depart with hurt feelings. In other words, they must be wined and dined as well as educated.

HANDLING A troupe of traveling Congressmen takes great patience and tact, both of which Clay has. But sometimes even his patience is strained to the breaking point.

One of a group visiting Berlin last year was a peripatetic woman member of Congress. She interrupted a conference in Clay's office, dealing with a serious aspect of German occupation, to demand:

"I want to know how much you spent on those draperies and this rug. As a representative of the American taxpayer, that's what I'm interested in."

The general explained that the draperies and the rug had been requisitioned from the Germans. They had cost the taxpayer nothing. The conference was resumed.

VIP's are often sensitive souls. A wandering Congressman, unattached to any committee, recently visited the coal mines at Essen. He flew into a pet when, through some hitch in the arrangements, he was not greeted by the top brass.

NOT ALL VIPs are Congressmen, by any means. Other temperamental characters, newspapermen included, often make infernal nuisances of themselves, behaving like visiting royalty.

Such behavior is singularly out of place when set alongside the awful seriousness of the issue in Germany. Because he hopes each American will come to realize what the stakes are, Clay tries to talk with all visitors who come here. He gives his time prodigally, even though the demands on him are so heavy from every quarter.

Total United States administrative personnel in Germany is today only 4000, and that includes typists. The number of United States troops in the theater is only 120,000, and this will be reduced still further in the near future.

Clay has some keen, intensely hard-working men in the Military Government. They are here because they believe the job is such an important one. But there are also time-servers and incompetents in Germany because they could not get as good a job in the U. S. A. This helps to explain why so many decisions must be made by Clay himself.

To add to his worries, Congress cut the appropriation for occupied countries 125 million dollars. While it has not been decided how this cut shall be made, any deep slash in the fund for Germany will create trouble this winter.

Since this is true, perhaps it's fortunate that both the House and Senate Appropriations Committee will have delegations in Berlin and Frankfurt. While he is playing host—on a very small entertainment allowance—Clay can drop in the cold arithmetic of occupation costs.

Congressmen have not exactly coordinated their efforts in Germany. But if they will look at the forest instead of a few conspicuous trees, then perhaps the taxpayer will not have spent the congressional travel money in vain.

Patterson's DSM

In The Washington Post of August 30, the "Merry-Go-Round," in a column headed "Fitting Recognition Urged for Patterson," says, "Far lesser men received DSMs and Legions of Merit. Why Bob Patterson was not so honored is a mystery."

No mystery at all; Judge Patterson has received a DSM, all as duly announced in General Orders No. 82, War Department, September 27, 1945.

Meanwhile it is comforting for Washington Post readers to have reassurance that, during Mr. Pearson's absence on vacation, the "Merry-Go-Round's" traditional standards of factually accurate reporting are being faithfully maintained by Colonel Allen.

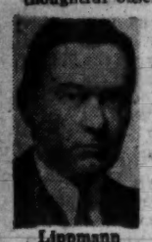
Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Cold War: Study In Policy II

MR. X concludes his article on Soviet conduct and American policy by saying that "the thoughtful observer of Russian-American relations will . . . experience a certain gratitude to a Providence which, by providing the American people with this implacable challenge, has made their entire security as a Nation dependent upon their pulling themselves together and accepting the responsibilities of moral and political leadership that history plainly intended them to bear." Perhaps. It may be that Mr. X has read the mind of Providence and that he knows what history plainly intended. But it is asking a good deal that the American people should stake their "entire security as a Nation" upon a theory which, as he himself says, cannot be proved and cannot be disproved.



Lippmann

Surely it is by no means proved that the way to lead mankind is to spend the next 10 or 15 years, as Mr. X proposes we should, in reacting at "a series of constantly shifting geographical and political points, corresponding to the shifts and maneuvers of Soviet policy." For if history has indeed intended us to bear the responsibility of leadership, then it is not leadership to adapt ourselves to the shifts and maneuvers of Soviet policy at a series of constantly shifting geographical and political points. For that would mean for 10 or 15 years Moscow, not Washington, would define the issues, would make the challenges, would select the ground where the conflict was to be waged, and would choose the weapons. And the best that Mr. X can say for his own proposal is that if for a long period of time we can prevent the Soviet power from winning, the Soviet power will eventually perish or "mellow" because it has been "frustrated."

THIS IS A dismal conclusion. Mr. X has, I believe, become bogged down in it because as he thought more and more about the conduct of the Soviet, he remembered less and less about the conduct of the other nations of the world. For while it may be true that the Soviet power would perish of frustration, if it were contained for 10 or 15 years, this conclusion is only half baked until he has answered the crucial question which remains: Can the Western World operate a policy of containment? Mr. X not only does not answer this question. He begs it, saying that it will be very discouraging to the Soviets, if the Western World finds the strength and resourcefulness to contain the Soviet power over a period of 10 or 15 years.

NOW THE strength of the Western World is great, and we may assume that its resourcefulness is considerable. Nevertheless, there are weighty reasons for thinking that the kind of strength we have and the kind of resourcefulness we are capable of showing are peculiarly unsuited to operating a policy of containment.

How, for example, under the Constitution of the United States is Mr. X going to work out an arrangement by which the Department of State has the money and the military power always available in sufficient amounts to apply "counterforce" at constantly shifting points all over the world? Is he going to ask Congress for a blank check on the Treasury and for a blank authorization to use the armed forces? Not if the American constitutional system is to be maintained. Or is he going to ask for an appropriation and for authority each time the Russians "show signs of encroaching upon the interests of a peaceful and stable world?" If that is his plan for dealing with the maneuvers of a dictatorship, he is going to arrive at the points of encroachment with too little and he is going to arrive too late. The Russians, if they intend to encroach, will have encroached while Congress is getting ready to hold hearings.

A POLICY of shifts and maneuvers may be suited to the Soviet system of government, which, as Mr. X tells us, is animated by patient persistence. It is not suited to the American system of government.

It is even more unsuited to the American economy which is unregimented and uncontrolled, and therefore cannot be administered according to a plan. Yet a policy of containment cannot be operated unless the Department of State can plan and direct exports and imports. For the policy demands that American goods be delivered or withheld at "constantly shifting geographical and political points corresponding to the shifts and maneuvers of Soviet policy."

Thus Mr. X and the planners of policy in the State Department, and not supply and demand in the world market, must determine continually what portion of the commodities produced here may be sold in the United States, what portion is to be set aside for export, and then sold, lent, or given to this foreign country rather than to that one. The Department of State must be able to allocate the products of American industry and agriculture, to ration the goods allocated for export among the nations which are to contain the Soviet Union, and to discriminate among them, judging correctly and quickly how much to each nation must be given, how much each nation can safely be squeezed, so that all shall be held in line to hold the line against the Russians.

IF THEN the Kremlin's challenge to American society is to be met by the policy which Mr. X proposes, we are committed to a contest, for 10 or 15 years, with the Soviet system which is planned and directed from Moscow. Mr. X is surely mistaken, it seems to me, if he thinks that a free and undirected economy like our own can be used by the diplomatic planners to wage a diplomatic war against a planned economy at a series of constantly shifting geographical and political points. He is proposing to meet the Soviet challenge on the ground which is most favorable to the Soviets, and with the very instruments, procedures, and weapons in which they have a manifest superiority.

Plan For Palestine

By Barnet Nover

Report Of The U. N. Committee

FOR ALL ITS FAULTS, and they are as numerous as they are obvious, the report of the United Nations Special Committee on Palestine (UNSCOP) is little short of an international miracle.

NOVER

At the time the committee came into being last May, skepticism regarding its possible accomplishments was widespread. No one expected that it would or could discover a solution of the emotion-laden, tangled and tortured Palestine problem that would satisfy everybody and particularly the Arabs, the Jews and the British. No such solution is possible.

What many feared is that the committee would get nowhere at all, dividing hopelessly on every point.

IT WAS POINTED out in this connection that the composition of the committee, though containing no representatives of nations directly interested in the Palestine problem and none of any of the great powers, nonetheless reflected the major divisions inside the U. N.

Two of UNSCOP's members came from British dominions (Canada and Australia); two from the Soviet bloc (Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia); two from nations with very large Moslem populations (Iran and India); three from the Americas (Guatemala, Peru, Uruguay); two from western Europe (Sweden and the Netherlands).

NOW THAT the committee has finished its labors, the amazing thing is that while it divided into a majority of seven (Sweden, Canada, Guatemala, Uruguay, Czechoslovakia, the Netherlands and Peru) and a minority of three (Iran, India, Yugoslavia) with Australia refusing to sign either report, the area of agreement between the majority and minority is considerable.

To be sure, the majority and minority do not see eye to eye regarding the political future of Palestine.

The majority favors the creation of separate and independent Palestine Arab and Jewish nations. The minority recommends the creation of a federal Palestine in which the Arab and the Jewish states would enjoy a large measure of local autonomy. They disagree also as to the boundaries of those states.

BOTH THE MAJORITY and the minority are in substantial agreement regarding the following important points:

1. That the British mandate should be ended within a relatively few years after which Palestine is to be given its independence.

2. That recognition be given to the Jewish desire for a "homeland" in Palestine.

3. That substantial Jewish immigration into Palestine be permitted during the interim period. The majority favors the entry of 150,000 Jews during the next two years. The minority recommends that Jewish immigration be permitted into the Jewish state "in such numbers as not to exceed its absorptive capacity."

4. That despite the political division of Palestine, the country should remain economically one.

5. That the holy places be placed under international control and guarantee.

6. That the state or states set up in Palestine should be democratic in form and nature.

AS MIGHT have been expected, the most violent opposition to the majority report comes from the Arabs.

Their attitude has been one of uncompromising hostility to any concessions made to the Jews in Palestine. They want immediate independence for Palestine, which would mean the creation of an Arab-dominated state in which the Jews would live in a state of permanent subjection. They are threatening all manner of dire things if UNSCOP's recommendations are carried out.

The Jews, conditioned to skepticism by the history of earlier commissions, reports and recommendations, are nonetheless gratified because international recognition has now been given their basic aims and desires.

The British authorities in Palestine scoff at the majority report. They regard it as unworkable. If their past record is any guide, they can be expected to do all in their power to make it unworkable.

The decision should be taken out of their hands and out of the hands of the British government which has made an unholy mess of its international obligations in Palestine.

The problem of Palestine is now, in fact as well as theory, an international problem. Action on the UNSCOP report is up to the General Assembly. Whatever that body does will require the cooperation of all the powers, not least the United States.

Up to now this country has played the role of sideline coach, so far as the Palestine problem is concerned. It has been generous of its good advice. It has been chary of assuming direct responsibility.

As a Nation solemnly pledged to support the United Nations which may assume responsibility for Palestine's future, this country will have to pitch in and help.

The UNSCOP plan may not be the best solution of the Palestine problem; at any rate it is a solution.

U. S. Avoiding Intervening in Greek Politics

By M. W. Fodor

Athens Greece (By Cable).—The American State Department is stepping very carefully around the dangerous "thin ice" signs in the Greek political situation.

Loy Henderson, chief of the Near East division, has been here for several days, and he is seemingly paying more attention to the economic and military aspects of the Greek trouble than to the make-up of the government.

Henderson called on Premier Tsaldaris Monday morning and spent more than an hour with him. Greek internal affairs were not discussed, it was stated..

There is a chance of further postponement of Parliament as all sides try to bring in as many deputies as possible to attend the session which will pass on the new cabinet. This added time also will give Tsaldaris an opportunity to add members to the cabinet to give it a much broader political base than the present Populist line-up.

The six smaller parties representing the center are working very hard to consolidate into one solid block to oppose the Tsaldaris Populist cabinet outlined last week.

There is a strong possibility that this group, composed of the Venizelos Liberal Party, the Gonatas Liberal Party, the Papandreous Social Democrats, the new Marchezini Party, the Cannelopoulos Unity Party, and the Alexandris reform party, will get together and thus command 122 seats in Parliament. Then there is the Liberal Party of Themistocles Sophoulis, with 48 seats. The Populist Party of Constantine Tsaldaris in Parliament now controls 141 seats.

It is the hope of the minority groups that they will be able to split both the Populists and the liberals and through their own solidarity command enough votes to defeat the Populist slate.

The significant thing in this movement is that if it is accomplished, it would be the first time in many years that there has been a strong centrist group. The multiplicity of small parties has been the greatest weakness in Greek politics.

After a session with the King Monday, the six leaders announced that they are unalterably opposed to a unilateral government and that they insist on a cabinet on the broadest possible national basis, with the King choosing the Premier.

Even the royalist press here in Athens has pointed out the dangers of a solely Populist cabinet and a generally bad press has been noted both at home and abroad.

There is no doubt Tsaldaris named his cabinet with the speed he did because he evidently feared Henderson was going to intervene. But, judging from Henderson's actions since he has been here, he was going to do nothing so abrupt and undiplomatic. American intervention, as has been stated repeatedly, has had as its purpose the unification of Greece and the hope of peaceful settlement of all political questions.

First Big Lot

Turks Get Arms Soon From U. S.

By The Associated Press

Government officials said yesterday congressional approval would be needed before the United States could send military experts to Egypt, as asked by Egyptian Prime Minister Nokrashy Pasha.

The Prime Minister had an hour's conference with Undersecretary of State Lovett yesterday, after which he told reporters of his request for American military advisers.

An official who declined to be identified said that while it is impossible to consider that request without congressional authority, the United States has offered to discuss sending civilian—insead of military—experts to Egypt.

One Way to Help

"Industrialization probably is more important than any other factor in maintaining a modern army," this official pointed out. "That is where the United States might be able to help Egypt."

Some officials said they believe the Egyptian request for American military advice may be connected with the current Anglo-Egyptian dispute before the United Nations Security Council.

Under terms of a treaty signed in 1936, the British have kept a military mission in Egypt, as well as several thousands troops. Egypt now wants Britain to withdraw its armed forces.

That would leave the Middle Eastern country without expert military advice.

Not Formal Mission

Nokrashy Pasha is understood to have stressed in his conference with Lovett that Egypt is asking for expert assistance—not for a formal mission.

Lovett, a former Assistant Secretary of War for Air, reportedly expressed great interest in Egypt's plans for her armed forces.

The Egyptian official scheduled a meeting with Secretary of War Royall to discuss the same subject.

During his conference with Lovett, Nokrashy also talked of economic matters. Officials said the Egyptian Prime Minister indicated he would like to see increased American purchases of long staple cotton.

Turkey Soon to Get U. S. Arms Shipment

The first big consignment of American military equipment promised under the 100-million-dollar Turkish aid program probably will be on its way to Turkey before the end of this month, Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett said yesterday.

He said some surplus military supplies have been sent to Turkey from American depots in the Mediterranean, but they represented only a minor part of the supply.

He stated about half the Army and Navy supplies for Turkey have been procured, and the first substantial deliveries will be on their way within the next few weeks.

The Turks so far have received about three million dollars of the help voted to them by Congress, mostly road building and harbor construction machinery.

Farmers' Income Up 21 Pct. Over '46 to All-Time Peak

The American farmer is making more money than he ever did, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported last night.

For the first eight months this year, total cash receipts of farmers were about 17,400 million dollars. This is within a billion and a half dollars of the total farm income for all 12 months of 1946.

For the first six months of the year, the farm income was 35 per cent above the first six months of 1946, when price controls were in effect.

However, for the first eight months the increase dropped to 21 per cent, or, if Government payments (subsidies paid under OPA Soil Conservation, and other payments) were not considered, to 26 per cent above the similar months a year ago.

Price controls were suspended June 30, 1946, for a month. In July prices of farm products jumped way above OPA ceilings in effect the month before.

"The average farm operator realized a net income of $2541 from agriculture and Government payments in 1946," BAE reports. "This was 19 per cent more than the 1945 average of $2140."

Despite this great gain in farm income, agriculture as an industry is not getting its proportionate share of the national income.

More than 20 per cent of the entire population is engaged in farming, but its total income is only 12½ per cent of the national income.

The average farm worker in 1946, BAE says, earned $1741 from agriculture and Government payments, while the "employed worker in industry averaged $2238.

The big increase in income is not all gain to the farmer. Farm operating expenses are 16 per cent above a year ago.

However, some economists who worked on the report state that despite the higher production costs, annual earnings will be the highest of record.

The increase in farm prices averaged 24 per cent over a year ago. Livestock and livestock products brought $10,800,000,000—30 per cent above last year.

Meat animals brought an increase of almost 50 per cent, but receipts from dairy and poultry products were only about 10 per cent above 1946.

Field crops, such as wheat and corn, brought $6,300,000,000 in the first eight months.

"Heavy marketing of wheat at unusually high prices raised cash receipts from food grain about two thirds above last year," the report stated.

Md., Va. Farmers Get 61 Millions More in '47

Higher farm prices brought 15 million dollars more to Maryland and 46 million dollars more to Virginia in the first six months of this year than they got in the first six months of 1946, Bureau of Agricultural Economics reports. Following are total cash receipts for farmers in the four-State Washington Area:

Delaware, $39,335,000; last year, $38,185,000.

Maryland, $90,841,000; last year, $75,825,000.

Virginia, $160,519,000; last year, $116,961,000.

West Virginia, $36,465,000; last year, $31,136,000.

Maine's Governor In Senate Fight

Augusta, Me., Sept. 3 (AP).—Maine's 44-year-old Republican Gov. Horace A. Hildreth today became a candidate for United States Senator in 1948—the second in the race so far—and said he would "wage a vigorous and forthright campaign."

Mrs. Margaret C. Smith (R., Skowhegan), United States Representative from Maine's Second Congressional District, announced several weeks ago her candidacy for the nomination to succeed Maine's senior Senator Wallace H White (Rep.), who said sometime ago he planned to retire at the end of his current six-year term.

'Political Controls' Fought By Maryland U. President

Baltimore, Sept. 3 (AP).—Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, today asked the State's legislative council to eliminate or modify what he called "political controls" over the institution.

Dr. Byrd also opposed creation of a "superboard" which would coordinate all the State's colleges and universities, and review their budgets. Such a board has been recommended by the State Commission on Higher Education.

Dr. Byrd said he had no fault to find with some of the controls as now administered, but he declared they are "susceptible of abuse," and prevent top flight men from joining the university staff.

Criticizes Controls

The educator objected to these controls which he said the State exercises:

1. The standard salary board sets salaries.

2. University funds are deposited in the State treasury, bills are paid by the State comptroller, and both are audited by the State auditor.

3. The Governor and the General Assembly control the budget.

4. The State has authority over purchase of supplies.

5. The Board of Public Works must approve many undertakings.

6. The State employment commissioner controls some of the jobs.

Delay Costly

He declared the authority of the Board of Public Works is so indefinite that the Board of Regents doesn't know where it stands. He said that a delayed decision last year cost the university $100,000 on a construction job.

"Deliberate interference" with the income of the university by the standard salary board and the State employment commissioner cost the school $30,000 in pay raises.

He said the State should have no authority over Federal funds, and declared the employment commissioner and Standard Salary Board had assumed such authority by "illegally" setting salaries for employes paid from these funds.

Argentina Relaxes Some Controls on Imports

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—The Central Bank today resumed allocation of foreign exchange for a reduced list of selected imports, including steel, petroleum products and some chemicals. It was the first relaxation of the total import embargo decreed August 21.

Simultaneously, the Central Bank resumed quoting pounds sterling in the free foreign exchange market.

Egyptian Strikers Shot

Cairo, Egypt, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Three workers were killed and 17 wounded today when police fired on 30,000 strikers at a Mehalla El Kobra-Delta Cotton Weaving Co. Six policemen were reported injured.

Gas Turbine Gunboat Passes British Trials

London, Sept. 3 (AP).—The Admiralty announced tonight that the British navy was conducting satisfactory trials of what it said was the world's first naval craft powered by a gas turbine engine. The vessel is a 110-foot triple screw gunboat.

The engine uses oil fuel and its "motion is entirely rotary," the Admiralty statement said.

A naval officer emphasized that the experimental craft was not jet propelled.

"Power from the jet is converted into a rotary motion so as to drive a shaft and propeller of a conventional kind," he said.

Curb on Use of Natural Rubber In 30,000 Products Ends Soon

A Commerce Department official said yesterday the Government soon will scrap controls on use of natural rubber in approximately 30,000 products, but retain limitations on usage in tires and tubes.

The relaxed regulations now in the "final clearance stage" and due for issuance within two weeks, also eliminate inventory control over stocks of natural rubber hild by industry, the official told a reporter. Firms now are prohibited from keeping more than a 90-day supply on hand.

The official added that "there have been rumors the use of up to 67 per cent of natural rubber would be authorized for passenger car tires but that this proposal has been "rejected by the rubber industry."

The regulations will leave use limitations only on tires, tubes and certain natural rubber latex items, including latex foam products. Items to be freed include such things as sports goods, footwear, wire and cable.

The amount of natural rubber authorized for use in tires ranges from 23 per cent for those of 600-16 size and smaller, up to as much as 95 per cent in bus and truck tires. Remaining requirements are filled with synthetic rubber—tires using a large part of the GR-S type and tubes taking most of the butyl production.

Ilka Chase Most Satisfactory, But Riggs Comedy Falls Short

By Leo Brady

(Mr. Brady, an instructor in the speech and drama department at Catholic University, has been a frequent contributor to The Washington Post's theater page. He will handle theater reviews while Richard L. Coe is on vacation.)

THE Olney Theater is currently presenting the first new play of the local straw hat season and it has Ilka Chase, an old friend of theater-goers, as a sparkling star. Otherwise, the simple truth about "Laughter From a Cloud," a kind of marital comedy, is that it contains nothing borrowed, it contains a great deal which is blue—which is to say, bawdy.

There are two surprising things about the show: It was written by Lynn Riggs and it was written recently. Mr. Riggs, you'll remember, was originally responsible for what became "Oklahoma" but the vehicle he has wrought for Miss Chase is as far from "Oklahoma" as Oklahoma is from Oahu. It is surprising that he wrote it recently because this is the kind of bright-sayings-of-adults play that smart-mouthed young men were putting together in the twenties and thirties. Then the type was known as sophisticated comedy and heavily given to the double entendre as well as the double standard. It seems a trifle outdated now, although you might accept it if Wilde or Congreve were on hand to balance the bon mots with a nice intrigue plot.

LAUGHTER FROM A CLOUD
Olney Theater production of a new comedy by Lynn Riggs. Presented by Redge Allen, Glenn Taylor and Evelyn Freyman (by arrangement with Jerome Mayer and Milton Baron). Setting by Randall Brooks. Staged by Jerome Mayer.

CAST

Tranquilino ..... Wynn Handman
Ann Ellison ..... Susan Douglas
Crusita ..... Juanita Fletcher
Fanny Derr ..... Polly Rowles
Lisa Walker ..... Ilka Chase
Mason Venn ..... Ralph Longley
Addie Hall ..... Cynthia Latham
Dr. Hank Burbage .. Donald MacDonald
Cleve Walker .... Alexander Lockwood
Dick Burbage ..... Peter Harris
Crusita's Mother ..... Lucile Ovendon

Laid in New Mexico

Mr. Riggs maintains some kind of continuity in his career by moving his version of the living room-boudoir to the cow country of New Mexico. There, in spite of a lot of fancy language, some rather sinister Mexican servants, some Schopenhauer philosophy and a mountain which reminds the leading character of her husband, the action consists essentially in Cleve Walker, played by Alexander Lockwood, trying to talk his wife Lisa, acted by Miss Chase, into a reconciliation. This setup forces Miss Chase to struggle with a basically passive character, but she snatches most of the brass rings on the epigrammatical merry-go-round by being arch and gracious and batting her lashes delicately and doing her best to maintain things at a deft, fast-spoken level.

But the story is too thinly plotted, too sparsely incidented to carry the weight of the wit, and the wit is not sharp enough to make you forget the main action. A great deal of each act is devoted to marking time until the clock calls for a new development.

Parallel to Lisa's story—but hardly interwoven—is a subplot devoted to the romantic aberrations of Lisa's teen-age daughter, the kind of a girl who would make J. M. Barrie blanch. Nobody reports on what happened to Lisa's first husband—nothing in the surrounding countryside reminds her of him.

Cynthia Latham Shines

Into the interstices of the flimsy plot, Mr. Riggs inserts a bevy of characters, the most striking and genuinely humorous of which is the widow neighbor played by Cynthia Latham. Miss Latham is wonderfully vigorous and obtuse and approaches a line of dialogue like a truck in full tilt. Polly Rowles, as a hard-bitten actress who once shared Lisa's husband, is the most successful of the others, although she is compelled to make like Joan Davis now and again.

You may well enjoy Ilka Chase and you'll get a few crumbs from Susan Douglas as the daughter who may be a veiled explanation of teen-age delinquency, Peter Harris as a reconverted Philip Barry juvenile, and Ralph Longley in one scene as the jilted youngster. The Olney's Randall Brooks does a creditable setting and director Jerome Mayer checkerboards his actors in the tradition of this kind of static play.

A couple of times the actors step out of character to play a line directly to the audience—another shock in the realistic form. The rest of the time they're in it up to their necks.

H. F. Byrd, Jr., Hits Va. Critics On Education

Winchester, Va., Sept. 3 (AP).—Harry F. Byrd, jr., Democratic nominee for the State Senate, declared today that in his opinion "education is Virginia's No. 1 problem."

Byrd, addressing the Frederick County Teachers Association, said "anyone who believes deeply in democracy must, of necessity, believe deeply in public education." He warned that an uneducated people cannot long remain a free people.

"For my part," he declared, "I am anxious that Virginia stand as near as possible to the top of all the States of the Union in public education, commensurate with our wealth and population. Under the leadership of Governor Darden and Governor Tuck, Virginia has made progress toward this goal."

Byrd said he challenged the assertion that Virginia's government "lacks interest in education," and asserted "the facts do not support the charge." He expressed a belief that thoughtful Virginians will encourage higher standards for school teachers and as a result will pay higher salaries for superior qualifications."

"However, Virginia's school administration itself must play its part," he said. "School teachers must convince the public that it is obtaining value received for every school dollar spent."

Inquiry Ordered In Thomascolor Offering Plan

Philadelphia, Sept. 3 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange Commission today ordered a public investigation into a 10-million-dollar stock registration of Thomascolor, Inc., Los Angeles.

The SEC declared it has "reasonable cause to believe that the company's registration statement includes untrue statements of material facts and omits material facts . . ."

At a public hearing September 16, the commission will determine whether a "stop order"—prohibiting the sale of the stock—shall be issued.

Thomascolor, organized to manufacture and develop a color process for television and motion pictures, registered one million shares of its $5 par common stock with the SEC last July 9, proposing to offer the shares to the public at $10 each.

The SEC said it will investigate the "adequacy and accuracy" of 56 statements in the registration, including the statement that the Thomascolor process "is a new process of color photography."

Reno, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Arthur Edward Dewalt, 23, a bartender, was charged with "lewdness" today.

He jumped naked from a bedroom window of the burning Del Monte guest ranch yesterday. Shortly before Mrs. Mary Dryer O'Mera, 33, of Plainfield, N. J., burned to death while trying frantically to get into her clothes so she could flee too.

Dewalt told sheriff's deputies he tried to get Mrs. O'Mera to jump when he did, but she would not jump "because she had no clothes." Authorities said Dewalt was in her room when the fire started.

Army Politicos Plot To Bypass Bradley

By Robert S. Allen

If certain inner Army politicos have their way, able, conscientious Gen. Omar Bradley will be sidetracked as General Eisenhower's successor and shunted off into a high-sounding but lesser job.

Gen. Clark

The secret plan is to make Bradley commanding general of a United States theater that would be created for this purpose. This theater would include the continental United States and be comparable to the Mediterranean and other foreign theaters. As theater commander, Bradley would be junior to the Chief of Staff, the post he really wants and is outstandingly fitted to hold.

However, by sidetracking Bradley, the Army politicos would open the way to grab off the C/S prize. First choice on their list is tall, ambitious Gen. Mark Clark, United States commander in Italy during the war.

Bradley is now in Europe on a special inspection trip, on six weeks' leave from the Veterans' Administration. He is Eisenhower's personal choice as his successor. At the time Eisenhower announced his plan to retire from the Army in January to become president of Columbia University, he told newsmen he hoped Bradley would become Chief of Staff.

But the inner Army politicos have other ideas. Bradley is too nonpolitical minded to suit them. Under the new unification and promotion acts, there are numerous juicy plums to be grabbed off and they want a direct hand in the grabbing. They rightly fear there would be little or none of that under Bradley.

So, during his absence, there is much undercover scheming and wirepulling to sidetrack Bradley. These antics are particularly interesting in view of the Army's customarily haughty disdain of politicians. Actually, inner Army politics is as hectic, petty, and crass as any played outside the service.

VFW's Ketchum Stays

Before stepping out as national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, genial Louis Starr called on President Truman. With Starr was Omar Ketchum, VFW legislative representative.

"Are you quitting, too?" asked the President.

"No; no such luck for you, Mr. President. I'll still be around to get in your hair."

"Yes," grinned the President. "I guess that's to be expected."

Indonesian Victims

Most tragic problem in the Indonesian fighting is the fate of the 700,000 Eurasians of Dutch and native ancestry.

Dutch settlers in the archipelago have been intermarrying with native women since the seventeenth century. Their offspring, officially known as Indo-Europeans," constitute a large and important population element. They are educated and before the war occupied important business and governmental posts.

During their occupation, the Japs created a schism between the Eurasians and natives. As a result, when the Japs were evicted, the natives threw the Eurasians into concentration camps. When the British landed, pending the arrival of Dutch forces, they liberated many of the Eurasians. But thousands of others, deep in the interior, where the British could not penetrate, are still held as prisoners.

What the fate of the hapless Eurasians will be when the fighting ceases is still anyone's guess. The natives hate them and the Dutch are in a difficult position to protect them.

Flush Farmer

A wheat farmer picked up in La Junta, Colo., on a tramic charge pulled out a roll of $20,000 from which to pay his fine. When asked if that wasn't a lot of money to be carrying around, he replied casually, "Oh, I've got a lot more at home" . . .

Corcoran and Cohen

The famed New Deal brain-trust team of Corcoran and Cohen, may soon be revived as law partners. Able, modest Ben Cohen, who recently resigned as State Department general counsel, may tie up with the law firm of his old partner, Tommy the Cork . . . It is very fitting that President Truman should participate in the 125th anniversary of Brazilian independence. The United States was the first country to give official recognition to Brazil—in 1823, during the Administration of President James Monroe . . . The War Department has ordered all retired Regular Army officers to be released by next July . . . Tex McCrary, noted war correspondent and radio commentator, is organizing a world-wide news service for radio and television outlets. Nucleus of the service will be a corps of correspondents and photographers stationed at strategic points throughout the globe . . . The Democratic National Committee is planning to make Songwriter Jack Lawrence's popular "Have a Heart, Taft-Hartley.. Have a Heart" one of its 1948 campaign tunes . . . The convention of the Missouri Farmers Association, claiming 117,000 members, adopted a resolution condemning the House probe of farm cooperatives and declaring war on "congressional enemies of the farmers" . . . A survey by the United States Bureau of Labor statistics in plants employing 88,600 handicapped workers disclosed that 51 per cent had better accident records than nonhandicapped workers, 48 per cent had better-than-average absence records and 58 per cent stayed on their jobs longer.

Bender Hunts Frauds

Ohio's hard-hitting Representative George Bender will uncover a different kind of pay dirt in his forthcoming probe of wartime contractors than that dug up by Senator Brewster's committee. Bender is eschewing Hollywood and going after fraud. He already has some sensational evidence in hand.

A report compiled by Comptroller General Lindsay Warren charges overpayments or fraud in more than 5 per cent of all war contracts. Out of 4789 contracts that were studied, Lindsay found the Government paid $4,350,000 more than it should have.

On the basis of these figures, Bender estimates the Government was overcharged, or cheated, out of more than 60 million dollars on the 318,000 war contracts.

Bender's investigators have informed him that the technique most frequently used to gouge the Government was to falsify the value of inventory remaining at the time of a contract termination, particularly materials and equipment which could be used later for civilian production. Frequently, the contractors would repurchase these articles at a fraction of their face value, claiming that costly precision tools and fabricating machines were good only for scrap.

Dewey Iowa Drive

The Dewey camp is quietly organizing to make a determined fight for the Iowa delegation.

Heading the move is Whitney Gilliland of Glenwood, former youngest district judge in the State. The drive is aimed chiefly at Minnesota's Harold Stassen, who has considerable support among GOP county chairmen.

However, the Republican State Central Committee is all split up, with members favoring Taft, Dewey, Stassen, Speaker Joe Martin and a few for General Eisenhower. State Chairman Willis York and long-time National Committeeman Harrison Spangler are in the Taft camp.

Mystery Rises In Murder on False Identity

Pittsburgh, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—A lover's lane murder mystery took a startling twist today when it turned out that the badly battered body of the victim had been wrongly identified.

The body at first identified as that of Betty Jane Yocobet, 14, was identified today as that of Julia Fesko, 22.

The identification broke up a wake being held by members of the Yocobet family.

The body was found late Monday beside a lonely road. A .32-caliber bullet had punctured the head and the face had been so badly beaten the features were all but unrecognizable.

Three members of the Yocobet family "positively" identified the body as that of their 14-year-old girl, who disappeared from her McKeesport home 11 days ago, saying she was going to get married.

Five members of Julia's family went to the morgue today and identified the body. The body was turned over to the family after Dr. Herbert Paul, a dentist, identified the fillings he had placed in Julia's teeth.

Navy Commends Six Employes For Long Gun Factory Service

Six employes of the Naval Gun Factory, who have completed an aggregate 237 years of service there, have received letters of commendation from the Secretary of the Navy.

The letters, delivered by Rear Admiral T. D. Ruddock, superintendent of the Naval Gun Factory, were presented to:

George M. Jack, supervisory progressman, of 2607 3d st. ne. He first reported to the gun factory in September, 1905, as an apprentice boy in the machinist trade.

George W. Speckmann, supervisory progressman, of 4025 36th st., Mount Rainier, Md. He went to the gun factory as an apprentice machinist in February, 1906.

Charles E. Smithson, progressman, of 4311 2d rd., North Arlington, Va. He started as an apprentice machinist in August, 1906. He was granted military furlough in both wars, and served as a lieutenant colonel in the Signal Corps in World War II.

Milton E. Compton, supervisory planner and estimator, of 3149 Mount Pleasant st. nw., who started work there in August, 1905.

Charles W. Verrill, electrician in the central power plant, of 110 18th st. se. He started work there in September, 1917.

Charles King, clerk in the public works department, of 23 M st. sw., who started work there in October, 1906.

Police Rouse Burglar Who Sleeps on Job

Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—A burglar was caught napping today.

Police said that "Snooks" Dorsey, alias Gene Jones, 26, broke into a store last night. He tried to batter the cash register open with a meat cleaver and then fell asleep on the floor.

P. E. Skaff, the proprietor, found him when he opened shop this morning. Dorsey still was pounding his ear when police arrived.

8-Story Plunge Kills Ex-UNRRA Official

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—Thomas Bower, 55, a former UNRRA official in China and at one time director of general finance for the Persian government, plunged to his death today from an eighth floor hotel window.

Storm Lashes Iowa Town

Leon, Iowa, Sept. 3 (A.P.).—A freak storm of hurricane proportions severely damaged a department store and schoolhouse here early today and caused extensive minor damage throughout this southern Iowa town of 2400 persons. No one was killed and no serious injuries were reported.

MacArthur's Plans to Scrap Jap War Industry Approved

The Far Eastern Commission yesterday announced indorsement of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's program for scrapping Japanese war industry and spelled out its policy in detail.

As for certain "war-supporting" industries, the 11-nation commission set October 1, 1949, as the terminal date of restrictions it imposed unless permanent restrictions are imposed before that time. This was seen as a move to force an early decision on permanent limitations on these industries.

The commission approved the basic policy for reductions of Japanese war potential and sent MacArthur a directive based on its decisions. This directive served to give the commission's approval to much of what the supreme allied commander already had done.

The objective of the policy is to fix levels for Japan's total industrial capacity. What those levels will be is now under consideration by the commission. In general, its aims are:

1. Destruction of all buildings, machinery and equipment which can produce only materials for use in combat.

2. Impoundment and use for reparations of all machinery and equipment of industries whose primary purpose is production of combat equipment, and which could have no peacetime use.

All other equipment and machinery which were used for industrial support of the Japanese war effort, the commission ruled, should be made available for reparations insofar as they exceed Japan's "peaceful needs." These "peaceful needs" are to be determined after settlement of the industrial level to be permitted post-occupation Japan.

The commission also directed MacArthur to prohibit, during the occupation, reestablishment of primary war industry. He was instructed to limit war-supporting industries, such as iron, steel, coal and transportation, to capacities consonant with levels allowed during the occupation.

In addition to those mentioned, the commission defined as "war-supporting industries" those producing nonferrous metals, machine and metal-working tools, ball and roller bearings, certain chemicals, railway and automotive equipment, electric power, cement and abrasives, merchant shipbuilding, oil, synthetic rubber and heavy electrical equipment.

The commission ruled further that no civil aircraft be built or assembled in Japan and that the Japanese government or Japanese nationals not engage in operation of civil aircraft.

Promotion Backed

The Washington Post.
WILLIAM H. BOSWELL
His promotion approved

Non-competitive promotion of a District fireman from a $3398-a-year private's job to a $5023-a-year post as assistant machinery superintendent was fully approved by the Civil Service Commission, a Fire Department spokesman said yesterday.

Deputy Fire Chief Frank G. Berry made the statement after the trustee board of Local 36, International Association of Firefighters, passed a resolution protesting the advancement of Pvt. William H. Boswell to assistant machinery superintendent.

The resolution also asked the Commissioners to hold up all Fire Department promotions which weren't drawn from Civil Service registers.

Chief Berry released the text of a letter received by Fire Chief Clement Murphy August 27 from L. A. Moyer, executive director and chief examiner of the Civil Service Commission. It said in part: "In view of Mr. Boswell's some 22 years in the Fire Department and his prior experience as a mechanic the (Civil Service) Commission has approved Mr. Boswell's noncompetitive promotion."

Chief Berry pointed out that no Civil Service register had been set up for the job of assistant superintendent of machinery. The idea was abandoned in 1931, he said, after three District firemen, including the present superintendent of machinery, Ivan J. Dalstrom, failed to pass competitive tests.

He denied that Boswell was promoted over the heads of other firemen, as charged by Capt. Joseph W. Conroy, president of the District Firemen's Association.

Captain Conroy had mentioned "a certain lieutenant" he said was high on the promotion list and an expert mechanic.

Chief Berry replied that the lieutenant, whoever he was, had not applied for the job, although Dalstrom's promotion August 1 made it clear that the vacancy existed.

The Commissioners approved the promotion August 28, on the recommendation of Chief Berry, for whom Boswell was acting as driver.

The protest was voted by the 18 members of the Firemen's Association board of trustees at a special meeting Tuesday. Captain Conroy said the action was taken after many firemen complained about Boswell's promotion and asked the trustees "to do something about it."

Gas Station Near Church Still Fought

Falls Church citizens will not abandon efforts to block location of a gasoline station near the historic Falls (Episcopal) Church, despite an opinion from the State Highway Department which, in effect, approved the project.

Attorney Richard C. Horne, jr., who represented protesting citizens in a hearing before the Town Council last month, said yesterday: "We have by no means dropped the fight." He admitted, however, that no definite method of continuing the fight had been planned.

The highway department report, released yesterday, was the result of a survey requested several weeks ago by the Town Council, asking State engineers to determine whether the proposed filling station might result in a traffic hazard. It stated that the survey shows "there would be no peculiar hazard in the subject case. We could not legally deny access as long as our standard entrances are complied with."

Earlier, the Town Council had turned down requests that the building permit be denied. The council contended that the land already was rezoned for business, and erection of a filling station would be "proper."

The objectors, including parishioners of the church and the local DAR chapter, based their opposition on the ground that development of business near the historic structure would detract from its value as a tourist attraction.

The Falls Church, for which the town was named, was built more than 170 years ago on the site of another Episcopal church erected in 1732.

Globe-Girdlers In Paris After Buzzing Hedel

Paris, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Touring the world and taking their time about it, Piper Cub pilots George Truman of Los Angeles and Clifford Evans of Washington, D. C., arrived in Paris today from The Hague, Holland.

Paying little attention to the clock—they left the United States 24 days ago— the pair reached Orly Airport late. Evans explained that they had detoured 50 miles to circle the village of Hedel, Holland, which had been "adopted" by his Chevy Chase, (Md.), Church.

According to Evans, "the whole town" turned out.

"I made sure I didn't fly too low because I didn't want to scare the children," the Washington flier said.

After a day in Paris, they will resume their leisurely globe-girdling tomorrow. The next listed stop is Rome.

Evans, who is 25, stepped from his tiny cream and red plane and smilingly said, "Tell my wife I'm still having nothing to do with blondes. But you'd better add that Paris with all its brunettes might be an exception."

There's a Fine Spirit In This Police Force

Saginaw, Mich., Sept. 3 (AP).—Police Chief George McNicoll paid a one dollar traffic fine today with the smug expression of the cat that devoured the canary.

He parked his car in a downtown taxi space. Patrolman Gene Aldrich happened along and ticketed the vehicle.

As Chief McNicoll trudged resignedly toward Police headquarters to pay his fine, he spotted Aldrich's car in a no-parking zone.

U. S. Bureau Seizes 'Rattlesnake Whisky'

New York, Sept. 3 (AP).—A bottle of "rattlesnake whisky" was seized in a recent Chinatown raid by the Federal Bureau of Narcotics, which offers this recipe for the concoction:

Place a live rattlesnake in a large jar; add rice wine, dried toads, soy beans, sliced deer antlers and a handful of dried sea horses. Age six months.

James Ryan, acting district supervisor for the Bureau, said the product is popular with West Coast Chinese, who believe it gives them strength.

Mayor Without Brakes On Driving or Drinking

Brunswick, Ga., Sept. 3 (U.P.).—Mayor J. Hunter Hopkins, the only man arrested for drunken driving in Brunswick on July 4, 1946, was arrested during the Labor Day weekend for appearing drunk on the streets, reckless driving and driving without brakes, police said today. His Honor is slated to appear in Recorder's Court Friday.

Tired, "All-In"— Listless Feeling Brought To Halt

As Vibrant Energy is Released To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell

Do you get up in the mornings still tired, feel down-and-out all day? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Overwork, undue worry, cold, flu or other illness often wears down the red-blood-cells.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that S.S.S. Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the S.S.S. Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, S.S.S. Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on S.S.S. Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. S.S.S. Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

McCahan Pitches No-Hit, 3-0 Game Against Nats

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

PASADENA, CALIF., Sept. 3.—"The best assets of a forward passer," Sammy Baugh once said with modesty, "are a couple of nice tall ends with good hands." What he didn't say was that it also helps if you can hit 'em in the eye with that football, like Baugh can.

POVICH

In the Redskins camp they're saying the Washington team can mount its best running attack in years with Dick Todd, Bob Nussbaumer, Jim Gillette, Ralph Ruthstrom and Tom Farmer on hand to tote the ball. That's all right with Baugh who knows the value of a strong running game to enchance his passing strategy.

But boiled down and lacking compelling evidence as yet that the Redskins' running backs are that good, it seems that the heavy duty will devolve again on Baugh, who has been Mr. Redskin for years.

No matter what the Redskins coaches think of the Redskins, the other important gentlemen in the league, Messrs Steve Owen, Greasy Neale, Curly Lambeau and George Halas always think of the Redskins in terms of Sammy Baugh.

SLIM SAMMY HAS been some kind of a wonder in the pro league for 10 years now. There was a slump for him a couple of years back when Redskin coaches junked Ray Flaherty's single wing formation and hopped on the T bandwagon.

Frank Filchock, then with the Redskins, took more easily to the T than did Baugh, but eventually Sammy mastered it, and last season there wasn't a better passer in the league than Baugh—no matter what the figures say.

Baugh's value never did start and end with his passing. If he wasn't the best punter in the league at least he was the best combination passer-punter. He lost some of the value of his quick-kicking when the Redskins adopted the T and made him handle the center snap from close up, but he still mixes it up and quick kicks from short punt formation.

The Redskins have come up with a succession of understudies for Baugh but none of them ever threatened seriously to move in on his No. 1 spot. Right now, the Redskins are high on Jimmy Youel and Tommy Mont, but when the club gets in trouble Baugh will be in there pitching no doubt.

IT WAS NOT uncommon to see Baugh in his first season with the Redskins running the ball on occasion. Despite his height he had a jack-rabbit running style that gained ground—but Coach Flaherty discouraged him from carrying the ball under pain of being fined. Baugh was too valuable as a passer to risk injury from tacklers and he cut out that running nonsense.

Even when he's hemmed in on a passing attempt in a situation where most sturdy guys like Filchock and Frankie Sinkwich tuck the ball under their arms and try to make up ground, Sammy has orders not to run.

He's philosophical about taking his losses on the chance that he can make it all up—and more— on the next play. Of course, he will run on some occasions when the chance is super-inviting but they are rare.

Before the league's squads numbered 33 and 35 men, Baugh used to be in there on pass defense, too. He was some shucks as a basketball player you know, and apparently a ball hawk, but Coach Flaherty soon came up with better pass defense specialists. Now its Dick Todd who usually takes over for Baugh on defense.

THERE WAS A DAY last year when young Youel had a big afternoon; completing a dozen passes and a couple of them for touchdowns, and I was talking to a Redskin veteran after the game and commented that "Youel looked good."

He said, "Yeah, he connected with a lot of passes but there were other times when we had men wide open and Youel didn't connect. Sammy never missed a wide open man in his life."

The Redskin coaches dislike to think of their ball club in terms of Sammy Baugh, and that's understandable because there are always 10 other guys on the field with him who have had a lot of coaching.

But Baugh has been Mr. Redskin for years now, and there's no evidence that he won't be their No. 1 guy this season.

In the Redskins' camp, they're bearing down hard on Youel and Mont as Baugh's understudies. They're trying to groom another Sammy Baugh—and you can't blame 'em for that. But it's like trying to groom another Babe Ruth. It hasn't happened yet.

Yanks Decide It's Now Safe To Open Series Ticket Sales

New York, Sept. 3 (AP).—The New York Yankees announced tonight that they will accept applications for 1947 World Series tickets in four-game sets. Season box holders and group plan ticket holders will have priority.

Orders postmarked after September 3 will be filled in the order of receipt and applications postmarked before September 4 will be returned. Applications should be mailed to Ticket Manager, Yankee Stadium, the Bronx, 51, New York.

Checks or money order for the number of sets ordered, plus 35 cents fr registry and postage, must be enclosed with the applications. Checks or money orders drawn for more or less than the correct amount will be returned.

The following prices have been set by Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler.

Bleachers	$1.00
General admission	4.00
Reserved seats	6.00
Box seats	8.00

All prices include admission tax.

All seats at the stadium, except the bleachers, will be reserved and sold only by mail until Sept. 20. Unsold reserved tickets will be placed on sale at the aYnkee ticket offices on Sept. 22. General admission (standing room) and bleacher tickets will be sold only on the day of the game.

Mail orders will be accepted for four-game sets (first, second, sixth and seventh games) and will not be accepted for single games. A set consists of one ticket for each of the four games at the stadium.

Dates for the game will be set at a meeting to be called by Commissioner Chandler.

If the Yanks represent the American League in the series, the first and second games will be at the stadium and the series will start September 30 or October 1. The next three games will be played at the park of the National League club. The final two games, if necessary will be played at the stadium.

British Hargreaves Shoots Record 64

Stoke Podges, England, Sept. 3 (AP).—Jack Hargraves, 34-year-old professional with a modest reputation in British golf, lowered the course record with a 64 today to lead the 1000 guineas ($4200) Penfold tournament at the end of the first round.

He held the record with a 66, established last year, when the par-trimming assault began this morning, but saw it broken midday by Sam King, one of the nominees for the Ryder Cup team that goes to the United States next month.

Tatum Announces First Cut Saturday And Terps Perk Up

Jim Tatum shot new life into his bulky University of Maryland football squad yesterday with the announcement that the knife will slice a sizeable hunk of the ponderous squad in the first cut of the year Saturday.

As the Terps went into heavy contact scrimmages in their third day of drills they were bolstered by the return to the team of Jim (Humphrey) Goodman, 270-pound tackle, who returned today from his honeymoon. Goodman's presence brings the squad total to 98.

With two veteran teams quarterbacked by Joe Tucker and Vic Turyn working against fiery freshmen candidates the staff began to get a line on the newcomers and it was evident that nobody intends to yield Saturday without a fight.

Cleveland Signs Oklahoma Star

Oklahoma City, Sept. 3 (AP).—Al Rosen, third baseman for Oklahoma City and voted most valuable player in the Texas League, today was signed by the Cleveland Indians for an undisclosed cash sum under a working agreement of the two clubs. Rosen will report after the season closes Sunday.

Cleveland also announced right-handed Pitchers Lyman Linde and Ernie Groth had been obtained on option and would report at the same time.

Rosen has been a sensational hitter all season. He leads the loop in batting, hits, two-base hits and runs batted in. He is second in runs scored and homeruns.

Spence Only Batter To Reach 1st Base

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, Sept. 3.—A 25-year-old record came within one errant toss of being equalled here today as Rookie Righthander Bill McCahan of the Athletics pitched a no-hit, no-run game against the Nats.

In conquering the seventh-place Nats by 3-0, the 25-year-old former Duke University athlete faced only 28 batters.

The only Nat to get on base was Stan Spence who reached second in the second inning after First Baseman Ferris Fain tossed wildly to McCahan after fielding Spence's easy grounder.

Had Fain's throw been good and Spence retired, McCahan would have had a perfect game, an achievement accomplished last by Charlie Robertson of the White Sox in 1922, against Detroit.

After Fain's boot of Spence's roller, McCahan retired the next 23 Nats in order, climaxing his great performance by striking out Pinch-Hitter Cecil Travis.

McCahan's no-hit, no-run performance was the third in the majors this year. Ewell Blackwell of the Reds did it against the Braves and Don Black turned the trick against the Athletics. Neither performance, however, was as masterful as McCahan's.

Today was the first time in 30 years that a Washington team had been subjected to such humiliation. Ernie Shore was the last to do the job on the Nats, accomplishing it for the 1917 Red Sox.

McCahan's control was perfect. He was 3-2 on only one batter, Catcher Frank Mancuso in the second, but slipped the next pitch in and Mancuso grounded out easily.

Only one Nat came close to getting a base hit, Mickey Vernon in the seventh. Vernon smashed a line drive to right center which Elmer Valo speared with his gloved hand almost against the fence, 375 feet away.

McCahan's momentous exhibition was staged in comparative privacy as only 4572 persons, including 1756 ladies' day fans, attended.

He's Carried Off Field

When Travis swung harmlessly at the third strike to wind up the 1-hour-and-26-minute spectacle, Catcher Buddy Rosar and Third Baseman Hank Majeskie rushed to the mound to carry the pitching star off the field on their shoulders as the small crowd roared an ovation which belied its number.

McCahan, a chunky 200-pounder who is an inch shy of 6 feet tall, was the calmest man in the Athletic dressing room after the game.

"I didn't know I had a no-hitter until the ninth," the former B-29 Army test pilot said. "I didn't get nervous then, but just tried a little bit harder. I wasn't after a no-hitter, I was just out there to win a ball game.

The victory was the ninth of the year for McCahan, a Philadelphia boy whose uncle, Izzy Hoffman, a champion base stealer for the 1905 Athletics, recommended him to Connie Mack.

This is his first full year in the majors and his third in organized baseball. With Toronto last year in the International League, he won 11 and lost seven and had an earned run average of 2.76, the second best in the loop.

Today's was the third no-hit game McCahan has been involved in. He was the losing pitcher on July 28 when Black, of Cleveland flipped his against the Mackmen. Eight years ago, McCahan hurled a no-hitter himself for Philadelphia's Langhorne High, but lost the game on walks and errors.

The Nats had little to say about the superlative performance. They didn't try to pull their punches in the ninth as Manager Ossie Bluege rushed in three left-handed batters, not to purposely try and spoil McCahan's game, but to do something about the 3-0 deficit. Early Wynn batted for Johnny Sullivan and popped to Eddie Joost; Joe Grace grounded to Pete Suder and Travis struck out.

Fain Throws Into Dugout

Spence grounded to Fain on one hop, but Fain threw the ball into the Nat dugout in trying to relay it to McCahan who rushed over to cover first.

Ray Scarborough was the losing pitcher. He yielded nine hits in suffering his tenth defeat.

Buddy Rosar has now caught two no-hit, no-run games for the A's. He was Dick Fowler's batterymate against the Browns in 1945 . . . Frank Mancuso has the distinction of having caught the losing pitcher in two no-hitters. He was behind the plate for the Browns against Fowler and caught Scarborough this afternoon . . . today's triumph ended a seven-game losing streak for the Athletics who are trying to regain fourth place. It also snapped the Nat winning streak at three in a row, all at the expense of the A's . . . the Nats come home tomorrow night to open a four-game stand against the Yankees . . . Walter Masterson will open the set with Vic Raschi as his probable opponent.

Cardinals Cut Bums' Lead, Win by 11-1

Chicago, Sept. 3 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals launched a 15-hit attack, including a pinch-hit homer by Ron Northey with the bases loaded, to subdue the Chicago Cubs, 11 to 1, today, cutting Brooklyn's National League lead to six games.

George Munger came through with his thirteenth victory of the year with an eight-hit performance until he departed in the eighth with a torn toe nail when hit by a line drive. Al Brazle allawed the Cubs one more hit in the final two innings.

The Cardinals went through five Chicago pitchers, taking a 5-0 lead off Johnny Schmitz in the first five innings. Held runless by Emil Kush and Paul Erickson for the next three innings, the Cardinals took off on Doyle Lade for a six-run spree in the ninth topped by Northey's grand slam homer.

It was the fifth straight victory for the pennant-bidding Cardinals.

Touchdowns To See Colts

Manager Lewis (Knocky) Thomas last night announced that the Touchdown Club will open its fall and winter schedule of activities Sunday when it sponsors the first of three excursions to Baltimore for outstanding pro football games scheduled there for 1947.

Some 150 Touchdown members and their guests are expected to turn out for Sunday's All-America Football Conference game at Municipal Stadium involving the Baltimore Colts and Brooklyn Dodgers. The Touchdowners also will attend the exhibition involving the Washington Redskins and Green Bay Packers that will be sponsored by the Variety Clubs of the two cities in Baltimore on September 21, and for the meeting of the Colts and New York Yankees on September 28.

Direct round trip transportation to Baltimore will be provided the Touchdown Club party Sunday when busses depart from in front of the club at 11:15 a. m. Choice seats for the game and a buffet dinner at the club afterward will be made available along with transportation. Members wishing to make reservation can contact Thomas at the Touchdown Club.

Cliff Battles, formerly the greatest running back the Redskins ever had, will coach the Dodgers opposing the Colts Sunday, while Ray Flaherty, the Redskins' great coach of a few years ago, will be directing the Yankees in Baltimore September 28.

Station WINX Airs Colts Games

The Baltimore Colts of the All-America Football Conference announced yesterday their games would be described play-by-play in Washington over Stations WINX and WINX-FM beginning Sunday at 2:05 p. m.

Ted Husing wil be at the microphone when the Colts open their season in Baltimore against the Brooklyn Dodgers. The following Sunday, September 14, the Colts will journey to the West Coast to tangle with the San Francisco 49ers. That game also may be heard over WINX and WINX-FM at 6:25 p. m. All 14 Baltimore games will be broadcast by the Washington stations.

Norfolk Team In Pro-Am Play

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 3 (AP).—Fifty-six teams were scheduled to tee off tomorro at the Atlantic City Country Club in a revival of the National pro-amateur golf tournament, a pre-war fixture at St. Augustine, Fla.

An 18-hole qualifying round will reduce to 32 the number of teams to compete in match play beginning Friday. Semi-finals and finals were scheduled for Sunday.

An early entry came from Jack Isaacs and Ed Simmler of Norfolk, Va., the Middle Atlantic pro-amateur titleholders.

Giants Lead All-Stars In 3d, 14-0

New York, Sept. 3 (AP).—The New York Giants of the National Football League held a lead of 14-0 over the College All-Stars at the end of the third period of their game at the Polo Grounds tonight.

In the first period, after Tucker and Blanchard lost five yards on two plays and Tucker tossed an incomplete pass, intended for Davis, Allen dropped back to kick with the ball on his own 25. The pass from center got through Allen and rolled into the end zone. Allen chased it, but ran right by it, only touching it as he passed. White, rustling right behind him, fell on the ball for a Giant touchdown.

Davis gave one quick display of his highly touted stepping, running a kick back 14 yards to his own 26, midway of the quarter, but just when it appeared he might get clear, he stumbled and fell, twisting his knee, and was carried off the field. Late in the period an All-Star drive, reached the Giant 20, with Tucker passing for 20 yards on two tries and Bartos getting 19 more on a pair of quick opening plays. Orlando's try for a field goal was short as the quarter ended with the Giants holding a 7-0 lead.

With Roberts cracking at the middle and Franck getting 16 on a fast sweep, the Giants moved from their own to the Stars' 39 early in the second quarter, from where Strong's field goal try was just wide. McCafferty blocked an All-Star quick kick on the Stars' 24 shortly afterwards, but after Franck got 16 to the All-Star 2 on a reverse, the Giants were stopped. Strong tried another field goal, from the 17, but it was wide again.

The All-Stars were unable to put together any consistent attack, and when Palazzi intercepted an All-Star pass on the Giants' 32, the Pros started to roll again. Paschka clicked in the longest run of the game up to then, a 21-yard gallop over his own left tackle to the All-Star 47. A pass, Reagan to Livingston, reached the Star 41 as the half ended with the Giants in front, 7-0.

THIRD PERIOD

After holding the All-Stars to mere inches at the start of the quarter, the Giants received a kick on their own 40 and rolled to a touchdown. Paschal picked up 11 of this over the tackles, but the major advance was chalked up by Nyles' passing. He tossed a long one for 26 to Franck and a shorter one for 7 to Sulaitis and then pitched for the final 17 yards and the score to Franck once more. Strong added the point and the Giants led, 14-0.

Colonials May Page Einstein

J. Neil (Skip) Stahley and George Washington University enter their second postwar football season featuring the first edition of the Stahley system.

The system, which only the skipper can explain and only his 44 squad members, he hopes, can understand, is a scientific plan which gives each player a specific moving assignment on every play.

It goes something like this.

The teams line up, GW on defense. Somebody calls a signal. The players (the Colonials have high academic standards) divide the signal by the square root of "X" and subtract "Pi." That gives them their cue.

Just as the ball is about to be snapped, each player does what is described as a "loop" into a preassigned position, which might be different on every play, to perform a prearranged task.

Ruth Wonders About Coast Loop Players' Source

Chicago, Sept. 3 (AP).—Babe Ruth paused here long enough today on his way to New York to remark "there aren't enough big league players to go around now ,so it's hard to figure how the Pacific Coast League could pose as a major league."

Ruth made his remark regarding the West Coast baseball loop's big league aspirations while having his picture taken on the steps of a train. The home run king has been on a goodwill tour of the far West to promote junior baseball.

Ruth, who underwent a major operation and spent weeks in a hospital last winter, today was darkly tanned and appeared about 15 pounds heavier than at the start of his trip.

50 Women Enter Mid-Atlantic Golf

More than 50 women already have entered the Mid-Atlantic golf championship at the Hermitage Club, Richmond, Va., September 8-12, Dr. Robert A. Keilty, executive secretary, said last night.

Among those who will compete are Mrs. Walter Stokes, defending champion, Mrs. Evelyn Glick, Miss Ann Dowling, Mrs. Betty Meckley, Mrs. Rex Howard and about 25 others from Washington and Baltimore.

Entries close Friday. Washington women should call Mrs. Frank Mirth, GE 5081, for details.

Feller's Salary Tops Babe Ruth's

Cleveland, Sept. 3 (AP).—Bob Feller's 1947 salary "already has exceeded" the highest figure ever paid to a major league baseball player—Babe Ruth's $80,000 stipend—reported Cleveland Indians President Bill Veeck today as he gave a fat $40,000 bonus check to his ace pitcher.

"Not only has Feller already passed Babe Ruth's salary, but his final wages for the year will exceed the $80,000 figure by a comfortable margin," said the Tribe prexy, adding that today's payment was "not a final 1947 bonus" for Rapid Robert.

Veeck said $75,000 was an "accurate estimate" of Feller's earnings with the Indians last season, but declined to say how many dollars above $80,000 represented his version of a "comfortable margin" for 1947.

Cleveland, Sept. 3 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox blasted 12 hits off two Cleveland pitchers tonight to win the first game of a twilight-night double-header, 8-3, before about 25,000 fans. Orval Grove scattered six hits to earn the victory over the tribe.

Hoyas Praised For Blocking

Blocking finesse drew coaching plaudits at yesterday's scrimmage of the Georgetown football squad. Particularly impressive were Tackles Andy Ronon and Jim Ricca and Back Len Bonforte.

Ronon, a tall, tough 200-pounder from Malvern Prep (Pa.) provided just the type of lightning-like thrusts the Hoyas need for their quick-opening T-formation plays. A three-sport letterman in prep school, he is the nephew of Jack Sullivan, former coach at Boston College and Fordham.

Bonforte's work at right half may earn him the blocking back spot, while Ricca's powerful lunges may keep a Brooklyn name in the Hilltopper line-up.

Punter Lou Surman boomed 50-yard spirals across the field with effortless ease and showed up well in the scrimmage when he broke clear for long gains on several plays.

Remember Benny? He's .579 Hitter

Wichita, Kans., Sept. 3 (AP).—Benny McCoy, second baseman for the St. Joseph, Mich., Auscos, hit 11 times in 19 times at bat for a .579 average and top batting honors in the 1947 national semipro tournament, the National Baseball Congress reported tonight.

McCoy, formerly of the Philadelphia Athletics, thus rolled up one of the highest batting averages in the 13-year history of the tourney.

His club, 1946 national champions, finished in a tie for seventh in the tournament won by the Fort Wayne, Ind., General Electrics, 4-2 victors over the Golden, Colo., Coors in a playoff last night.

Louis, Carnera Swap 'Punches'

Newark, N. J., Sept. 3 (AP).—World's Heavyweight Boxing Champion Joe Louis and former champ, Primo Carnera, swapped a few playful punches today for the benefit of photographers and autograph seekers while both men were waiting plane take-offs at Newark Airport.

Louis boarded a plane for Buffalo, N. Y., and Carnera took off for Norfolk, Va. Louis said he weighs about 215 and feels "very good." He is on his way to Toronto, Canada, for a four-day tour with his softball team, prior to start of training for his fight with Jersey Joe Walcott.

Carnera was scheduled for a wrestling match in Norfolk.

Four Top Pilots On Lanham Card

Four popular pilots, who have won nine of the 11 features at the West Lanham, Md., Speedway, are entered on the seven-event weekly midget automobile racing card tomorrow night, 8:30 o'clock.

Boston, Sept. 3 (AP).—Blasting Boston pitching for a total of 34 hits, the New York Yankees swept both ends of a doubleheader today, 11-2 and 9-6, snapping the Red Sox winning streak at seven straight and boosting their own American League lead to 12½ games.

Bobo Newsom coasted to his tenth victory in the opener as the New Yorkers assaulted Tex Hughson and three successors for 18 hits, all singles. Including four each by Joe DiMaggio and Tommy Henrich.

They came right back with 16 more hits in the second game off lefty Edgar Smith, Bob Klinger, Harry Dorish and Bill Zuber to disappoint a near-capacity crowd of 32,723 fans.

Repairs Rushed On Cobb's Racer

Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, Sept. 2 (INS).—Mechanics on Bonneville Salt Flats were working against time today, as they rushed repairs on John Cobb's $100,000 racing car.

Replacement parts arrived via air express from London for the damaged engine, and the work was being rushed as track officials feared a break in the favorable weather.

Cobb is expected to make at least one test run on the 13½-mile straightaway, before he tries for the record—possibly on Sunday or Monday.

Bowling Season Opens

The National League, made up of 18 teams, will open the bowling season tonight, 7 o'clock at the Greenway Alleys.

Bandleader In Cup Test For 3d Time

Guy Lombardo, of Royal Canadian and motorboat fame, will compete in the President's Cup Regatta September 20-21 off Hains Point, but he won't be at the helm of his Tempo VI, the smooth-running craft that last year won the Gold Cup and National Sweepstakes.

President's Cup Regatta officials at their fourth luncheon report meeting yesterday were told by Eric Greenleaf, powerboat chairman, that Lombardo would pilot Albion Fallon's Miss Great Lakes, the boat that defeated Guy in the 1946 classic here.

Lombardo, Greenleaf said, has declared his Tempo VI out of the race, following his failure in the Gold Cup at Jamaica Bay and the National Sweepstakes at Red Bank, N. J., this season. The noted orchestra leader had motor trouble in both races, won by Danny Foster and Miss Peps V. Guy junked his engine in disgust, and ordered his mechanics to install an Allison, the same type used in both Miss Peps and Miss Great Lakes and which the Army found to be so helpful with its P-38s during World War II.

Better Boat, He Says

Greenleaf said Lombardo told him "Miss Great Lakes is a better boat." Lombardo, at the invitation of Owner Fallon, piloted Miss Great Lakes in the Silver Cup at Detroit a few days ago and won the final heat in good time, beating Danny Arena's Notre Dame, which by the point system was declared the victor.

The Regatta program opens Saturday night at East Potomac Park Pool, and Don Bishoff, aquatic sports chairman, said that swimming stars were coming here from Philadelphia, Plainfield, N. J., and Newark, Baltimore, High Point and Tarboro, N. C.

Games Wanted

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 3.—The Blair baseball club of Martinsburg is seeking home games for this Sunday, September 7, and Sunday, September 14. The team will pay a guarantee to any team for making the trip or will arrange a home and home series. Telephone P. L. Hoover at 838 F-11, Martinsburg.

Navy to Work With Huskies; Scott's Return Cheers Coach

WHIDBY ISLAND, Sept. 3.—Fog and photographers were two new touches to the Navy training site at Whidby Island today.

The fog made its appearance at daybreak but did not prevent the usual morning calisthenics which Coach Tom Hamilton and his staff whirled the boys through before breakfast, highlighted by a 2-mile gallop designed to strengthen the legs of the Navy hopefuls.

As the fog disappeared the photographers made their appearance and for 2½ hours and put the boys through their paces with cameras grinding.

Dressed in their blue and gold uniforms the Middies looked fit and ready but Coach Hamilton was aware that they are a long way from being ready for the opener with California.

The squad will return the visit a week later in an informal scrimmage with the Huskies of Pest Welch at Seattle, a week before the California game.

In discussing the center situation today, Hamilton couldn't help but express some pleasure because Dick Scott, 200-pounder from Highland Falls, N. Y., who has roamed the center position for the Middies the past two campaigns, is back again and will captain the team.

Scott, who played brilliant ball last year and turned in his greatest performance against Army in the last game of the season, appears to be fit as ever. Scott, a great play analyst, has the ability to close up holes as they open and bring down the ball carrier with certainty.

Garvin Girls Win Regional Softball Title

Team Held Hitless, Trips Takoma, 4-3

Philadelphia, Sept. 3.—Although held hitless, the Garvin's Grill girls softball team of Washington, D. C., won the Central Atlantic regional tournament here tonight by defeating the Takoma, Md., Decorators, 4-3.

All four Garvin runs crossed the plate in the first inning when Takoma's starting pitcher, Jean Wood, walked three batters, hit a fourth, and then her teammates committed two errors. Jerry Fiorello took the mound for the Takoma team in the second inning and held Garvin's hitless the rest of the way, but the damage had been done. Takoma thus was defeated in the regional four the first time in four years.

The Garvin team leaves for Cleveland where it will play for the national championship later this month.

Both District of Columbia girls' teams needed an extra inning to reach the championship round. The Takoma Decorators defeated the Pottstown, Pa., Cardinalettes, 5-4, in eight, and the Garvin's Grill beat Virginia Dairy, Richmond, Va., by the same score, also in eight.

They played for the title at 8 o'clock (EDST).

The Kavakos Grill men's team, of the District, eliminated Virginia Dairy, 4-1, to enter the finals, but Thrifty Beverage, also of Washington, bowed out before the Trenton Democratic Club, Baltimore Maryland champions, 2-1, in the first round.

Shankweiler AC of Allentown, Pa., ousted the Baltimore team, 6-0, and faces Kavakas tonight.

Kitty Casale Stars

Pitcher Kitty Casale scored the winning run for Garvin's Grill in the eighth inning. She was safe on an infield error, sacrificed to second and scored when Centerfielder Ida Yarbrough misjudged a long fly for a two-base error.

Jean Reed's triple scored "Snooks" Stevens with the winning run for Takoma. The Decorators had picked up two in the third with the help of three errors. In the fifth, Miss Stevens tripled to drive in Ethel Fuller and then scored herself on an error.

Pottstown got two tallies in the first on successive wild pitches and deadlocked the game with single runs in fifth and sixth.

Kavakos Grill bunched five of six hits in three innings to account for its four runs, Bob Heinbraugh topping off the scoring with a home run in the fourth.

Thrifty Beverage, Capital champion, played sloppy in the third inning when Baltimore recorded its two runs. Ed Hauser and Hank Hufflebert scored on a walk, two bad throws, another error, and Ben Sheldon's single.

The Washington team scored its only run in the fifth when Jim Hassebb singled and toured the bases as Sheldon lost the ball at first base.

Birdie Helps Lucas Shoot Birdie No. 2

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 3 (AP).—Senator Scott Lucas (D., Ill.) got two birdies on the par three tenth hole at Rockford Country Club yesterday and has three witnesses to prove it.

The Senator's drive on the 180-yard hole hit a bird and both ball and bird dropped to the green. Lucas sank the putt for a two. The bird was killed by the tee shot.

Members of the Senator's foursome who saw the feat were E. K. Todd, general manager of the Rockford Register-Republic and Morning Star; William Todd, circulation manager of the paper, and Emory Hall, executive of a Rockford printing company.

Harness Race Driver Hurt in Car Crash

Indianapolis, Sept. 3 (AP).—Sep Palin, veteran Indianapolis harness racing driver, suffered a cut above the right eye in an automobile collision here last night.

Palin, who reined Hoot Mon to victory in the last hambletonian, had been scheduled to compete in today's grand circuit program the Indiana State Fair.

Frank Kerr, 17, driver of the other automobile, was charged with reckless driving.

'Blind' Draw Again Threat To Golf Aces

New York, Sept. 3 (AP).—Setting the stage for further protests about the use of the "blind" draw, the United States Golf Association today announced the pairings and starting times for the 210 players who will compete in the forty-seventh annual amateur golf championship at Pebble Beach course, Del Monte, Calif., next week.

These 210 players, survivors of an original field of 1048 which started in the sectional qualifying tests, will have it out in the first all-match play tourney since 1936.

The draw for the tourney was "blind" with no players seeded despite the protests which arose last year when a number of top-flight players were knocked out during the early 18-hole rounds.

The result left one quarter of the draw—the third—with a notably weaker field than the other three and brought possibility that one or more of the outstanding players might again become an early knockout victim. All matches are scheduled for 18 holes up to the semifinals.

Defending Champion Ted Bishop of Dedham, Mass., drew a bye through the first round, along with 45 others, and will not begin play until the second day. Topping the fourth quarter of the draw, Bishop found himself in the same section as Skee Riegel of Monterey Park, Calif., and Smiley Quick of Inglewood, Calif., fellow members of the 1947 Walker Cup team.

The 1939 and 1941 champion, Bud Ward of Spokane, Wash.; Willie Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y., the current British amateur champion, and Harrison R. Johnston of Minneapolis, 1929 United States champion, are grouped in the second quarter, all starting with first round matches.

Five Area Hopefuls

First round—Robert W. Brownell, Norbeck, vs. Eli Bariteau, jr., San Jose, Calif.; Walter Hazen jr., Richmond, vs. Thomas Strafaci, Plandome, N. Y.; Bernard A. Schriever, Alexandria, vs. Robert Cardinal, Colma, Calif.

Second round—Ralph M. Bogart (first round bye) vs. Richard D. Chapman, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Robert Morris, Landover (first round bye) vs. Robert W. Willits, Kansas City.

Walker Tops Junior Golf

Tall, bronzed Johnny Walker, who performed last spring on the Duke University team, registered a 79 yesterday to take medalist honors in the D. C. Junior Open Golf Tournament sponsored by the D. C. Golf Association at Georgetown Prep.

The twenty-year-old Walker, who is the junior champion at the Columbia and Chevy Chase Country Clubs covered the nine-hole, par 70 course in 41-38, two strokes better than the 81s posted by Marvin (Bubby) Worsham, of Bethesda-Chevy Chase High, Pat Rhodes of Devitt Prep, and Lou Swarthout of Western High.

Two rounds of match play will take place today in the three flights, with the semifinal and final rounds slated for tomorrow at Georgetown Prep.

First Flight

9:30 a. m. John Walker, 79, vs. Bob Wolfe, 83; 9:35, Dick Sturges, 82, vs. Monty Alspaw, 84; 9:40, Bubby Worsham, 81, vs. Stan Mouser, 84; 9:45, Jay Wolfe, 83, vs. Bob Holcombe, 85; 9:50, Lou Swarthout, 81, vs. Charles Malone, 83; 9:55, Eugene Wolfe, 83, vs. Billy Wolfe, 85; 10:00, Pat Rhodes, 81, vs. E. William-Mary Again Will Dominate Virginia's Football

Richmond, Va., Sept. 3 (AP).—Johnny L. Fenlon, beginning his final year as coach of the University of Richmond Spiders, predicted today that William and Mary's Indians would continue to dominate the Old Dominion football picture just as they have done since 1940. Down at Williamsburg, however, the man who guides the Indians—Coach R. N. McCray—said he wasn't so sure.

"We do expect to see an improvement over last season's team," the Tribe chieftan said, "but we realize that everyone else we play will be improved also."

Fenlon indoctrinated more than 40 freshmen, handed out pointers on the "T" formation, stressed timing and blocking, started limbering up the Spider backs and spent part of the practice periods passing with Quarterbacks Joe Laluna, Walt Bolen and Al Rinaldi doing the tossing.

William and Mary worked beneath a hot sun with End Bob Steckroth and Tackle Ralph Sazio, the team's cocaptains, sparking the drill.

The University of Virginia's football camp was bolstered by the appearance of John Papit, the Philadelphia schoolboy sensation of 1946, who was immediately shifted from right halfback to fullback, where he will alternate with Grover Jones and Ralph Shoaf.

Head Coach Art Guepe said he believed the fullback slot would be a more natural position for the freshman player. Barney Gill, halfback on last season's State championship team from Granby high school at Norfolk, also reported for the first time.

A brilliant exhibition of punting was given at Viriginia Military Institute by Jack Hutchinson and Vince Ragunas as Coach Arthur (Slick) Morton put the Keydets through four long sessions.

At the other Lexington camp, Washington and Lee, there was considerable gloom as Guard Herb Miller, a sophomore from Petersburg, had to retire because of a crippled knee which Trainer Lee Boyd said wolud keep the player oout of the lineup the remainder of the season. Practice unveiled the crack throwing arm of Pinky Gillespie, quarterback from McKeesport, Pa., who completed long, spiraling, accurate passes to 6-foot 6-inch Jim Lukens.

Forty Hampden-Sydney prospects worked out under Coach Morgan Tiller. Fifteen lettermen were included on the squad which Tiller expects to swell to 50.

Randolph-Macon drills under Coach Taylor Sanford saw 52 candidates, including 25 freshmen, reporting. Sanford said Wally Scrivener, of Alexandria, letterman at halfback, and Benjamin Lum, Petersburg tackle, were expected to report later this week.

Feathers Is Ready For Hard Scrimmage

Richmond, Va., Sept. 3 (AP).—North Carolina State's Wolfpack, coached by the old Tennessee workhorse, Beattie Feathers, apparently had become the first football team in the Southern conference today to throw the usual preseason practice preliminaries—calisthenics and elementary fundamentals—out the window and get down to business in preparation for the 1947 gridiron season.

Impressed by the condition of the majority of his squad of 90, Feathers announced he would put on a full-dress scrimmage this week.

Three freshmen, two from Virginia, moved into the spotlight at North Carolina, where Coach Carl Snavely is busy getting his defending Southern Conference champion Tar Heels ready for the September 27 invasion of Georgia's Sugar Bowl champs. The trio of freshmen worthies, all fullbacks, were Billy Hayes, of Arlington; Fred Sherman, of Wilkes Barre, Pa., and Dick Bunting, of Salem.

Although no contact work was held, Wake Forest's Deacons began to shape up their first eleven—at least a tentative first team, composed of Jim Duncan and Ed Bradley, ends; Glenn Reinhard and Bernie Hanula, tackles; Bob Leonetti and Ed Royston, guards; Nick Ognovich, Tom Fetzer, Harry Dewda and Tony Ditomo, backs.

Army Studies 60 Md. River, Shore Projects

By Fred Zusy
Associated Press Staff Writer

More than 60 Maryland rivers and harbors projects are under consideration by Army engineers, a survey showed yesterday.

Many of them were submitted years or more ago. The last Congress appropriated funds for only one—$45,000 for a small boat anchorage at Crisfield Harbor.

Because of legislative requirements and detailed investigation necessary before a project can be authorized, action on many of the proposed improvements may not come for some time. A first step is for Congress to authorize the War Department to conduct a preliminary survey.

Once Army engineers have submitted a favorable report on a project, the biggest hurdles of all remain—authorization by Congress and appropriation of funds. The engineers may report unfavorably. In such an event an appeal for reconsideration may follow.

Projects Authorized

Congress in 1945 authorized 14 projects in the Free State, the major share of them on the Eastern Shore. But funds have been appropriated only for the Crisfield development.

In addition preliminary examinations and surveys have been approved by Congress for 47 other proposals.

Army engineers have ordered two hearings September 24 in connection with proposed navigation improvements at Lowe's wharf and St. Michaels Harbor in Talbot County. The hearings on the former will be held at 11 a. m. at Sherwood and on the latter at 2 p. m. in St. Michaels.

The office of Representative Miller (R., Md.), which announced these hearings, also said the engineers plan a public hearing in late October at Mount Vernon concerning proposed navigation improvements in Johnson's Creek, a branch of the Wicomico River in Somerset County.

Channel Upkeep Considered

Miller's office also was informed by the War Department that advisability of Federal participation in maintenance of the recently completed Assateague Island channel could be considered in connection with a preliminary survey authorized for Ocean City harbor and inlet and Sinepuxent Bay.

All survey reports, such as this one, are first submitted to the division engineer, then to the chief engineer and finally to the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors for review, prior to submission to Congress with recommendations.

The State projects which have been authorized by Congress but for which no funds have been appropriated are:

Nanticoke River, Delaware and Maryland; Susquehanna River above and below Havre de Grace; Baltimore Harbor and channels; Mill Creek; Broadwater Creek; Cadle Creek; channel to Island Creek, St. Georges Island; St. Catherines Sound; Black Walnut Harbor; Town Creek; Duck Point Cove; Lower Thoroughfare; Deals Island and Pocomoke River.

Congress has authorized the engineers to proceed with preliminary examinations and surveys for the following Maryland projects:

Ocean City Harbor and Inlet and Sinepuxent Bay; Marumsco Creek, lower Somerset County; Wicomico Cove, Somerset County, with a view to constructing a jetty in the project channel; Twitch Cove and Big Thoroughfare River, with a view to construction of a boat basin at Ewell; Pocomoke River from Old Rock buoy to Williams Point, Taylors Landing, Worcester County.

Channel from Charlestown, Northeast River, to Havre de Grace; channel from Havre de Grace to Red Point via Stump Point and Carpenter Point; Bear Creek and Lynch Cove; Deep Creek and Fresh Water Pond; Honga River and Tar Bay, including channel and harbor in Back Creek, Hooper Island; channel in Honga River to the plant of White & Nelson, Hoopersville.

Harbor at Public Landing, Worcester County; Cambridge Harbor; Rock Hall Harbor; Rose Cove (Magothy River); Coxes Creek, tributary of Stony Creek; channels to Lake Orleton and Walnut Lake, Anne Arundel County; Walnut Creek between Bay Ridge and Arundel-on-the-Bay; channel from Kent Island Narrows to Weil Cove, Chester River; Port Tobacco Creek; Helens Creek, Calvert County; channel from Rhodes Point to Tylerton, Somerset County.

St. Patrick Creek; Big Kingston Creek, St. Marys County; Tanners Creek, St. Marys County; Parkers Creek, Calvert County; Chester River Channel; Nanticoke River, Bivalve, Wicomico County, with a view to providing a harbor for small boats; Governors Run, Calvert County, with a view to providing a small boat harbor; channel between Ramsey Bay and Chesapeake Bay and other measures for the prevention of damage from erosion near the mouth of South River, Anne Arundel County.

Area where Neale Creek empties into the Potomac River with a view to removing the sand bar, and providing a safe harbor.

Potomac and Anacostia rivers and adjacent waters in and near the District of Columbia, with a view to obtaining a comprehensive and coordinated improvement and development of such waters and their shores.

North East River, Cecil County, from Church Point to Stony Run; harbor at Betterton; Little Creek, Kent Island; Severing Creek at Ewell; Lakes Cove, Honga River, Dorchester County; Chapel Creek, Dorchester County; Tedious Creek, Dorchester County, with a view to establishing such jetties as may be necessary; Insleys Cove, Fox Creek, Dorchester County; Anchorage at Lowe's Wharf, Talbot County; St. Michaels, Talbot County; Johnsons Creek, Somerset County.

Patuxent River, with a view to establishing a deepwater port at Benedict and a suitable navigation channel thence to Solomon's Island; Lake Placid, Shore Acres, Anne Arundel County; Hatton Creek, Wicomico River, in the vicinity of Rock Point, Charles County; Miles River, opposite Oak Creek Bridge, to give outlet to Miles River, Talbot County; Point Lookout Creek in the vicinity of Point Lookout, St. Marys County.

VFW Chief Urges Air Power Drive

Cleveland, Sept. 3 (INS).—Louis E. Starr, cammander in chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, tonight asked his organization to support a drive for "the immediate creation of the world's most modern and powerful air force" in the United States.

Tomorrow night Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal will address the delegates at the annual encampment banquet.

Plane Crash Kills 3, Pins 1 For 36 Hours

Kenton, Ohio, Sept. 3 (U.P.).—After almost 36 hours of being pinned in the wreckage of a crashed airplane with the bodies of his three companions, Charles W. Gorman, 29, freed himself today and, although seroiusly injured, crawled to the nearest farmhouse.

He was rushed to a hospital and authorities hurried to the crash scene where they found the bodies of Mrs. Raymond Stotts, wife of the manager of the South Dayton (Ohio) airport, Muriel Talbot, 20, Dayton debutante, and William Stroop, 22, the pilot, son of a wealthy Dayton family.

The light plane had been missing since it took off from Cleveland Airport Monday after the National Air Races.

The plane crashed into an isolated woodland 6 miles northeast of here during a storm.

Md. Gets 1000 Cars Of Surplus Potatoes

Approximately 1000 freight carloads of surplus potatoes have been purchased by the Maryland office of the production and marketing administration, State chairman Joseph H. Blandford announced yesterday.

Blandford said the surplus potatoes had been placed in storage and distributed to industrialists, farmers, welfare and penal institutions.

Civil Service Reform Plan Under Study Over Nation

Sweeping Program Aims to Improve Operations, Says Citizen Group Head

A sweeping program of reform of Civil Service operations is under way, with special studies being conducted in Washington and other cities throughout the country, it was disclosed here yesterday.

"We hope to have a program of economy and efficiency ready for the next session of Congress to sink its teeth into," declared O. K. Armstrong, chairman of the Citizens Advisory Commission on Civil Service.

Speaking only in generalities pending the next scheduled meeting of the full commission, Armstrong of Springfield, Mo., revealed the projects under study by the 14-member body. They include:

1. A study of methods to secure and retain better personnel in Government, under subcommittee leadership of Mrs. Harold A. Stone, vice chairman of the National League of Women Voters. Mrs. Stone lives at 1051 26th rd. S., Arlington, Va.

2. Improvements in the Postoffice Department, under study by a subcommittee headed by William C. Doherty, 4911 Moorland lane, Bethesda, Md., president of the National Association of Letter Carriers.

Studies in other governmental branches are under way, Armstrong said, under the leadership of Byron J. Brophy, Big Rapids, Mich., in matters pertaining to the Interior Department; Moreland Brown, Kansas City, to develop a work pattern for functional studies of Federal agencies, and Carter W. Atkins, Hartford, Conn., to improve selection and training of supervisors in civil service.

The special advisory committee through which prominent citizens were asked to make recommendations for civil service operation improvements was appointed last month by the Senate Committee on Civil Service.

Jerry Klutts is back from his vacation His column, The Federal Diary, will appear as usual beginning tomorrow.

Garage Job Also Laid to Store Bandit

Youth Confesses Two Robberies, Police Declare

Chance capture of a Washington liquor store bandit here Monday evening also netted police the hold-up man who stole $1983 from the safe of the Capital Garage on July 28.

Robbery squad detectives identified him as the same man, Robert James Sowell, 19, of 1440 Rhode Island ave. nw., declaring he had confessed to both jobs.

Sowell, who initially refused to identify himself afte rrunning into the arms of police while fleeing after a holdup from Masters Liquor Store, 714 K st., Monday, with $2685, was jailed yesterday under $10,000 bond for grand jury action.

Cases to Grand Jury

Police said evidences in both robberies would be presented to the same jury, without prior arraignment of Sowell on charges of hold-up by force and violence in the garage case.

Sowell, police said, also is wanted in Alexandria, La., for being AWOL from the Army since February; by police in Cartersville, Ga., on a charge of automobile theft, and in El Paso, Tex., for violation of the National Motor Vehicle Act.

The youth, who listed his occupation as a soldier, confessed to the Capital Garage hold-up after detectives noted the similarity of method in both robberies, police said. They declared he used the same sawed-off .38-caliber pistol in both jobs.

Garage Robbery

In the garage robbery, the bandit forced four employes to lie on the floor as he opened the safe with the combination in 15 minutes. He scooped the money into a paper bag and walked out.

At the liquor store, the hold-up man forced the manager, Louis Deckelbaum, of 9302 St. Andrews Way, Silver Spring, Md., to lie on the floor. Then he ordered him to open hte safe, shoveled the money into a bag, and ran out.

Deckelbaum grabbed a pistol from under the counter and fired twice. The shots missed, but they attracted the attention of passing police, who caught Sowell almost as he emerged from the store.

Few Protest Personal Property Tax Boost

Less Than 100 Out of 20,000 File Complaints Over Assessments

Fewer than 100 of the 50,000 recipients of personal property tax bills here have complained about the tax boost which went into effect July 1, Assessor Edward Dent said yesterday.

The Commissioners ordered the tax rate hiked from $1.75 to $2 per $100 assessed valuation.

Many of the complaints were registered because officials differed with taxpayers' own assessment estimates in making out bills, it was revealed.

Send Higher Bill

"When people file a return and it's far below our scheduled figure, we just increase his assessment and sent him a higher bill," Dent said. The appraisal "schedule," he explained, is based on a study of the "vast majority" of returns filed.

Tax officials averaged the assessment estimates filed by persons living in various classes of homes. If a person living in a particular home class files a return much lower than the schedule for that class, assessors boost his bill, Dent explained.

Property Appraised

"We tell the people who kick not to pay the bill until we can send an appraiser to go over their personal property with them," he said. In such cases, no late payment penalty is levied.

Most taxpayers prefer to pay the higher bill rather than have an appraiser go over their property, Dent said. Many of the returns are lower than they should be because individuals fail to account for miscellaneous articles—like blankets, coffee urns, golf clubs, etc.—not specifically listed on the return.

More than 13,000 new tax accounts have been set up this year because investigators checked records and notified persons who had previously failed to file returns, Dent added.

St. Elizabeths Hospital Plans Outpatient Psychiatric Clinic

St. Elizabeths Hospital will open an out-patient psychiatric clinic sometime this fall in space formerly used by the Red Cross.

Dr. Winfred Overholser, hospital superintendent, told a Rotary Club luncheon at the Mayflower yesterday the clinic will supplement psychiatric programs of the District Health Department and private hospital, with St. Elizabeths doctors giving persons with minor mental or emotional disturbances free consultations. Early attention may save many such persons from ultimate institutional care, he believes.

The doctor called "too complicated and upsetting to a patient and his family" the procedure by which the mentally ill must first go to Gallinger and then undergo a lunacy hearing before being admitted to St. Elizabeths.

Dr. Overholser urged sending of pathological sex offenders to hospitals rather than to jail.

The psychiatric clinic should help break down community prejudice against a mental hospital, he said. The superintendent said care will be used to keep the clinic from conflicting with the Health Department's mental hygiene service.

"Actually," he said, "if the city had a half dozen clinics like the one we plan to set up, there still would be room for more."

Late-Lamented August Hottest In 47 Years

The Weather Bureau doesn't keep a record of complaints, but the records it does keep agree with citizens who camplained about August.

Warmed up by 16 days of 90 degrees or better, last month equalled or topped the all-time high for August in the Bureau's books. Whether it was an all-time record depends on whether you chop it into tenths or hundredths of a degree. The Bureau settles for tenths.

Temperature for the month averaged 79.6 degrees—the hottest since 1900. Even the humidity sought honors and gained a tie with Augusts of 1920 and 1928—78 per cent bi-hourly average for the month.

Next hottest August on the books was 1943's with 79 degrees, but the average humidity for those 31 days was only 60 per cent.

Yesterday August weather was lapping over into September. A high of 89 degrees was reached at 3:24 p. m. and a maximum of 90 degrees was predicted for today, along with "mostly sunny."

The bureau's cooperative stations in the Metropolitan Area recalled the heat to those who sweltered through last month this way:

Annandale in Fairfax County, Va., had an average temperature of 75.9 degrees; Barcroft and Waverly Hills in Arlington, 76.3 and 77.6 degrees. Bethesda in Maryland had 75.8; Riverdale, 76.8 and Brightwood, on the District's fringe, had 78.6 degrees.

Rainfall in the District was almost normal—3.86 degrees compared with a normal of 4.01, but Annandale had 6.03 inches for the month. Barcroft in Arlington had 1.64; Bethesda 2.18 and Riverdale 3.02 inches.

Rick Creek Forest, near Rock Creek and East-West Highway, had 5.54 inches.

"This," explained the bureau, "will explain what we mean by scattered thundershowers."

Breakdown of the District's high temperature figure shows an average high of 89.3 degrees and an average low of 69.8.

Normal temperatures for August in Washington are a high of 84.4 and a low of 66 for an average of 75.2 degrees.

Soft Drinker Goes Through Plate Glass

Deno Economides, the restaurateur, is out one soft drink and one plate glass window, but his conscience is clear.

Which is more than he can say for the youth who had the soft drink and then walked out—right through Deno's big plate glass window trimmed in artificial fish.

The fact that Economides was telephoning police and his clerk was holding a pistol on the soft drinker probably could account for the nonpayment and the unorthodox exit. They considered him a likely candidate for a robbery suspect.

Economides, 33, of 1410 M st. nw., unlocked his District Lunch Room at 1832 14th st. nw. for business yesterday morning and heard something besides the stew stewing in the kitchen.

Invites Him In

Picking up a pistol from the drawer, the proprietor investigated kitchenward to hear the noise of someone jumping out into the alley. Economides raced to a side window and saw the youth walking up the alley toward 14th st. As he went to the front door, the clerk, Mike Conomos, 54, of 524 3rd st. nw., reported for duty.

Economides asked the alley-prowling youth what he wanted and upon learning it was a soft drink used dulcet tones to invite him in. In what was Greek to all three of them, the proprietor handed the clerk his gun and told him to stand watch "while I call police."

Then they both conveyed the whole idea to the youth, who by this time was snapping at his soft drink.

It was then that Deno lost his plate glass window and payment for the drink.

Lucky, at That

It could be that the youth is lucky to have only a guilty conscience and possible lacerations. Conomos, the clerk, was exonerated by a coroner's jury last December for shooting a man who raised a rumpus in the District Lunch Room and returned to threaten Conomos with a gun.

Economides didn't want to shoot yesterday's suspect because "I wasn't sure he was the man."

Conomos didn't want to shoot the suspect as he strode through Deno's plate glass window because "the only thing I saw him do was come in the front door."

Reinstating Policeman Draws Fire

The Commissioners were attacked yesterday by the Washington Chapter of Americans for Democratic Action for their reinstatement of Pvt. James A. Stewart to the police force.

Stewart was found guilty by a police trial board of beating a Georgetown student and the decision was that he be dismissed from the force. The Commissioners reversed the decision and fined Stewart $400 instead.

Benjamin C. Sigal, president of the Washington ADA, said in a letter to Commissioner John Russell Young that the Commissioners' decision "smacks of condonation of a brutal assault."

"It now appears," Sigal wrote, "that a conviction of a policeman for slugging a man is no ground for dismissal from the police force. It apepars, further, that those who are sworn to enforce and uphold the law can violate their oats and degrade law enforcement with apparently little risk to their jobs."

The letter said that in the light of the Commissioners' action and other recent incidents it is "evident that the residents of the District must demand and obtain a thorough investigation of the present methods of maintaining and enforcing discipline within the police force, and must insist upon vigorous corrective measures."

Va. Picketing Law Headed for Test In Top State Court

Pulaski, Va., Sept. 3 (AP).—Virginia's picketing law, enacted by the 1946 General Assembly, headed for the State Supreme Court of Appeals for its first test today when Circuit Judge John S. Draper granted a stay of imposition of a trial justice court sentence to permit an appeal to the high tribunal.

Judge Draper denied an appeal by Parris Collins from a $15 fine imposed in trial justice court on a charge brought by State police of intimidation of workers at the RCA Victor plant here last April.

Trooper Steve Shelton arrested Collins in a picket line and charged him with carrying a placard bearing the legend "Be a man, not a rat, stay out."

At today's court session John M. Goldsmith of Radford, counsel for the union, asked for stay of imposition of the trial justice court fine and announced he would carry the case to the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals. Judge Draper granted him 60 days in which to perfect the appeal.

Lost 30 Years

Joy Crushes Barber, Told Mother Lives

For days Joseph Suraci, Washington barber, was sick in bed, crushed by unbearable joy over the miracle of his mother, returned from the dead.

Now he is well again and now he spends every waking moment planning the airplane trip to Italy. Soon he will see his madre he believed dead for 30 years.

The story goes back to 1919 when Suraci returned from the Italian Navy to the town of Gioia Tauro. There they told him his mother, brother and sister had perished in the earthquake of 1917.

Suraci came to America in 1920, married Mary Flory of Lancaster, Pa., settled in Alexandria, at 1120 Mount Vernon blvd.

"And always in these years," Suraci relates, "I say prayers in my heart for my madre, whom I never forget."

Then came the miracle. He planned to go elsewhere but at the last minute decided to spend July 4 at Atlantic City. On a barber's holiday, he stopped in for a haircut and found an old friend from Italy who told him his brother was still alive.

Suraci wrote to Italian authorities and discovered mother, brother and sister had fled to Cera, in 1917, later returning to Gioia Taur owhere they still live.

The othed day Joseph heard himself called "Pepino" again. It was his madre on the trans-Atlantic telephone.

"We both cried so much," said Suraci, "it was over, quick like a match lighting, before we could talk."

He plans to bring his mother, and if possible, the rest of his family, to America.

Maryland's Take $1,683,862 From Sales Tax During July

The Maryland retail sales tax brought the State revenue of $1,683,862 during July, State Comptroller James J. Lacy announced yesterday.

This intake, which exceeded by nearly $150,000 the amount expected, was collected by the more than 39,000 Maryland and out-of-State merchants filing returns for the month. July is the first month that the 2 per cent tax has been in effect.

Commenting on the return, Walter E. Kennedy, chief of the retail sales tax division, said that while it is not advisable to forecast the yearly return on the basis of a single month's experience, "we at least can feel certain the amount will exceed $18,500,000." The Maryland budget is geared to an annual sales tax revenue of that figure.

Kennedy said he is preparing a statement listing amounts received from the 25 tax subdivisions. This may give a "fairly accurate forecast" of the amount which will be collected ultimately. Baltimore, the 23 counties and out-of-State collectors form the subdivisions.

Kennedy also is preparing a report on the feasibility of doing away with the tax on purchases of less than 20 cents.

Terminal Leave Bond Cashing Drops Sharply on Second Day

Local banks reported a sharp drop yesterday in the number of veterans cashing their terminal leave bonds.

Business was far off that of Tuesday, the first day on which the bonds could be cashed. One bank said it cashed only a third as many bonds yesterday as Tuesday.

The Riggs National Bank, which cashed about $200,000 worth of terminal leave bonds Tuesday, said redemptions yesterday would be about half that.

In the District, the Veterans Administration has estimated that 58,200 veterans held terminal leave bonds worth $12,571,000.

What percentage of bonds were redeemed Tuesday and yesterday won't be known immediately. Banks are permitted one month after cashing a bond in which to report to the Treasury Department.

However, local banks prepared for the expected deluge by drawing five million dollars above their usual cash quota.

Department stores reported yesterday there has been no heavy sales increase yet as a result of the bond redemptions.

The spokesman for one store said his firm did not expect any great bulge in sales. He said economists had figured that the $1,800,000,000 in bonds held by nine million veterans throughout the country would affect retail sales nationally by only 2 per cent.

Houston Hotel Holdup Suspects Held in N. Y.

Two men answering the description of the robbers who held up the Houston Hotel desk clerk August 25 have been arrested in New York, police here said yesterday.

The men will be brought to Washington for questioning. The Houston Hotel bandits obtained $102 when a clerk was forced at the point of a gun to produce the day's receipts. One bandit carried a gun, and covered his accomplice at the door. The two men fled on foot.

ABC Board Test Case in Court Today

Whether the Alcohol Beverage Control Board can suspend the liquor license of an established solely because an intoxicated person has been allowed to remain on the premises will be tested in District Court today.

The action stems from an injunction suit filed yesterday on behalf of New Western Lunch Inc., 943 9th st. nw., asking that the ABC board be prevented from enforcing an order suspending the restaurant's beer and wine license.

The license was ordered suspended from September 8 to September 13 on the grounds that an intoxicated person had been allowed to remain in the establishment, allegedly in violation of a section of the law forbidding premises to be used "for any unlawful or disorderly purpose."

Indicted Realtor Organizations Will Be Arraigned Here Today

The two realtor groups indicted here last week on charges they conspired to violate the antitrust laws by fixing commissions will be arraigned today in District Court.

Arraignment of the National Association of Real Estate Boards and the Washington Real Estate Board will be in the court of Justice Jennings Bailey.

It is not expected that the officers of either organization will appear in court, but that counsel will be there. Roger J. Whiteford is the attorney representing NAREB and William E. Leahy is counsel for the Washington Board.

Herbert U. Nelson, executive vice president of UAREB, previously announced that further time wuold be sought to prepare the realtors' side of the case.

"The Government has been working on this for several years," said Nelson. "We'll need some time—at least 60 days—to get our data together. We'll have to get records from member boards in more than 900 cities."

The criminal indictment returned by a grand jury here eight days ago cited only the two realtor groups. No individuals were named.

Justice Department investigations into other phases of housing and alleged fixing of gasoline prices are expected to be resumed here shortly.

Nagy Purchases Farm In Fairfax County

Ferenc Nagy, former Premier of Hungary, has bought 130-acre dairy farm in Fairfax County.

County records show that Nagy, who arrived in Washington June 15 shortly after his government had fallen, entered a deed Wednesday for a farm, just south of Herndon on Route 28. He purchased his new home lock, stock and barrel from John H. Melrose. The papers show that in addition to house and grounds he received 35 milk cows, all growing crops and a long list of farming equipment.

Westminster Host To Conference of 150 Educators

Westminster, Md., Sept. 3 (AP).—Some 150 delegates from 20 States and the District of Columbia arrived at Western Maryland College today for a five-day conference sponsored by the National Council on Religion in Higher Education.

Dr. Albert C. Outler, of Yale, chairman, said the mornings would be devoted to study groups, the afternoons to recreation, the evenings to worship. The session will close Monday.

Study groups and their chairmen are: History and Literature of Religion, Dr. Amos N. Wilder, Chicago Theological Seminary; Philosophy of Religion, Dr. William F. Quillian, jr., Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio; Psychology and Religion, Dr. Seward Hiltner, Federal Council of Churches; Education, Dr. Franklin Littell, Unversity of Michigan; Social Sciences and Public Administration Dr. Paul Geven, Berea College, Berea, Ky.; Home and Community, Dr. Llewellyn Queener, Knoxville, Tenn.

Vepco to Request Appraisal Action

Virginia Electric & Power Co. lawyers are expected to appear in Fairfax Circuit Court today at 10 a. m. to ask for the second time that commissioners be appointed to appraise land needed as a right of way for a transmission line through the eastern part of the county.

A group of some 20 landowners have fought the project all summer. They say erection of aerial lines would decrease values of lands they had planned to develop as residential areas. Led by Mason Hirst of Annandale, they have asked that the court forbid erection of the line or at least force it underground.

Two weeks ago the county board of supervisors asked for a ruling as to its authority to order the line constructed underground. The attorney general replied that in his opinion the board does not have the authority to take such action. Vepco says the purpose of the line is to supply added current to the overtaxed northern Virginia system.

Youth Jailed 22 Months in Petty Thefts

An Arlington County youth drew jail sentences totaling 22 months for petty larceny yesterday after he was found guilty of 11 violations in Arlington Police Court.

The defendant, Robert Gray, 19, 2021 S. Oxford st., was sentenced to two months on each of the 11 charges. Police said the charges resulted from a series of forays into the basements of apartments on the 4700 block of S. 16th st. over a two-week period. Gray pleaded not guilty to all the allegations.

The youth was arrested last Saturday by Policemen Russell Runyon and Paul Heath, who said they caught him in the act of ransacking an automobile. A search of his room led to the recovery of large quantities of loot which had been reported stolen from the 16th st. apartments, they said.

Most of the loot, consisting of men's and women's clothing and miscellaneous articles, was identified by the owners during a two-hour court session.

Police Hunt Assailants of D. C. Salesman

Prince Georges County Police yesterday were investigating the beating and robbing of a Washington novelty salesman found wandering in a dazed condition near Prince Georges Golf and Country Club late Tuesday night.

The injured man, Charles Raker, 53, of 257 Rock Creek Church rd. nw., was in Prince Georges General Hospital, Cheverly, Md., with a broken jaw and bruises on the head and face. Police were unable to obtain a coherent statement from him.

From incomplete reports, the police said he had apparently been assaulted by a group of men while driving his new automobile along a lonely road near the club and that he had been robbed and his car taken.

A resdient of the area found the injured man wandering along the road and called county police. Police broadcast a lookout for his car and its occupants.

Easton Furniture Store Swept by $15,000 Fire

Easton, Md., Sept. 3 (AP).—The Building and stock of the Economy Furniture Co. was described as almost a total loss by Easton firemen today after a blaze swept through the two-story building.

Firemen unofficially estimated the damage between $15,000 and $20,000. An alarm at 1:40 p. m. brought all available fire apparatus in Easton to the half-block-long building. Firemen said the fire started in the rear of the building where furniture upholstering was done.

Bogus Check Ring Hunt Extended to Three States

Baltimore, Sept. 3 (AP).—Baltimore police today asked Virginia, West Virginia and Georgia authorities for help in breaking up a bogus check ring that they suspect of doing more than $10,000 worth of business.

Police Lieut. Louis Vinup said two men were being held here, and that he was trying to track down four women and another man.

Tuck Authorizes $100,000 Deficit In Aid Emergency

Richmond, Va., Sept. 3 (AP).—Governor Tuck today authorized the State Welfare Department to incur a deficit of $100,000 to meet an emergency in the public assistance program, and released $576,000 in emergency funds to the Department of Mental Hygiene and Hospitals.

The public assistance money will be used to supplement State aid to localities and to meet Federal aid allotments for public assistance to indigent families and individuals.

Request for additional funds was made by the State Board of Public Welfare on August 15 after a special study of the public assistance situation by the Mitchell study commission.

Of the funds released to the hospital board, $111,000 will go to the Southwestern State Hospital at Marion, $240,000 to Western State Hospital at Staunton, and $225,000 to the State Colony at Lynchburg, to improve the personnel situation at these institutions and to supplement the ration allowance.

Day's Tonging Suggests Season on Par With '46

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 3 (AP).—First reports from Maryland's oyster areas bore out early forecasts of a season as good or better than last year, Capt. Amos Creighton of the State Tidewater fleet said today.

Tongers in the Choptank River caught up to 30 bushels each in yesterday's opening of the 1947 tonging season. Creighton estimated the average catch at 22 or 23 bushels.

Prices throughout the tidewater section ranged from $1 to $1.75 a bushel.

Creighton said the tonging haul should improve over last year in the southern reaches of the Eastern Shore and remain at least as heavy in the Potomac and along the Western Shore.

Watermen in Kent County and through the upper part of the bay had little hope for substantial catches. Freshets killed off the oyster crop there two years ago and the area is still depleted.

New Teachers Welcomed

Warrenton, Va., Sept. 3.—Twelve new teachers for Fauquier County schools were welcomed by C. M. Bradley, county superintendent, at a general meeting of teachers held at the Warrenton High School yesterday. Plans were discussed for the opening of classes Friday.

The new teachers are Miss Lena J. Moore of Marshall, assigned to The Plains grade school; Charles F. Shuler and Miss Amy Sanders, both of Marshall, who will be at Marshall High School; William D. Snyder of Warrenton, to teach at Warrenton High School; Miss Lois V. Sloop, Harrisonburg, Va., and Miss Shirley Easterly, Lebanon, Va., assigned to Warrenton High School; Miss Mary C. Sanitation Work Pushed In Fairfax

The Fairfax County board of supervisors yesterday acted to speed development of sanitary facilitis in the fast-growing eastern portion of the county.

The six-men board authorized executive secretary R. M. Loughborough to appoint J. J. Corbalis sanitary engineer of Sanitary District No. 1. The district includes most of Mount Vernon and Falls Church magisterial districts and a part of Providence.

Corbalis, now with the county planning department, has experience in sanitation work and is a civil engineer.

Loughborough said the most important job facing a sanitary engineer would be educating the residents in the advantages of passing a bond issue for sewer lines and a sewage disposal plant. The county has leased a sewer line, constructed by the Federal Government, which runs through the district. This lease would terminate six months after the President proclaims the end of the national emrgency, Loughborough said. He thought the district could purchase this line for about $500,000.

Another matter to be faced immediately is the construction of a sewage-disposal plant for the area. Plans must be submitted to State officials by next February. Money for its construction must be raised within the next two or three years, Loughborough stated.

A resolution recommending the splitting of Falls Church into at least two voting precincts and the elimination of some of the county's present 26 precincts was sent to the county electoral board. There are 3300 registered voters in Falls Church while at least one precinct has only 20 voters, said Supervisor B. N. Gibson of Falls Church.

Fire Fighters Study Use of 'Wet Water'

The 200 volunteer firemen attending the short course of the Fire Extension Service at University of Maryland yesterday rolled up their sleeves and plunged into technical demonstrations of the latest firefighting methods.

A demonstration of "wet water," chemically treated water that blankets fire, was given by Alfred N. Henschel of the Alrose Chemical Co., Providence, R. I. W. Y. Kimball, editor of "Firemen" magazine, spoke on profiting from mistakes.

After luncheon, the student firemen began actual contact with sprinkler systems and automatic fire alarms, gas masks and the chemistry of fire extinguishers. Last night, the lighter side of a fireman's life was shown in a skit and films.

A lecture on fire ladders and their use by Hugh Walker, chief engineer of the American LaFrance and Foamite Corporation Elmira, N. Y. and a talk on "Is Firefighting a Profession?" by Fred Shepperd, editor of "Fire Engineering" and other handbooks, are on the program for this morning.

More classroom work will follow the talks and a banquet will be held tonight at 6, with an entertainment program scheduled after the dinner.

The course, which opened Tuesday, will end tomorrow.

30,000 Troop Too School Today in Va.

Nearby Virginia schools will open their doors today to an estimated 30,000 school children.

Alexandria expects an enrollment of 7000, Fairfax, 10,800, and Arlington, 12,750.

In Alexandria and Arlington registration for new students was completed yesterday. Youngsters entering Fairfax County schools for the first time will sign up today.

Alexandria youngsters will have one consolation. They won't be expected to spend a full day in classes. Students in the first to third grades will attend from 9 a. m. to noon and students in the upper grades will break into the school routine with a 9 a. m. to 1:30 p. m. program.

Parochial school students in Maryland also are scheduled back today but will be excused at noon.

Virginia parochial schools, like those in Washington, will not open until Monday.

Public school students in Prince Georges and Montgomery still have a week's vacation. Their first day is Wednesday. In the District, the summer vacation stretches on until September 22.

10,00 Open Congress of Adventists

San Francisco, Sept. 3 (AP).—The 10,000 delegates attending the Seventh Day Adventist Youth Congress which opened here tonight will "help launch a mighty wave of evangelism which will reach throughout the world."

Elder E. W. Durbar, 6632 Harlan pl. nw., Washington, D. C., secretary of the church's youth work throughout the world, said the only hope for civilization lies in religion.

"Phases of our program," he said in an interview, "will stress the point that only a true Christian world could hope to be one world.

"Our delegates, all of whom are members of missionary volunteer societies in their local churches, will be commissioned to carry the Gospel of Christ to every nation, kindred, tongue and people."

The Congress, first in the 103-year history of the Seventh Day Adventist Church, which has its world headquarters in Takoma Park, Md., will be attended by youth leaders from the continental United States and Hawaii, Canada, Latin America and many foreign lands.

Council Delays Closing of Hyatt Manor

Postponement of the closing of the old Hyatt Manor, ordered last week, has ben voted by the Hyattsville City Council.

After protests had been made by representatives of the 47 persons residing in the old mansion, the council decided to postpone eviction of the residents until the health committee of the council can make a personal inspection of the premises at 7 p. m.

The residents told the council meeting Tuesday night that they had no place to move and that actually the historic building is kept in clean and presentable condition.

The council had ordered the building vacated as unsafe and unhealthful last week at the same time the Octagon House, another historic residence, was ordered abandoned as a dwelling. The Octagon House order will remain in force.

In a letter read at the meeting, the council was informed that the city will receive approximately $10,520 for street and road maintenance as its share of the gasoline tax revenue collected by the State of Maryland. William A. Codd, chief auditor of the State Roads Commission, wrote that the allocation was based on 26 miles of surfaced roads in the city, which is about 4.1 per cent of the road mileage in Prince Georges County, he said. The money is used for maintenance and is not available for new construction.

The roads commission informed the council that the only way the traffic situation can be corrected at the intersection of Agar and Queens Chapel rds. would be to extend Agar rd.

The council granted a permit to the West Hyattsville Citizens Association for a carnival September 15 to 20 to raise funds for construction of a community house for Boy Scouts and other teen agers of the community.

Construction of a concrete roadway, curb and gutter on 29th ave. in ueens Chapel subdivision was authorized by the council.

Mayor Caesar L. Aiello and members of the council accepted an invitation to attend the convention of the Prince Georges County Volunteer Firemen's Association September 12 and 13 in Hyattsville.

Hearing for Two Police Officers To Be Resumed

Frederick, Md., Sept. 3.—Hearings in the dereliction of duty charges against Police Chief Frederick M. Straley and Lieut. Reno Six will be resumed next week, William M. Storm, chairman of the city police commission, announced today.

The hearings, which began in July, were suspended during August while the chairman was on a Pacific Coast vacation trip. Charges against the two officers were filed by Sergt. Daniel Swomley. A number of witnesses appeared before the five-man commission at a closed hearing July 29.

Sindall Dies; Once Headed Athletic Board

Baltimore, Sept. 3 (AP).—Robert Allison Sindall, 65, former chairman of the State Athletic Commission and of the Baltimore Liquor License Board, died early today at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Sindall suffered a stroke July 4 at his home just as he prepared to leave for Hot Springs, Ark.

His automobile had been brought to the front of his house and he was about to leave when he remembered that he had failed to say goodbye to two grandchildren.

Sindall first was appointed head of the Athletic Commission in 1931. Two years later he became head of the Liquor License Commissioners under appointment by the late Gov. Albert C. Ritchie.

In 1941, Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor again made him chairman of the Athletic Commission and in 1943 he was named chairman of the liquor license agency, which he served until May of this year.

Sindall, born in Baltimore June 9, 1882, was at the time of his death president of A. K. Robins & Co., manufacturers of canning machinery. The firm was founded by his grandfather, Samuel Sindall, in 1855.

He formerly served as president of the Canning Machinery and Supplies Association of North America.

Sindall also was prominent in the Masonic fraternity in Maryland.

The programs have been set up by the conference district officers in cooperation with the study and action committee composed of Mrs. Elmer E. Hess, Staunton; Mrs. Roscoe C. Johnson, Lynchburg, and Mrs. B. M. Nance, West Point.

The Rev. F. B. Oglesby, newly appointed district superintendent, will speak in Winchester, while Mrs. R. G. Pullen of Charlottesville and the Rev. Henry Lee Robinson, who has just returned from Europe, will speak in the Richmond district.

The seminars will be held from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. in the Lexington-Staunton district on September 16, the Woodstock-Winchester district, September 17, and in Alexandria at the Washington Street Church, September 18.

WAA Officials Face Hearing on Bribery Charges

Richmond, Va., Sept. 3 (AP).—Two Richmond officials of the War Assets Administration face preliminary hearings before United States Commissioner Melvin Flegenheimer at 10 a. m. tomorrow on charges of violation of a Federal bribery statute.

Herbert Dunbar Tinker, chief of the aircraft and electronics division, and Lawrence Donald Bryan, chief of the electronics branch of the WAA, have been charged with violation of the bribery statute in a Federal warrant sworn out by the FBI.

Tinker and Bryan were under $2500 bonds.

The warrant charged that the pair did "unlawfully solicit from S. A. Cisler (of the Electronics Service Corp., Louisville) the sum of $25,000 to renegotiate a sealed bid of $69,920 awarded to S. A. Cisler, reducing the same to the sum of $10,000 for the purchase of certain electronic cable from the War Assets Administration."

New Killer Mob Held Worse Than 'Murder, Inc.'

New York, Sept. 3 (INS).—Brooklyn was declared today to be infested with a new mob of killers that, according to Judge Samuel Leibowitz, makes "Murder Incorporated" look like "a penny-ante affair."

"Murder, Inc." was perhaps the toughest gang of cold-blooded killers "for a price—you name" that Brooklyn ever knew.

Judge Leibowitz made his comment on the new mob today as three men were brought before him for sentencing.

Assistant District Attorney Helfand told the court they were "in position to give valuable information" that would clear up eight murders and a number of robberies in Brooklyn in the last year.

They'll Be in the Red

Richmond, Va., Sept. 3 (U.P.)—Pranksters ringing false alarms in Richmond hereafter will be caught red-handed.

Firemen today painted alarm boxes with an indelible red stain that won't wear off for months. Only one chemical will remove the stain—and that cleanser is available only at police headquarters.

Maryland Asks Bids On Road Projects

The Maryland State Roads Commission announced yesterday it would receive bids until noon of September 16 on the following road projects:

Prince Georges County—Grading, drainage and concrete surfacing of a channelized intersection along Queen Chapel's rd., and Rockwood ave., adjacent to Eastern ave., at the District of Columbia line.

St. Mary's County—Construction of a 12-foot concrete culvert on Route 249 between Gallaway and Valley Lee.

Wood Alcohol Kills 8 In Florida Prison Camp

Belle Glade, Fla., Sept. 3 (AP).—Agonizing death from wood alcohol claimed eight prisoners at Florida prison camp No. 2 today, and a ninth man lay unconscious, near death, after group-swigging of a poisonous coffee-cocktail.

Camp Superintendent W. B. Granger said 16 convicts were found writhing after consuming a pint of painter's alcohol at a nocturnal "party" in their quarters. Six died during the night, and two more succumbed this morning.

Isaiah's Fable

Communism? It's Like a Railroad Train

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

IT'S HARD for us everyday citizens to grasp the mechanics of communism. The circles within circles seem hopeless to untangle. But supersmart Isaiah Berlin, wartime British Embassy attache and now an Oxford don, takes lesser minds over hurdles easily by simply comparing the communist movement to a railroad train.

Here's how ingenious Mr. Berlin does it. The communist movement is a train going lickety-split. Only the engineers really know where it is going. Inside the train is a uniformed group who, acting as conductors, pace through the cars, collecting fares.

The seats are crowded with slap-happy passengers. They don't know where the train is going but they're awfully glad to be traveling with such exciting speed. A mob of standees huddle around the exits. Peering out uncertainly, they're just beginning to worry about the train's destination. Every once in a while the train speeds around a sharp turn, and some of the standees are tossed out.

Applauding crowds line the tracks, cheering the train as it whizzes by. These stooges don't care who's running the train or where it's going. They're tickled red just to see a bit of action.

Of course the engineers are big shot, inner circlers, the Stalins, Molotovs, Vishinskys. The uniformed conductors, those who keep the train running, are minor functionaries.

The passive passengers are "fellow travelers" while the standees are disillusioned, former fellow travelers. The admiring, noisy crowds are "twilight sleepers," joiners who know little of communism but like the excitement—a little, let's say, like our own Henry Wallace. It's all very easy, now, isn't it?

Which Berlin?

THE ORIGINATOR of this modern fable made as big a hit in Washington as he does in Oxford. Small, burdened with a bad arm and lisping voice, he fascinated by intellect and extraordinary erudition. Born in one of the Baltic states, he became an English citizen and emerged from the confines of Oxford as somewhat of a mystery man.

The story goes that Winston Churchill, who had heard fabulous tales of Isaiah, was most anxious to meet him. One day Irving Berlin, then in England producing the United States Army show, was invited to a Downing Street luncheon. Inevitably, Churchill confused the two Berlins and the ensuing Berlin-Churchill conversation was one of the screwiest on record.

Around Washington, when Isaiah Berlin had to refuse an invitation, he encouraged eager hostesses to rain check by hissing enthusiastically, "Try me again. Try me again. I love to be woo-ed. I love to be woo-ed. I love to be woo-ed!"

Casey for Chairman?

THE PROBLEM, if and when, of Bob Hannegan's successor, is still prime favorite of Capital dinner tables. A lot of informed people think that Joe Casey would capably as well as ornamentally fill the Hannegan footwear as Democratic Party chairman.

Joe Casey, in case there's anyone who doesn't know, was a several-term, most successful Massachusetts Congressman. He wanted to run for Bay State Governor, they say, but was persuaded by FDR to campaign for Senator against Cabot Lodge, jr.

Cabot, aura-ed by Army glamour, won the tussle and Casey returned to Washington and a most profitable private law practice. As legislator he ran up a stimulating record as New Dealer, interventionist and well-get-oner with all types of politicians. He's friendly, too, with Leon Henderson and Wilson Wyatt.

Not the least part of the Casey saga is his beautiful wife, Connie, a sister of Drew Dudley, who directs publicity for the World Bank.

Miss Freer and Mr. Keith Feted

Miss Jocelyn Freer and Norman Keith, who will be married today, were guests of honor at a dinner party at the Spanish Embassy last evening. The dinner followed the wedding rehearsal, and guests included all members of the wedding party and their husbands and wives.

It was at the Spanish Embassy that Miss Freer and Mr. Keith first met, and for this reason they planned to spend the day before the wedding with their young hostess of last evening, Senorita Anita Baraibar, daughter of the Spanish Minister and Senora de Baraibar.

The dinner table was decorated with white flowers and white candles. Senorita Baraibar received in a strapless bouffant gown of white lace, and her sister, Teresa, wore a strapless ballet dress in wine red with gold stripes. The Minister and Senora de Baraibar received with their daughter.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Elliott Freer, parents of the bride-elect; Miss Teresa Muniz, Miss Elena Ivanissevich, Miss Drucie Snyder, the maid of honor; Miss Monica Gaillard, Miss Hope Erwin, Miss Ann Gillespie, Miss Polly Norment, Miss Janet Exnicious, Miss Missy Howell, Miss Marino Drago and Turner Bailey.

Philippine Staff Given Supper Party

Members of the Philippine Embassy staff and their wives were entertained at a buffet supper last evening by Financial Attache and Mrs. Juan A. Barratto at their home in Chevy Chase.

The Minister and Mrs. Ramos attended, and the First Secretary and Mrs. Gamboa. Also, the Second Secretary and Mrs. Maloles, the Second Secretary and Mrs. de Castro, the Military Attache and Mrs. Velasquez, the Assistant Military Attache, Lieut. Senador D. Valeriano, the Commercial Attache and Mrs. Zafra and the Press Attache and Mrs. Valencia.

Visitors from the Philippines included Mrs. Dolores Buencamino, and Paz La'O, Mrs. Socorro Liboro and Mrs. Fe Teodoro.

Miss Pancoast Is Married to Frank G. Eppes

Purcellville, Va., Sept. 3.—In a wedding in the Purcellville Baptist Church at 4 o'clock this afternoon Miss Margaret Alice Pancoast, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Pancoast of Purcellville, became the bride of Frank Gibson Eppes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Eppes of Leesburg, Va.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. A. R. Larrick of Plant City, Fla., uncle of the bride. Mixed white flowers, ferns and white candles formed the church decorations. The wedding music was played by Mrs. N. B. Hawthorne, jr.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore ivory satin, fashioned with an off-shoulder yoke of net with bertha of satin and long pointed sleeves. Her fingertip veil of illusion was fitted to the head with a halo of seed pearls, and she carried a white Bible and gardenias.

Miss Nancy Pancoast of Purcellville, cousin of the bride, who was flower girl, wore white dotted Swiss, made like the bride's dress and carried a basket of white rose petals.

Charles Pearson of Bluemont was the best man, and the ushers were Lomax Milbourn of Hamilton, and Billy Pancoast of Purcellville.

Thomas Stibolt and Miss Hiney Marry

Miss Jean Hiney of Evanston, Ill., and Thomas Bodley Stibolt of Washington were married September 2 in the First Baptist Church of Evanston, the Rev. E. Winters officiating. Mrs. Stibolt is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hiney, and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pyke Johnson of Washington.

The wedding party included the bridegroom's parents and his two brothers, Victor Stibolt and Richard Stibolt.

Mr. and Mrs. Stibolt will make their home in Chicago, where the former is studying law at Northwestern Universtiy.

MRS. C. RALPH SNOWDEN
... Wed in white lace

A WEDDING of interest took place yesterday when Miss Nancy Louise Whitehurst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Luther Whitehurst of Conetoe, N. C., became the bride of C. Ralph Snowden, son of Mrs. J. W. Snowden and the late Mr. Snowden of Fairmont, W. Va. The ceremony took place in the home of the bride, the Rev. James G. Horn of Reformation Lutheran Church officiating before an improvised altar of palms and white flowers.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white lace with fitted bodice and full skirt which flowed into a round train. Her veil of illusion fell from a coronet of lace an dshe carried a cascade bouquet of white roses centered with a white orchid.

Miss Grace Whitehurst was her sister's only attendant. She was costumed in a gown of aqua faille and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses. Representative Francis J. Love of Wheeling, W. Va., served as best man.

After September 30, Mr. and Mrs. Snowden will make their home in Washington.

The bride was graduated from the Women's College of the University of North Carolina in Greensboro, N. C., and is now employed by Representative John H. Kerr in his Washington office. Mr. Snowden attended Fairmont State College in Fairmont, W. Va., and received his degree in law from National University, Washington. He is now employed as secretary to Representative Francis J. Love.

MRS. CHARLES B. SPALDING
... Marries at Silver Spring

Spalding—Hauser

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Spalding are honeymooning at Ocean City, Md., following their wedding August 30 at St. Michael's Church at Silver Spring, Md.

The bride was Miss Marion R. Hauser and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hauser of Silver Spring. Mr. Spalding's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Spalding of Washington.

The Rev. Francis Lannan officiated and the bride's father gave her in marriage. For her wedding Mrs. Spalding wore ivory satin trimmed with lace and the veil was held with a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried gladioli.

The attendants were the bride's sister, Mrs. Kathryn Murrell of Baltimore, the matron of honor, who wore royal blue; Misses Evelyn M. Hauser and Marjorie S. Hauser, also sisters of the bride, Miss Wilda Gumm, and Miss Jerry Spalding, sister of the bridegroom. They wore fuchsia gowns with feather headdresses and carried yellow chysanthemums.

John White was best man and the ushers were Richard Clemens, Paul White, Eric A. Murrell and Robert A. Hauser.

A reception was given by the bride's parents at their home and among the guests were Ferenc Nagy, the exiled Prime Minister of Hungary; Mme. Nagy, with Dr. Stephen Borsody, press chief of the former Hungarian Legation, and Mme. Borsody.

Kefauver—Hefner

Frank Kefauver and his bride, the former Miss Bobbie Hefner, have returned from a wedding trip to Rehoboth Beach and Ocean City, Del., and are at home at 202 Maple ave., Takoma Park.

They were married August 23 at St. Luke's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Silver Spring, Md., with the Rev. Robert E. Lee officiating.

The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grady M. Hefner of Silver Spring, wore a white jersey afternoon dress with a corsage of orchids. Mrs. J. R. Taylor of Silver Spring, who was her sister's only attendant, wore cinnamon brown crepe with white carnations.

The bridegroom served for nearly five years in an Army airtroop unit and was discharged with the rank of staff sergeant. He is now with the National Guard Bureau and has the rank of staff sergeant in the District National Guard. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Kefauver, sr., of Washington.

WONDERFUL COLLARS
HOLD YOUR CHIN UP OR SHOULDERS DOWN

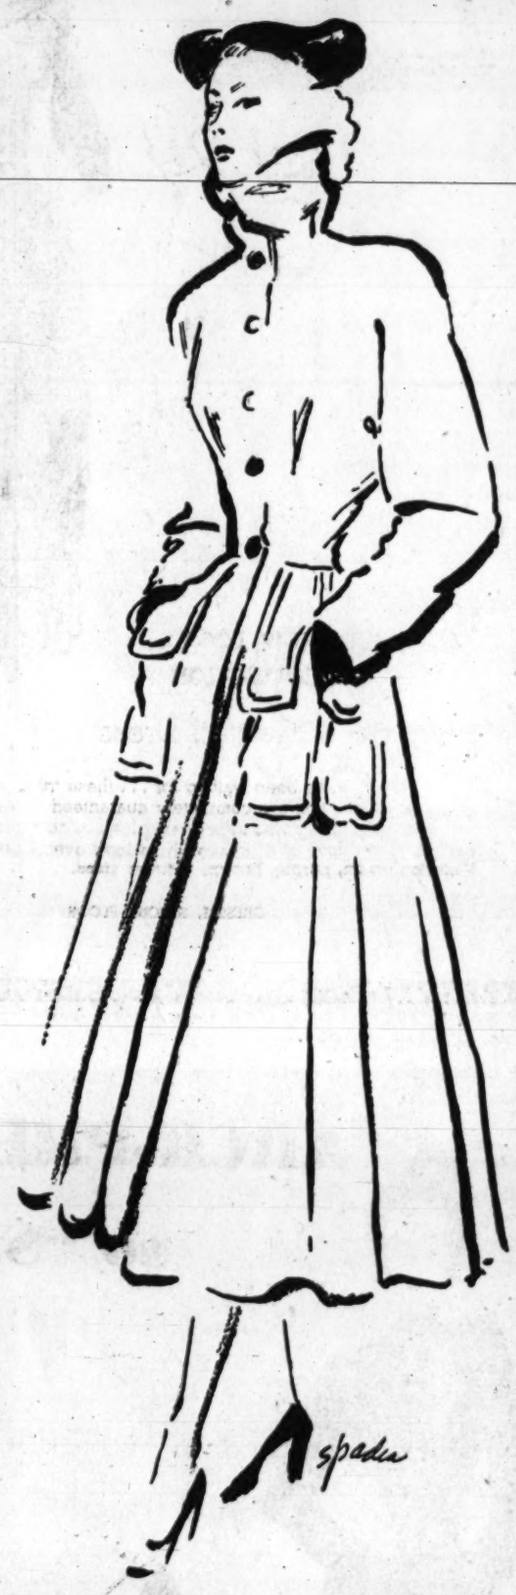
JULIUS GARFINCKEL & CO. REPORTING



Collars are causing comment. We have selected the most interesting in all the New York fashion showings and illustrate two here.

The luxurious zibelline-cloth coat, left, has a deeply draped collar that shawls your shoulders, giving the new softened shoulder line. Your silhouette has most lovely symmetry when this collar is thrown up into a hood.

The chin-holding collar in the Forstmann suede cloth, right, is very Dandified. It opens out and down.

This is only the beginning of Gershel collar ideas. There are tweedy scarfs or shawls tied under the spreading Byronic collar of your coat, giving a thrilling dash of color . . . there's a satin muffler, wound round and round, raising your collar higher and higher, until the points almost reach your ears. You may find that you can adopt these scarf ideas for your own.

Gershel coats are fitted, flared, boxed, wrapped. They are all lengths except seven-eighths. A coat just short of the new skirt lengths looks wrong. A short little Dolman, to wrap snugly around your hips, is very smart, very useful — right with both day and cocktail skirts The Gershel coat and suit collection is designed by Bobby Knox.

Little Loving Won't Spoil Your Baby

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

And discussion about not letting the baby cry when some soothing attention will end it, is always challenged by the contention that if he gets this attention he will become spoiled.

Of course, there are spoiled babies, but they have not been spoiled by giving them attention when they needed it. They have been spoiled by giving them entertainment when they did not need it. The busy mother is seldom guilty of this, but aunts, cousins, brothers, sisters and grandparents are prime offenders. To them the baby is a toy with which they like to play and so they pick him up, walk with him, sing to him, dandle him on their knees and so whet his appetite for these attentions that when they are not forthcoming he cries for them.

What the young mother must keep firmly in mind is that her crying baby needs to be soothed and his crying ended. When it is, he will not think up reasons for being soothed some more. The best babies everywhere, are those who get their needs supplied quickly and who enjoy the necessary loving which makes them feel secure and happy.

Dr. Esther C. Brunauer, left, speaker at the Zonta Club's luncheon yesterday, chats with Mrs. Dorothy Scates, club president

Dr. Brunauer Tells Zonta Club Of UNESCO's World-Wide Aims

Twenty to 30 international "traveling fellowships" as part of UNESCO's program for 1948 will be proposed at the second session of the General Conference of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization to be held in Mexico City beginning November 6.

This was revealed yesterday by Dr. Esther Caukin Brunauer, the State Department's policy liaison officer on UNESCO, who was guest speaker at the Zonta Club's opening luncheon-meeting of the fall season held at the Dodge Hotel.

The quiet-mannered, gray-eyed woman who held the rank of Minister when she represented the United States on the Preparatory Commission of UNESCO in London early last year, presented a "progress report" of the idealistic organization which came into being nine months ago in Paris.

High in the list of stumbling blocks, she listed the difficulty of developing a suitable secretariat.

Leaders a Need

"There are still some projects without permanent heads," she declared. "Because of UNESCO's wide fields—its broadly represented organizations, in a geographical sense and otherwise—it takes time to bring together the best from all parts of the world. But if UNESCO can't command the skills and talents of the best education and training in the world, who can?" she asked confidently.

Another drawback is the cultural blackout suffered under Hitler.

"We are actually starting our international organization's life behind the 1930's," she explained. "The years when Nazi control and domination spread over Europe and the terrible destruction of war have brought about such a crippling of normal activity and communication that people cannot move about as they did.

"But we have made progress," she asserted. "Main proof is that the organization is in existence. Also, the ideals of UNESCO have been accepted by 30 governments who have acknowledged that the educational and cultural life of peoples is a matter of international concern, that the way people think plays a great part in the maintenance of international peace and security.

UNESCO No Dictator

"UNESCO does not dictate the kind of education a country must have," she continued, "no international power can do that. But it can make suggestions and create facilities for the exchange of ideas. The ministries of education of many countries are among the first group to support UNESCO . . . That is why we can expect great achievements."

"Although we cannot yet permit anything near the number of students who traveled before the war," she pointed out, "we must work together to restore conditions to what they were previously, then carry on beyond that. In this connection 20 to 30 traveling fellowships will be proposed at the conference in Mexico City in November as part of UNESCO's program for 1948."

Mrs. Dorothy Scates, president of Zonta Club, presided at the meeting and Mrs. Dorothy Girton, program chairman, introduced the speaker.

Your Questions On Homemaking

We have lovely blue morning glories over our front door. The blossoms fall every day, and some of them have been stepped on and tracked over our gray broadloom rug. They have left mulberry-colored stains. Is there any way I can remove them?
J. W. J.

Flower stains can often be removed with water. Sponge the spots with lukewarm water over a pad of absorbent cloth. If this isn't effective, try sponging with milk. Remove milk later by sponging with carbon tetrachloride.

I would like to buy several old-fashioned wire chairs—the kind that were used around the tables in drug and confectionary stores years ago. Could you tell me where I can find them?
G. S. A.

Try telephoning some of the firms listed under "Furniture—Used" in the yellow section of your telephone directory. You may find one that has some of these chairs. Or perhaps some reader of this column can tell us where they can be located.

How may a child's stuffed animals be cleaned or washed thoroughly? C. B.

If the stuffed toys were sold as washable, apply stiff soapsuds with a brush. Do not wet them through. Rinse with a brush and clear water. Dry quickly in the sun or on a radiator. Brush the hair up when dry. Those with oilcloth coverings can easily be wiped clean with a cloth wrung out in warm water and mild soapsuds. Rinse by wiping with clear water.

My baby carriage of leatherette has become mildewed in the basement. What can be done to remove the mildew and prevent its return? Can paste wax be used after mildew removal?
N. S.

Remove as much of the mildew as possible by brushing the carriage out of doors. Wash thoroughly with lukewarm water and soap. Rinse by sponging with clear water. Then use either a commercial preparation designed to remove and prevent mildew (one is sold in the household goods section of a local department store), or sponge with a solution of 1 cup denatured alcohol and 1 cup water. The latter will remove mildew but not guard against its return. Dry carriage thoroughly in the open air. Wax is not recommended for use on leatherette. It would be advisable to find a dryer place to store the carriage than in the basement, as the dampness there may make it deteriorate in several different ways.

Are there any books which tell how to make outside lanterns out of tin cans, or to wire old kerosene lanterns with electricity? J. F. F.

"Easy Crafts," by Ellsworth Jaeger, (published by MacMillan) tells how to make attractive outdoor lanterns from tin cans. This book is on sale at an F street book store. It may possibly be obtained in your local library also. I do not know of a book that gives information on wiring lanterns. However, it shouldn't be a difficult task. You can probably buy the fittings in the 10 cent store or at an electrical supply shop. The home lighting department of your power company should be able to give you advice on this subject.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Working Mother, A Widow, Faces Problem Of Providing Right Home for Child, 2, Who Is Tearful, Anxious and Lonely Now

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a widowed working mother of a 2-year-old child and we live in rented rooms. The landlady takes care of my baby during the day. I dress her, give her breakfast and take care of her over weekends.

Each morning as I leave for work she is heartbroken; twice she has followed me to the bus; often I can hear her crying after me halfway down the block and at nights when I get home, she starts to cry and runs to meet me. Some days she eats; other days she won't, and the neighbors say she acts lonely.

Her distress is hard on me and I'm afraid it might affect her personality later on. Some people say she will outgrow it; that children forget, etc.; and I know that some working mothers put their children out to board and go their merry way, but I can't. I would feel I had missed so much of her childhood.

Child Was Happy With Grandmother

I STAYED with my mother for awhile nd worked, and the child seemed quite contented there; she didn't mind my comings and goings. My sister has offered to keep her for me; but if she had her, I probably wouldn't see her very often. Am I selfish in wanting her with me?

If I had my own apartment I would hire somebody to look after her, but landlords don't want any tiny tots, I've found, and at present I'm thankful for the roof we've got. I have thought of getting a job as companion or housekeeper where I could have her with me and give her the care and attention I think she needs.

I hope to marry again but circumstances aren't favorable. My time is spent washing, ironing, shopping, etc., and some of my friends say I should make other arrangements for baby's care so I could get out and have some fun. If I do go out, I have to take baby by bus to my mother's and call for her later, which disturbs her rest.

What's the solution? I'd like to hear from other mothers who've been left with small children. How did they manage? Perhaps there is no way except to flounder along until the children are ready for school and able to partially care for themselves. Any comment will be greatly appreciated. D. K.

No Pat Answer To the Problem

DEAR D. K.: There is no pat solution to this type of difficulty. Any good mother left with small children does the best she can, from day to day and year to year.

She uses utmost initiative, working with whatever resources she can muster, to take care of the children's security needs in the here and now. And she doesn't consider her feelings first.

Rather, she identifies herself with the children's feelings and to the best of her ability brings about a situation that makes them feel comfortable, happy, safe and loved.

Thus I wonder why—when your child felt secure in her grandmother's care—why have you switched to the present arrangement which so greatly disturbs her? And why don't you grab at your sister's offer, if it would restore the child to familiar hands and lessen her desperate anxiety?

Pondering these questions, it occurs to me that you are afraid your child's allegiance might in large measure be diverted from you to her aunt or grandmother, if you let them give her that "care and attention" you know she needs.

Is Jealousy Afoot Here?

IT APPEARS that your unconscious preference is to leave her forlorn with strangers, pining for you, rather than take a chance on losing emotional supremacy in her scheme of things. Which probably means that you are so hungry for love, and so uncertain of your ability to gain it in the adult arena, that you are tending to become a jealously possessive mother.

I think you sense that, as for instance when you ask, "Am I selfish in wanting her with me?" You are selfish indeed to cling to this arrangement, so punitive to the child, if your sister or mother would take her in loving hands, and she would feel safe-at-home there.

She is under terrific panic-pressure at present, spending bewildered long "lost" days in a strange environment, after a previous unsettling experience of shift-and-change. Her personality is being affected now. An acute anxiety neurosis is taking hold,—and for her sake I think she should be given sanctuary with aunt or grandmother, until you've got home care to offer. Chic Non-Combatant

La Chase on Sideline in Hemline Tiff

By Bessie Hackett

"SKIRTS have been going up and down like elevators for years!"

Tossing off this breezy opinion, Ilka Chase, considered one of America's best-dressed actresses, refused to sprout a single gray hair worrying over the most turbulent Question of the Day in the world of women.

Leaning comfortably back in a chair in her room at the Hay-Adams House, the long, lithe star of "Laughter From a Cloud" which opened Tuesday night at the Olney Theater, wore a simple black moire dress which revealed an intriguing portion of well-filled, sheer dark hosiery.

"I don't hold with people who think the new styles are a scandal of the fashion designers. That's ridiculous," she declared.

"It's just that the eye has become accustomed to certain lines appealing to the current idea of beauty," she explained. "Suddenly the lines change. The eyes becomes outraged. 'What's this?' it demands angrily. 'What's going on here?' After a time, the eye adjusts itself and, looking at some of last year's styles, chuckles, 'don't they look funny?'"

MISS CHASE herself proposes to buy the clothes she finds on the market.

"Any mode in the world can be adjusted to the individual," she pointed out. "This is where a woman must follow her own fashion sense. I must say I've found some very attractive things among the new models."

Miss Chase wore one of her newest purchases to the Skyroom of the Washington Hotel yesterday when she was honor guest at a luncheon of the Fashion Group. Miss Gertrude V. D. Prisley, regional director of the group in Washington, acted as hostess. At the informal gathering Miss Chase appeared in a Christian Dior creation of navy blue wool with sloping, padded shoulders, rounded hipline lined with buckram and a pleated flounce ending 14 inches from the floor. A white gilet added a demure touch. Apologizing for appearing sans chapeau, the star quipped, "I've been doing the straw hat circuit all summer—it's the only hat I've got." Incidentally, La Chase is wearing her short black hair a new way—pulled back and up to sprout in a feathery pouff held in place with a dark ribbon. "It's a change from my horse's mane," she confided, "and I'd look hideous with it over my ears like a spaniel."

Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

Ilka Chase (left), actress, authoress and fashion authority, and Mrs. Mary Senate George pause for a chat at the Fashion Group luncheon yesterday on the roof of Washington Hotel

A PORTABLE typewriter, so slim it fits into a suitcase, is an indispensable item of Miss Chase's traveling equipment. One of the busiest actresses of stage and screen she lectures—frequently is in the midst of a radio program, and has three best-sellers to her credit. She spends every leisure moment in Washington revising the first draft of her newest book. Titled "Free Admission," it's in the nature of an autobiography, taking up where "Past Imperfect" left off.

The war, as it did to so many other women, introduced a new chapter in the personal life of Ilka Chase. This new book, to be published in a few months, tells the story of that chapter—her romance with handsome Dr. Norton Brown, whom she married last December on "Pearl Harbor Day" following her divorce from the radio agent, William B. Murray. "However, Bill and I are still very good friends," says his ex-wife.

Dr. Brown, now in private practice in New York, served as a commander in the Navy and was chief medical officer on the aircraft carrier San Jacinto. Both Dr. and Mrs. Brown are gourmets and they love to cook. Frequently when friends drop in at their 8-room apartment in New York, the "doctor proudly concocts his fish chowder specialty or Ilka creates one of her favorite salads. "But I really adore rice dishes," she confesses.

She has a huge appetite and feminine friends groan as they watch her eat without counting calories. Her tall frame—5 feet 8 inches—keeps its streamlined slenderness. Exercise? "I walk all over New York," she says brightly.

Ilka, a native New Yorker, is the daughter of Edna Woolman Chase, editor of Vogue, and at one time was London correspondent for the magazine. Her name is Hungarian—a diminutive for Ilonka or Ilona—and she was named for a friend of her mother's. Educated in a convent, private schools and in France, she was always "stage-struck" and made her theatrical bow with the late Stuart Walker's Portmanteau Theater in Baltimore. Despite her successes in such plays as "The Animal Kingdom" and "The Women," she has a secret yearning to do Portia in "The Merchant of Venice."

Has Anyone Told You . . . ?

FROZEN SUCKERS for the youngsters can be made at home with a kit now on the market. It includes a supply of sucker sticks and four sucker molds, to be filled with grapejuice, chocolate milk, or other liquids, and placed in your refrigerator to freeze.

THERE'S A "COLOR BAR" in one of the Washington stores where you may take a sample of material and buy paint that will exactly match it. The paints—flat semi-luster or enamel for furniture, walls, and other inside painting—are mixed in the desired shade at the bar.

A SINGLE CUP of coffee can be made in a jiffy with a clever new gadget that fits on top of the cup. It's made of plastic and aluminum and has a paper filter which goes inside it. Finely ground coffee is placed in the filter, boiling water poured over it, and hot coffee runs through into your cup.

SPRAYS FOR deodorizing clothes closets now come in pine scent and in various flower fragrances.

Wedding Date

The wedding of Miss Sally Frances Friedman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Friedman, and Ross Sumer Wheeler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel N. Wheeler, will take place October 19, in the Blue Room of the Shoreham Hotel. The engagement was announced in the early spring.

Va. Supreme Court Decision Kills Threat to Zoning Plan

Staunton, Va., Sept. 3.—The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals today reversed a Fairfax Circuit Court zoning decision that had threatened to invalidate the county's zoning plan.

In other decisions among the 14 released by the court, it overruled the conviction of an Arlington woman for violation of the county zoning ordinance and reversed the conviction of a Harrisonburg restaurant operator for the slaying of Frank C. Smith, Harrisonburg war veteran.

The court upheld an appeal filed by Fairfax officials against a decision handed down by Judge Leon M. Bazile, of Hanover County, in which he dismissed charges filed against L. W. Parker, operator of an automobile "graveyard," for violation of the county's zoning ordinance.

In his opinion, Judge Bazile expressed the belief that the Fairfax zoning ordinance was invalid, and local authorities said a similar decision from the Supreme Court possibly would necessitate a redraft of the entire ordinance.

In reversing Bazile's decree, the Supreme Court remanded the case for entry of a decree to restrain Parker from use of the land for an auto graveyard "unless such use can be discontinued within a reasonable time."

The Supreme Court also upheld the appeal of Helen E. Carroll, of Arlington, against an Arlington Trial Justice Court decision in which she was fined $10 for violating the county zoning law by allegedly permitting two families to live in a house in a single-family residential district.

The State's highest court ruled that Miss Carroll, being single, did not constitute a family, and therefore there was no violation of the "two-family" zoning clause when she permitted another family to live in the basement of her home.

A case against Ralph H. Garner, found guilty of second degree murder in Rockingham County and sentenced to 20 years in the State penitentiary, was revedsed by the Supreme Court and remanded for a new trial in the County Court at Harrisonburg.

Garner had been found guilty of murder in the death of Frank C. Smith, Harrisonburg war veteran, whose body was found in the basement of his home February 20, 1945. In reversing his conviction, the court pointed out that the coroner had first issued a verdict of suicide in the Smith death, and had maintained his position after further pathological examination.

Other decisions by the court today included:

By Justice Edward W. Hudgins: Edward V. Taylor vs. the Commonwealth, from the Circuit Court of York County. Judgment affirmed; Atlantic States Motor Lines, Inc., vs. the Commonwealth, from the State Corporation Commission. Order affirmed: Rosa Belle Gilmer vs. John A. Brown and others, Circuit Court of Albemarle County. Decree reversed and remanded. Justice Gregory dissenting.

By Justice Gregory: Herman Taylor and Nathaniel Taylor vs. the Commonwealth, Circuit Court of Warwick County. Judgment affirmed; S. E. Rudlin, etc., vs. Lawrence Parker, from the Law and Equity Court of Richmond, Part II. Judgment affirmed.

By Justice George L. Browning (who died just before the court's September term opened): State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Co. vs. William H. Cook from the Circuit Court of Williamsburg and James City County. Judgment affirmed; Roland Rudolph Gary vs. Clarence Artist, from the Hustis Court of the City of Richmond, Part II. Judgment reversed and remanded.

By Justice John W. Eggleston: Mazie White, administratrix, etc., vs. Edwards Chevrolet Co., Inc., from the Circuit Court of Wise County. Local Showers Aid Va. Crops; General Gains Are Only Slight

Richmond, Va., Sept. 3 (AP).—Local showers in the eastern, central and southern portions of the State in the week ended August 29 brought some relief to late crops, and for the State as a whole crop conditions improved slightly, the Virginia Cooperative Crop Reporting Service said today.

"In the southwestern counties," the service reported, "frequent rains were retarding harvest of late hay, but pastures and corn were unusually good. On the other hand, many areas in the eastern, southern and central districts have had little or no rainfall for five to six weeks, so late crops of corn and hay, farm gardens and pastures are almost a failure."

Rainfall during the week was spotted and varied from no rainfall at Farmville to 4.64 inches at Roanoke.

Soil moisture generally was ample for crops and pastures, except in the eastern, central and southern counties, the service's report added.

Corn prospects were described as "unusually good" in a few northern and southeastern and in most western and southwestern counties. Pastures continued to improve in the northern, western and southwestern counties, but were dry in other areas and afforded little grazing.

Maryland Gets Rains

Baltimore, Sept. 3 (AP).—Although most sections of Maryland benefited last week from rains, areas fo northeastern Maryland and northern Delaware are still deficient in soil moisture and vegetation is deteriorating, the Weather Bureau said today.

The bureau said that temperatures were about 5 degrees above the late August normal, but no extreme high or low temperatures were recorded. The weekly crop review, for the period ended last Saturday:

Garrett, Allegany and Washington Counties—Threshing of some small grains held up by rain, and some damage in shock resulted. Rain also delayed preparation of land for winter grains, as well as other farm operations. Corn made good growth. Truck crops and gardens were mostly good. Sugar corn and tomatoes were picked in good quantity. Summer tree fruits continued to be picked, while varieties for later picking sized nicely. Pastures and hay crops were good to excellent.

West of Chesapeake Bay—Corn thrived on warm, showery weather, but was spotty in Harford, Baltimore and Carroll Counties. Ground was prepared for winter grains in many areas. Tuck cops and gardens were good except fair in northeast, and fair and improving in south. Tomato and sugar corn canneries operated at capacity. Summer tree fruits were picked, with later varieties developing well, except fall apples. Tobacco improved considerably. Pastures mostly good and improving, except poor and improving in south and locally fair in north.

Del-Mar Peninsula—Showers were plentiful, except in Cecil and Kent Counties. Truck crops were variable. Tomato crop continued to glut market. Sweet corn also plentiful, but early crop is ending. Pastures mostly fair, but improving in southern and central areas.

Md. Bay Span Fee Contract Near Signing

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 3 (AP).—Preliminary work on a Chesapeake Bay crossing will have formal approval in a few days when an engineering contract is signed with the J. E. Greiner Co. of Baltimore, Chairman Robert M. Reindollar of the State Roads Commission declared today.

Greiner engineers will draw up construction plans and specifications for the link between Maryland's eastern and western shores.

Governor Lane announced agreement on a contract last week after a conference in Ocean City. The fact that it is almost ready for signature was disclosed after a meeting in the State House today of the Governor, Reindollar, Attorney General Hall Hammon and Assistant Attorney General Robert Clapp.

"We cleaned up final details on the 1938 engineering contract, which will have to be rewritten in a few parts," Reindollar said. "They were mostly technical details."

In 1938, the Greiner firm made a survey for a Chesapeake bridge and planned the spans now completed over the Susquehanna and Potomac Rivers.

The new contract grants the company a 6 per cent fee on the total cost of a bay crossing—estimated at about $30,000.

Meanwhile, Reindollar said he was ready to discuss with Governor Lane "at his convenience" specific projects to be undertaken in Maryland's road building program.

This year's General Assembly increased highway taxes and authorized a 100 million-dollar bond issue for building new roads and improving present ones.

Under the law, the Governor must approve each project and decide on the date and amount of bonds to be issued at various times.

Spencer Made Head of Chief Sinclair Unit

By S. Oliver Goodman

H. F. Sinclair, president of Sinclair Oil Corp. and Sinclair Refining Co., announced here last night that he has resigned as and will be succeeded in this office by P. C. Spencer.

Sinclair Refining, principal subsidiary of Sinclair Oil, operates extensively in Washington and area. In announcing Spencer's elevation, Sinclair said it was only the first of official changes with the purpose of placing younger men in key positions.

Spencer has spent 25 years in the oil and gas industries. A graduate of University of Nebraska in 1916, he served in the Army during World War I. Later he became secretary to United States Senator Francis E. Warren of Wyoming. His active connection with oil business began in 1922 when he joined Producers and Refiners Corp. When Sinclair acquired the Prairie companies, of which Producers and Refiners was a subsidiary, Spencer became active in Sinclair organization, moving to New York in 1934. He became general counsel of the corporation in 1946.

Sinclair last year refined and marketed more than four billion gallons of products and transported more than 111 million barrels of crude oil and products in its pipe lines.

HILTON PROGRESS: Hilton Hotels Corp., which operates the Mayflower here, reported new highs in volume and earnings in first six months this year. Gross was $20,836,829 and net was $2,628,116, equivalent to $1.48 a common share. Corporation was not formed until May 31, 1946, but combined gross of predecessor companies for six months to June 30, 1946, was $19,053,646. In corresponding period of 1946, net was $1,759,783, or 94 cents a share, based on the present capitalization. President C. N. Hilton reported Long Beach, Calif., hotel affiliate will be sold and will result in profit of about $727,000, or 45 cents a common share. This will be added to third-quarter results.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Ernest Brown, former executive assistant of Raleigh Hotel, appointed manager of Hotel Stratford here . . . Herbert D. Armstrong named assistant to H. D. Collier, chairman of board of Standard Oil Co. of California . . . Hulbert T. Bisselle, vice president of Riggs National Bank, elected a director of Griffith-Consumers Co. to succeed the late Hillary G. Hoskinson . . . John T. Muhlfeld named general sales manager of Pan American World Airways.

WONDER WHY: The Washington Gas Light Co. continues to use 'Light' in its name? . . . Electric and gas companies can't get together and have one man read both meters on monthly visits? . . . Some persons carve or tear up leather seats in streetcars and buses (Capital Transit reports more than 350 seats ruined so far this year)? . . . Shades are still missing on some buses?

MORE ON PEPCO: Stockholders of Potomac Electric Power Co. yesterday formally approved increase in authorized capital to 75 million dollars from 30 million. Authorized capital stock will consist of 400,000 shares of $50 par preferred stock and 5,500,000 shares of new $10 par common stock. Only 225,000 shares of new comman will be immediately outstanding. Washington Railway & Electric Co., holder of 90,000 shares of old Pepco $100 par common stock, gets 85,000 shares of new $50 par preferred and 2,961,250 shares of new common. Remaining 140,000 shares of new preferred went to old Pepco preferred holders on exchange basis or were redeemed. Directors of Pepco yesterday also declared initial quarterly dividend of 45 cents a share on new preferred, payable October 1 to stock of record September 15.

ODD LOTS: Capital Airlines carried 2,623,751 pounds of freight in quarter ended July 31, upsurge of 160 per cent from same 1946 period when service was launched . . . Lower food prices this year "are pretty much out of the question," says Fred H. Sexauer, former president of Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, after tour of nine farm States . . . Frederick Stearns & Co., division of Sterling Drug, Inc., to move from Detroit to Myerstown, Pa. . . . Tobacco sold in Georgia-Florida flue-cured markets this year brought record $63,903,691 despite average price of $37.65 a hundred pounds being $5.15 less than last year's average . . . Public offering of 30,000 shares of $3.75 preferred and 30,000 shares of common stock of Westvaco Chlorine Products Corp. was oversubscribed and books closed yesterday . . . Common stockholders of Hooker Electrochemical Co. offered the right to subscribe to an additional 134,034 shares at $21.50 a share in ratio of one new share for each five held. Offering being underwritten by Smith Barney & Co. group . . . American Locomotive has arranged 18-million-dollar loan from banks to expand Diesel plant facilities.

'On the Boardwalk in Atlantic City . . .'

$800,000 Bond Issues Sold By Frederick at 1.08-1.54%

Frederick, Md., Sept. 3.(AP).—The City of Frederick sold $800,000 worth of civic improvement bonds to two Baltimore firms today on bids ranging from 1.086 to 1.5408 per cent interest annually.

The four issues and the successful bidders:

$150,000 worth of sanitary system bonds, Baker Watts and Co., 1.5408.

The money realized on the airport bonds is to match Federal funds already granted

The street improvement, water system and sewer bonds are for projects made necessary by Frederick's expansion during the war years.

Top Prizes at Timonium Fair Won by Out-of-State Bulls

Timonium, Md., Sept. 3 (AP).—It was Maryland Farm Bureau day today at the State fair, but the two top awards in livestock competition went to out-of-State exhibitors.

An estimated 3500 bureau members saw Prediction, a 3-year-old bull exhibited by the MacDonald Farm of Cortland, N. Y., crowned grand champion and senior champion among the Guernseys.

The grand champion bull among the Herefords was Morlunda Domino 61st, entered by the Morlunda Farms of Lewisburg, W. Va.

Nyala Supreme Commander, shown by George L. Gunther of Glencoe, was placed as junior champion Guernsey bull, and Prince Comtrest IV, exhibited by Oak Ridge Farms, was reserve champion in the Hereford division.

About 40 officers of the Farm Bureau attended a luncheon as guests of the Timonium board of managers.

A calf scramble and horse pulling contest were held tonight. The Maryland Aberdeen Angus breeders donated 11 calves that about 20 boys sought to halter. The boys keep the calves they catch and are expected to exhibit them at subsequent fairs.

He's expanding America's vocal cords!

Ours is a big nation.

And we are a talkative people.

More and more pathways are now needed to carry the millions of telephone messages of friendship and business.

So throughout this area and all across the country, up on the poles and down in manholes under city streets, cable splicers are busy. With skilled fingers they're joining the wires that will carry your voice wherever you may need to call—today, tomorrow or in years to come.

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company

ENOUGH WIRE TO CIRCLE THE EARTH MORE THAN THREE TIMES

In 1946, this Company installed 83,962 miles of wire in cable. This year we are adding even more! These added circuits and more to come will mean faster and better service for you on local and Long Distance calls.

Trygve Lie Listed As Baltimore Speaker Sept. 14

Baltimore, Sept. 3 (AP).—Sponsors announced today Secretary General Trygve Lie of the United Nations Organization will be the principal speaker here during observance of United Nations Week in Maryland, beginning a week from Sunday.

The U. N.'s highest-ranking administrative officer will address a dinner meeting at the Lord Baltimore Hotel Sunday evening, Sept. 14 sponsored by the United Nations Association of Maryland.

George L. Radcliffe, former United States Senator who is chairman of the association's activities committee, said churches have arranged special services during the week.

On Thursday evening, Sept. 18, Baltimore's war veterans plan a mass rally in War Memorial Plaza. The next night, Lois Fisher, author and illustrator, will address another rally at Polytechnic Institute sponsored by the United Nations Youth Organization.

PLENTY OF MARGIN FOR ERROR IN THE THEORY THAT THE CONDOR PILOT BOUGHT GAS ENOUGH FOR A 200-MILE FLIGHT TO CARRY HAPPY EASTER TO A DESERT BASE!
THESE MAPS ARE PREWAR, STEVE! MAYBE THERE'S SOMETHING ON THAT 200-MILE PERIMETER BESIDES GOPHER HOLES!
WE'LL FLY THE CIRCLE... AND BEFORE WE TAKE OFF, WILL YOU GET HOLD OF SEVERAL SACKS OF SOOT?
YOIKS! ARE WE GONNA PAY OUR WAY BY DOING A MINSTREL SHOW?
MEANWHILE...
EASTER WILL SOON BEGIN TO REACT TO THE PENTOTHAL INJECTION —THEN WE'LL HAVE SOME FACTS!
EASTER, ARE YOU READY TO TALK ABOUT UNITED STATES OIL MATTERS?
YOP! PUT IN A QUART OF MEDIUM AN' CHECK TH' RADIATOR!

JOE PALOOKA

HELLO, MARVIN.
WAIT A MINUTE!
WHO'D YA EAT LUNCH WITH? C'MON - GIMME A GOOD STORY!
WHY... W'WHY... I MET A GENTLEMAN BY ACCIDENT... AN OLD FRIEND.

JACK ARMSTRONG

NOW THAT WE'RE IN THE WILD BLUE YONDER, WHAT DO WE DO?
JUST BEFORE WE LEFT THE FIELD I HAD A CALL FROM VIC, BILLY.
WE'RE TO LAND AT CALMEDO... WHERE A NARCOTICS MAN FROM ACROSS THE BORDER AND ONE OF OUR OWN FEDERAL MEN WILL MEET US.
WE'LL GET OUR INSTRUCTIONS FROM THEM THEN.
THINK THAT CANARD TURBO JET CAN OUTRUN US JACK?
WE'LL SOON KNOW, BILLY.

PENNY

DON'T FEEL SO BADLY ABOUT IT, SYLVESTER. WHAT IF YOUR FUMBLES DID LOSE THE GAME FOR US.
YOU DID YOUR VERY BEST. IT WASN'T YOUR FAULT. NOBODY BLAMES YOU.
GOSH, REALLY PENNY?
BUT OF COURSE! IT WAS ALL THAT BOOB OF A COACH. HE SHOULD BE ACTUALLY SHOT...
FOR PUTTING YOU IN!

MARY WORTH

HELLO MIKE! HAVE A TOUGH DAY AT THE OFFICE? (AND IF HE SAYS YES, I'LL CARVE MY INITIALS IN HIS NECK!)
WHY-- NO, SWEET! TRUTH IS, I DIDN'T WORK AT ALL THIS AFTERNOON!
G-G-GO ON, DARLING!
DON'T LOOK AT ME LIKE LADY MACBETH! I DIDN'T GET CANNED-- OR POTTED, EITHER! I WAS-- UH-- WELL, DOING THINGS ABOUT A PLACE FOR US TO MOVE INTO NEXT WEEK!
HOW INTERESTING!
MATTER OF FACT, I FOUND US A LOVELY PARK BENCH TODAY... WITH SOUTHERN EXPOSURE, RUNNING WATER (ON RAINY DAYS) AND WE SHARE A BATH WITH FOUR SPARROWS WHO WORK NIGHTS!
THAT'S FINE, MY JOVIAL SPOUSE! JUST BE SURE IT ALSO HAS AN ADJOINING NURSERY!

AND YOU REALLY MIGHT GIVE UP THE BUSINESS, HUGO?
YES, PHIL - I'VE HAD AN OFFER FROM THE SUPER-DUPER CORPORATION - AND I'M SERIOUSLY THINKING OF TAKING IT!
WELL, MAYBE YOU SHOULD! YOU CAN MAKE ENOUGH AS MAYOR TO LIVE NICELY - AND IT'S A CINCH THAT YOU'LL BE RE-ELECTED AS LONG AS YOU WANT TO RUN!
NO, PHIL! I'LL NEVER RUN FOR MAYOR AGAIN! - I - I'M GETTIN' TOO OLD - THE STRAIN IS TOO MUCH FOR ME!
PUT YOUR MONEY IN THE BANK, PHIL - AND-AH - DON'T MENTION WHAT I'VE TOLD YOU ABOUT MY PROBLEMS!
DON'T WORRY, HUGO - I'LL KEEP IT ALL UNDER MY HAT!
IF HE HAS TO SELL THAT COAL BUSINESS, HE'LL BE DEAD INSIDE OF SIX MONTHS, PHIL - OF A BROKEN HEART!
I KNOW IT, CLANCY! HE BUILT IT UP FROM NOTHIN'!

WINNIE WINKLE

I KNOW IT'S AN OLD HOUSE AND I KNOW IT NEEDS REPAIRS--
BUT DO YOU KNOW WHAT REPAIRS WILL COST?
OH, BETWEEN TWO AND THREE THOUSAND AND THIS HOUSE WILL LOOK LIKE NEW!!
FINE! KNOCK $2500 OFF THE $10,000 AND WE'LL TAKE IT!
OKAY! SOLD FOR $7,500!
OH, BILL! YOU DARLING!!
DARNIT!! WHY DIDN'T I SAY $5000!??

DOTTY

MR. WEASLEY, DOES YOUR WIFE LET YOU HAVE MUCH SPENDING MONEY?
OH, NO--BUT I SNEAK A DOLLAR BILL NOW AND THEN-- AND I HIDE IT!!
WELL, HASN'T SHE EVER FOUND YOUR HIDING PLACE?
NO--IT'S SUCH A SIMPLE PLACE THAT SHE NEVER THINKS TO LOOK THERE!
A SIMPLE PLACE, HUH? --ER--OH, IT'S BEGINNING TO RAIN!

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

South Answers North in Tiff Over "Civil War"

We recently took note of the fact that a Union group decried the use of the term "War Between the States," and insisted that those hostilities be known as "The Civil War."

Robert D. Murphy of 4700 Connecticut ave. nw., answers with much vigor, logic, and good humor.

Very learnedly, he explains the background for the struggle, and the legal points on which he bases his refutation that this was a "civil" war among the citizens of a single country.

Bob prefers the term "War For Southern Independence," and concludes his letter with these words:

"I guess I'm slightly prejudiced, but you'll have to forgive me because I'm only 17 years old. Anybody know where I can buy a grey suit?"

Why, Bob? Are you going to work in the postal service—or shall we break out the muskets again?

SAVE A LIFE

Peggy Potts, of 67 Fairmont st., Falls Church, Va., writes:

"He's a beautiful dog, intelligent, affectionate, and about one year old. He loves children.

"His owner went off and left him, so my neighbors and I fed him. Then the authorities picked him up and took him to the pound near Fairfax.

"We all have dogs of our own, so we tried to intercede for him. But the best we could do was to get a promise that they'd wait until Friday. If nobody claims him by then, he'll be disposed of."

ENGLISH SPOKEN HERE?

John Reilly tees off on women who use the word "adorable" promiscuously.

He reminds us that the definition of "adore" is: "to offer worship to; pay divine honors to; venerate or idolize."

So he maintains that we shouldn't ever say that a pet poodle or a new dress is "adorable."

PET PEEVE

Elisabeth Sharp Riley of 1861 Wyoming ave. nw., registers a gripe against "Capital Transit's bell-happy motormen."

Liz (Central High, '24) says all you have to do is get caught in a traffic jam, where it's impossible to budge your auto an inch, and what happens? Some motorman starts kicking the gong around—as if he really expects you to get out of his way.

"Can anything be done about such people?" asks Mrs. Riley.

Well, you might try the technique used by a friend of mine. When a motorman rang his bell under similar circumstances, my friend stuck his head out of the window and called out:

"Don't race your motor, Mac—you ain't working on commission."

SEE THE POINT?

Phyllis Thompson, of 3924 Macomb st. nw., writes:

"Thank you so much for finding homes for my four kittens, including the one with six toes like her mommy. I hope the District Line lasts forever."

I hope so too—but, not being in the fountain pen business, I can't guarantee it.

THE KIND YOU DON'T HAVE TO WIND

Is it cricket to swipe a story from a colleague?

If it is, here's one by Dolores Hall, of 4219 Rusk st. se. Dolores writes pieces for the school paper at Eastern High School, where she's studying journalism.

On the train between New York and Washington, little Mary Alice struck up a friendship with the conductor. When their conversation turned to dogs, the conductor asked:

"Do you have a dog, Mary Alice?"

"No, I don't," answered Mary Alice, "but I'm going to get one for my birthday."

"You are? That's fine. What kind of dog are you going to get?"

The pride fairly oozed from the little girl's words as she replied:

"A real live one."

Harmon's Football Album Due Soon

New York.—One of the major league ball clubs is negotiating for the purchase of a local radio station. The money received from the several sponsors who are ready to share the spot announcements during the broadcasts of the game will be more than enough to amortize the cost of the station . . . The drawing for Mexico's new International sweepstakes lottery has been postponed to March 1, to avoid a conflict with other major races.

A New York city syndicate is buying a parcel of land bigger than the island of Manhattan, near Tuxedo . . . Wendy Hiller, who starred in the movie version of "Pygmalian," arrived in New York on Monday to start rehearsing in the play which Jed Harris is directing.

Ursulla Rank, daughter of J. Arthur Rank, flew back to Europe last week. She got off at Shannon to look at some race horses. Miss Rank has no interest in movie-making, and prefers riding and breeding horses. "To me," she said, "a fine horse is more interesting than any film star" . . . Bob Hope has signed Les Brown's orchestra for his broadcast series this year.

Decca will release a Tommy Harmon album of records, "How to Play Football." It consists of six recordings by specialists: Glenn Davis' "How to Run," Bob Waterfield's "How to Pass," Forrest Evashevsky's "How to Block," Fritz Crisler's "How to Kick," A. A. Stagg's "How to Train," and Joe E. Brown's specialization, "Spectator Football —How to Watch a Game."

At his 77th birthday celebration last week, when Bernard Baruch was congratulated by several pretty ladies, he acknowledged by telling the story of Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson's trip to France, during the signing of the Peace Treaty after the first World War. Mrs. Gibson greeted Clemenceau, who seemed distracted and to be thinking of more important matters. "Don't you love me any more?" Mrs. Gibson teased him . . . "Yes, Madame," Clemenceau assured her. "I lay at your feet all the passion of my 84 years."

Irwin Shaw, the new drama critic for The New Republic, plans to review his own play when it is presented on Broadway this year . . . Eddie Cantor has completed the outlines of the 39 radio programs which represent a full year's work for him. Every fourth program will be a musical . . .

Meyer Levin, who wrote the book and the screen adaptation of "My Father's House," appears in the movie—playing the role of the bureau-clerk from whose hands the boy tears the file containing his family's records and learns of their fate.

Robert E. Sherwood listened to a discussion of Britain's new 75 per cent tax on American films and was asked what he thought about it. Sherwood replied that it depends on how you look at it—which in turns depends on how it affects you. "For instance, when I read the announcement," said Sherwood, who wrote the screenplay for "The Best Years of Our Lives," "my first reaction to the tax was 'This is terrible. It's confiscatory.' Then, when I read further and learned that it would apply only to new films and not—as in the case of 'The Best Years of Our Lives'—to films already imported into England, I thought: 'Well, it isn't too bad'."

May I Have

The Floor, Please

• Me . . . I've got plenty on my mind these days. You grown-ups think that us guys (and gals) from the Diaper-Detail are o.k. to be seen . . . but never heard. Well, relax and lend me an ear. We've had enough of these triangular pantaloons. We think it's time for another trip to The Hecht Company's Second Floor for Youth.

• Of course, we can't take you by the hand and lead you there. That wouldn't be very good manners for Small Fry. But from what we've heard, The Hecht Company has just about everything a growing young man (and lady) needs to make a good showing in the world. Especially now . . . since the entire second floor has been completely replanned for greater convenience to us and our folks.

• Look back to your knee-high days and you'll remember that even then The Hecht Company led the town in its wardrobes for kids. Well, just take a look at it now. A department for the newest arrivals . . . separate shops for toddlers and tots . . . and so on right up to the biggest guys and their girls! And all with the best arrangements you ever saw for looking and shopping. Naturally the quality of the clothes is in the same top bracket as when your mom came here for your outfits. What more could you want . . . that's certainly good enough for us!

• So . . . without speaking out of turn . . . we'll give you the floor . . . to say "Children's floor, please" the minute we start shopping for that new small fry wardrobe . . . at The Hecht Company.
